ART THEFTS - - Believe Burglaries Solved

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

The State Police Bureau of Criminal Investigation believe they have the man responsible for a two-year series of burglaries of antique shops and art galleries in the Woodstock-Saugerties area.

During the night of October 7, a Saturday, a Kingston State Police uniformed patrol arrested a Saugerties man outside a Veteran antique store and charged him with burglarizing the establishment.

The man, Robert Francis Paganelli, 28, of RD 1, Box 400, Saugerties, waived examination before Town of Ulster Justice of the Peace Arthur A. Reilly and was remanded to the Ulster County jail.

Later, County Judge Raymond J. Mino released Paganelli, on what was called "a high bail," to await further court action.

It was through questioning of the accused and a search of his house, however, that convinced investigators that they had a major breakthrough in the two-year series of unsolved burglaries.

A search of the Pagnelli home, under the authority of a warrant, turned up $4,000 worth of stolen paintings and antiques, according to BCI Investigator John G. Salters—the alleged haul taken from eight area antique shops and several art gallaries.

According to Investigator Salters, Paganelli seemed drawn to the works of Woodstock artist Robert Angeloch, a painter of realistic landscapes.

Angeloch's works were stolen from the Art Student's League Gallery and the Lewis Gallery, both in Woodstock.

It was discovered, however, that most of the Angeloch works—about $10,000 worth—were destroyed by fire which the BCI believes was used by the suspect in an effort to destroy evidence.

Paganelli will appear before the Grand Jury at a later date.

WOODSTOCK FATALITY — A 20-year-old Kingston man was killed and three others injured Sunday night when a car in which they were traveling along Route 375 near the Woodstock golf course crashed into a tree. State troopers and a tow truck crew worked 20 minutes before they freed the victim from the wreckage of the vehicle shown above. (Freeman photo by Glenn Fitzgerald)

City Youth, Teener Die In Separate Mishaps

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

Death rode the highways of Ulster County for the second consecutive weekend and claimed the lives of an 18-year-old Ellenville woman and a 20-year-old Kingston youth, who were killed in separate one-car accidents investigated by State Police.

Four other persons including a Kingston fireman were injured in the two mishaps.

State Police identified the victim of a spectacular one-car accident which occurred on the State Thruway north of Saugerties Friday night as William E. Hall, 24, of Albany. Two others were seriously hurt when the 1967 car was sliced in two after crashing into a bridge abutment.

1967 Toll at 37

The three fatalities boosted the Ulster County highway death toll for 1967 to 37. Five persons have been killed in county mishaps this month. The 37th fatality in 1966 occurred Aug. 8 on Route 9W at Glenerie.

The other victims of the weekend fatalities were:

Michael Modica, 20, of 159 Washington Avenue, a passenger in a car involved in a one-car mishap on Route 375 Woodstock, Sunday night, and Miss Nancy June Van Keuren, 18, of Ellenville, who died of injuries sustained in a one-car accident on Route 52, east of Walker Valley early today.

State Police Sergeant Joseph Ellsworth of Kingston, said Modica was a passenger in a car operated by Michael S. Andrews, 19, of 37 Wall Street, who was driving north on Route 375 near the Woodstock golf course at 8:20 p. m. Sunday, when he lost control. Ellsworth said the car failed to negotiate a right curve, went off the highway, veered back to the east side of the road and hit a tree.

When authorities arrived at the scene they found Modica pinned between the wrecked car and a tree. Andrews sustained abrasions of the right hand and knees, and contusions. He was treated at Kingston Hospital and released.

Cause of Death

Troopers said Modica died of a skull fracture and crushed chest.

Other occupants of the Andrews car were Jay Thorn, 21-year-old Kingston provisional fireman of 35 Montrepose Avenue, who suffered a fractured right femur and head injuries, and Thomas Komosa, 22, of Colonial Gardens, who sustained lacerations of the scalp and injuries of the right ankle. The injured were taken to Kingston Hospital by Doctors Ambulance and State Police. Modica was pronounced dead on arrival.

Investigating the Woodstock fatality with Sergeant Ellsworth were BCI Investigator James Kaljian, Troopers Carl Van Wagenen, Craig Bremer, R. G. Bergin, David Wachtel, assisted by Woodstock Chief Constable William Waterous.

Sergeant Ellsworth said the mishap occurred about three-tenths of a mile south of Route 212 on Route 375, Town of Woodstock.

Troopers reported investigation of the fatality will continue.

Fatally Injured

Miss Van Keuren, 18, of 13 Pershing Avenue, Ellenville, was injured fatally at 2 a. m. today when the car in which she was riding failed to negotiate a left curve on Route 52 one mile east of Walker Valley. Trooper James Curtis said investigation disclosed the vehicle skidded sideways in a ditch for a distance of 350 feet, overturned several times and traveled 125 feet before it came to rest on its wheels.

Miss Van Keuren and and the owner of the car, Wayne Harrison Krom, 18, of Grahamsville, were both ejected from the vehicle as it rolled over, and troopers investigating the mishap had difficulty in determining who was driving the car at the time it careened out of control.

Trooper Curtis said Miss Van Keuren died of a fractured skull and internal injuries. Krom suffered a skull fracture and internal injuries. He was taken to Ellenville Community Hospital for emergency treatment and later transferred to Kingston Hospital. The fatality was investigated by Trooper C. R. Larsen of the Accident Investigation Unit, Zone Sergeant Russell Dauch, BCI Investigator M. J. Bonney and Trooper J. E. Kelly.

Continued investigation of a spectacular accident on the State Thruway about two miles north of Saugerties Friday night, established the identity of a man killed in the mishap. State Police said the victim was William E. Hall, 24, of Albany.

In Rented Car

According to Thruway troopers, Hall and Thomas Smith, 27, of 16 Albany Avenue, Albany, and William Scott, 21, of 839 Brandt Street, Schenectady, were traveling south in a 1967 car owned by Chrysler Rental Service of Detroit, Mich., when the vehicle went out of control and slammed into a bridge abutment.

The force of the impact cut the sedan in two pieces, Smith and Scott were both hurled from the vehicle. The man identified later as Hall, was slumped in the front seat. Troopers said it had not been determined who was driving the car at the time of the fatal crash. They said witnesses observed the vehicle was traveling at a high speed before the mishap.

Ulster County Coroner William S. Keyser investigated with state troopers from the Thruway and Kingston stations.

Bechtold Raps Meeting Even Before It Happens

C. John Bechtold, Republican-Liberal candidate for mayor, today labeled Mayor Garraghan's meeting this afternoon on urban blight as "sheer campaign hogwash."

The story of the 4:30 p. m. meeting with the Building and Housing Code Department appeared in Friday's Freeman. Bechtold referred to the meeting as an "obvious attempt to hoodwink the people into believing that finally some action was being initiated to solve this problem."

Garraghan has proposed the registration of all apartments as a means to curtail violations of city building codes. Under the Garraghan plan no apartment could be rented or dwelling sold until it met with all city housing and building regulations.

Referring to the Freeman article Bechtold says "A careful reading of the statement clearly indicates that what is really being done here is nothing more than what has been accomplished to date... exactly nothing."

Let us analyze the "action" that is being taken here," Bechtold said. "It is just another meeting with the Mayor's own building code staff to, in the Mayor's own words, "work on new legislation" in the city's fight. This whole statement is an empty promise to do nothing. The Mayor in his usual style is procrastinating, making any promise to keep the people quiet for a while, hopefully in this case until after the election, and then a return to the Garraghan do-nothing style of city administration."

"Let us review the entire situation concerning Building Code enforcement," Bechtold said.

"During the administration of Mayor John J. Schwenk the Common Council did adopt a uniform building code. As part of the enforcement procedure of this new code, a survey was made of the entire city, of every building that might be in violation. This report was completed either in late 1965 or early '66. Therefore, it is a fact that complete information has been in Garraghan's possession ever since he took office," Bechtold said.

"The next step was to begin a program of code enforcement. The mayor submitted as part of his 1967 budget an item for some $16,000 additional funds for his building department for the expressed purpose of building code enforcement. The council passed this measure, but, this is where the whole program came to a halt. Despite the many loud protestations of the mayor, it is a fact that there has been no enforcement of building codes in the city, Bechtold charged.

Building Inspector Radcliffe admitted this before the 10th Ward Action Committee. Thereafter, and at the same meeting, the mayor gave his usual lame excuses, and now after several such sessions he has finally initiated some action against a grand total of two properties in that area for conditions which existed long before the Action Committee was organized. I fear that here too the mayor has merely performed another of his famous "con jobs" by promising anything necessary to relieve the pressure of the moment," Bechtold said.

"The final step of this program was the workable program which was to be a carefully planned and executed means of rehabilitating residence properties. Here is where there has been an utter and complete faiure to even begin planning such a program. Yet, how many times has the mayor talked about this?" Bechtold asked.

"The whole building enforcement situation in our city is a prime example of the Garraghan administration's handling of governmental affairs. The rule here is government by deceit—the big promise—no action—the big lie to cover the situation of the moment. Meanwhile our city continues to go downhill . . . a sad situation indeed," Bechtold concluded.

Gorman Outlines Objectives

Wants County Ethics Code

During a press conference held at the Governor Clinton Hotel today, Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, chairman of the Ulster County Democratic Committee, called for a county code of ethics, a central purchasing agency, an elected county executive. He accused Republicans with "perpetuation of mediocrity."

Citing the objectives of the Ulster County Democratic party in 1967, Dr. Gorman declared that the 1956 Tompkins investigation "clearly demonstrated the need for defining a code of ethics to guide our elected officials."

Raps Patronage

Gorman said a code of ethics "would limit the awarding of political patronage, would reveal obvious conflicts of interest and would prevent premature disclosure of confidential information that would be profitable to a certain few friends of the administration."

He further stated that the Democrats "propose and pledge ourselves to such a code of ethics and we challenge the Republicans to do the same."

Dr Gorman asked why it took so long "for the Board of Supervisors to take any action to alleviate jail overcrowding?"

He mentioned that the county had been criticized for its "overcrowded jail conditions, lack of juvenile detention facilities and for a lack of rehabilitation and prisoner recreational facilities.

He asked "why hasn't the Republican administration seen fit to accept the recommendations of a Democratic sheriff to solve these problems?"

Cites Waste

The Democratic chairman also charged "Ulster County is wasting tens of thousands of dollars through uneconomical purchasing." Gorman claimed that much duplicate purchasing was being done by various county departments.

"We believe that a central purchasing agent would save thousands of dollars by putting the county in a better bargaining position through volume purchasing."

On the subject of public recreation facilities, the Democratic chairman said "the failure of Ulster County to utilize existing federal and state programs for the development of recreational facilities has caused the waste of thousands of acres of available land. We pledge ourselves," he said, "to actively seek the assistance of state and federal agencies in developing swimming facilities, public golf courses, public marinas and public parks and campsites for use of Ulster County residents."

Gorman claimed that "we will seek the appointment of a county park commission to guide in the orderly development of an overall plan for recreational facilities."

The chairman of the Ulster Democrats said that "politics of an unethical nature continues to rear its ugly head... in the perpetuation of the coroner system.

"In 1965 over 24,000 people voted for a physician who advocated the medical examiner system. Isn't this indicative of their favoring this plan?", he asked adding, "why then the lack of response from the Republican dominated Board of Supervisors?"

The Democrat further declared that the Ulster GOP "has not nurtured the creation of an Ulster County Industrial Planning Commission."

Gorman claimed that such a commission would "attract new industry that will provide jobs and encourage our young people to remain in Ulster County."

Dr. Gorman pledged the Democrats to backing a "county charter form of government . . . with a fulltime elected county executive."

Scores Ratio

The Democrat also hit at the felony conviction — felony indictment ration claiming that "there is no reason why Ulster has to have the lowest ratio of the 62 counties in the state. A heavy caseload," he said, "is no excuse for a poor record."

Dr. Gorman called further for a tax map of Ulster County citing that "hundreds of acres of privately owned lands are not on the tax rolls."

Gorman further accused the Republican administration "of lack of foresight in not developing training programs to permit more of our welfare recipients to enjoy the dignity of full employment." Ulster Democrats, he said, would seek a welfare agency staffed by fully qualified people devoid of political appointments and would raise the morale of the staff by this elimination of political patronage."

City Pharmacy Sale Revealed

Negotiations for the sale of the United Pharmacy, 329 Wall Street, Kingston, to Ralph Megna, who is associated with a chain of Parker-Megna drug stores in Brooklyn, are expected to be finalized in two weeks.

George Svirsky, president of the Wall Street pharmacy, said his decision to sell the business had nothing to do with his future political ambitions. He explained the negotiations had been underway the last several months.

Svirsky has been prominently mentioned in Republican circles in the city, as a potential candidate for a seat in Congress in 1968.

The Parker-Megna chain of drug stores in Brooklyn have been operated for many years on a "price conscious" level, according to Svirsky, who pointed out that Megna will continue to conduct business at United Pharmacy on a high level with possible lower prices. Megna also plans to expand the business, which has been successfully conducted by the present owner.

Asked about his future plans, Svirsky said "I haven't a vague idea at this time as to my future." Commenting on his ambition to win the Republican nomination for Congress in 1968, Svirsky noted that he "is not actively seeking the nomination, neither have I declined to accept the Republican nomination."

Svirsky said he had heard reports that Ulster County Republican Chairman John B. Sterley and Hamilton Fish Jr. planned to confer on the Congressional outlook for 1968 at the Governor Clinton Hotel today. He said he did not expect to attend that conference.

If nominated by the GOP as its candidate for Congress next year, Svirsky will oppose incumbent sophomore Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, Ellenville Democrat, who defeated Fish, Dutchess County Republican hopeful.

Last November, Svirsky, prominent business man and leader in civic affairs in the area many years, announced he was seeking endorsement of the GOP as the party's candidate for Congress. He said at that time he had "been approached" and commenting on his candidacy added, "after great consideration . . . I feel it is in the best interests of my community and my party to seek this office."

Svirsky, who plans to continue to work at the Wall Street pharmacy until early next year, will continue to serve as the campaign manager for C. John Bechtold, Gop candidate for mayor of Kingston, and Louis J. Smith, Republican candidate for alderman-at-large.

Ownership of United Pharmacy formerly known as United Cut Rate Pharmacy, 324 Wall Street, was transferred to Svirsky the week of July 14, 1948 from the former owner Mortimer H. Englander. Svirsky had thorough experience in the drug business, including management of several large chain stores in upper New York State before taking over the local store.

Rhinebeck Petition Asks Budget Vote

A parent and taxpayer's petition, asking the Rhinebeck Board of Education to adopt the austerity budget under which it is operating, plus four additional items including transportation and instructional services, is expected to be presented at a meeting tonight.

About 450 of the 570 required signatures had been secured as of this morning according to Mrs. Arthur R. Locke Jr., one of those promoting the petition.

"At the moment, it looks good," she said, hopeful that the needed names will be obtained by nightfall.

The petition calls for a special meeting to vote on the contingency budget of $1,300,677.61 mandated after voters twice turned down board proposed budgets. It also calls for a vote on four separate items: instructional services (urged by the Rhinebeck Teacher's Association) $39,375.25; transportation, $18,368; operation and maintenance of plant, $7,775.04 and inter-fund transfer for cafeteria, $1,000.

Should the petition be successful a fourth referendum will be held with district residents voting on five separate propositions.

The Day the British Razed 'A Rebel's Nest'

TEMPORARY CAPITAL AT HURLEY

By JEAN DOLAN

A nest of rebels reduced to smoldering ashes — That was Kingston exactly 190 years ago today.

The Wiltwyck settlement which had grown to increasing importance in the Revolutionary War was put to the torch by British General Vaughn who gloated in his official report he had "reduced the place to ashes." It was he who labelled the village which served as the first New York State Capital a "nest of rebels" and a "nursery for almost every villain."

Harsh words but to be expected from an emeny at the doors of the "third largest settlement in the State." Earlier in 1777, Kingston hosted the first State Constitutional Convention and on July 30 George Clinton took the oath of office as first governor of the state at the local courthouse. The first court held under the new constitution convened at Kingston Sept. 9, 1777. Rebelious actions against the Crown certainly.

The British sailing northward up the Hudson, burning and plundering along the way, arrived opposite Esopus Island about 5 p. m. Oct. 15. By the afternoon of the 16th they were making their way back to their ships with the smoke of the burned village blending with the autumn haze behind them.

But what of the villagers themselves? The alarm had sounded when the British forces were sighted on the river. Word of the northbound fleet had reached the community earlier and the state government had faltered as men left to protect their land and families. The Council of Safety, hastily formed of the remnants, ordered food and livestock taken to safer ground.

As the British forces were landing on the morning of Oct. 16 a mass exodus to Hurley was underway. Excitement mounted as householders sought to hide valuables and load belongings.

Deputy County Clerk Christopher Tappan is credited with saving many valuable records while losing some of his own possessions to save them. However a more colorful account says it was his wife who saved the records while he was helping defend the village. According to a manuscript at the Senate House, she carried them away in her skirts.

The women of the village figured prominently in history of the holocaust, doing much to maintain their households as best they could. One such devoted housewive, Mrs. Benjamin Low, after fleeing with family and portable possessions returned with her servant to "do some wash." Her errand completed, she fled again just as troops rounded the church corner.

The village was not completely deserted when the British arrived. At a little house near the slave cemetery, a woman in labor lay in a cellar alcove, giving birth to Johannis Van Keuren as the wooden frame of the dwelling caught fire.

Teenager Rachel DuMond helped her mother and father to safety and returned to the house at Green Street and Lucas Avenue to save the farm

Spending and Taxes Occupy Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another fiscal donnybrook confronts Congress this week, with the House the arena for action.

Involved, as they have been for weeks, are the issues of taxes, spending, appropriations and whether Congress or the President should take the lead in putting the federal financial house in order.

The big battle comes Wednesday when the House acts on a fourth emergency appropriation bill to put money into the coffers of government agencies whose regular appropriations for the year that started July 1 have not cleared Congress. Their emergency funding expires next Monday.

The shape of the emergency measure is to be molded at a meeting of the Appropriations Committee today.

Republicans are trying to tie to the bill a requirement that the President cut spending for the fiscal year by at least $5 billion. The President claims that assignment can't be carried out until all the appropriation bills become law.

The GOP came within eight votes of winning when they tried that approach to enforced economy Oct. 3.

Appropriations Committee Democrats are convinced the Senate would not accept the GOP plan. That could cause a House-Senate deadlock that would be difficult to break by next Monday.

They huddled with Chairman George H. Mahon, D-Tex., and tossed around several alternative proposals Friday but reached no decision.

There was strong sentiment, however, for a requirement that the President freeze government employment until Congress finishes its appropriation tasks.

If the Senate went along, that would give Congress a breathing spell to finish the appropriation bills and give the Appropriations Committee time to draft another measure taking back some of the money Congress has appropriated this year and in past years.

Four appropriations bills, all compromises, could be disposed of this week, leaving only a few in the legislative mill. The compromises carry money for military construction programs, the Department of Transportation, the space program and a score of other agencies.

Mahon has promised to present later in the session a general bill rescinding specific appropriations already made. He takes the position that Congress, not the President, should decide where cuts should be made.

The GOP proposal for a mandatory $5 billion reduction doesn't spell out the areas for cuts.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee has not changed his insistence that before his group will even consider the President's request for tax increases, there must be concrete evidence of sharp cuts in spending. His committee colleagues support his position. It doesn't care who wields the economy axe so long as it falls heavily.

Arab Saboteurs Losing War Hopes

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Under unrelenting pressure from Israeli security forces, Arab saboteurs appear to have given up hope of starting a guerrilla war in Israeli-occupied areas west of the Jordan River.

Sources here said El Fatah gangs backed by Syria are pulling out of bases from which they have carried on a terror campaign for the last six weeks.

The sources said the raid on the Ma'oz Hayyim kibbutz in northern Israel Sunday is a strong indication that the saboteurs have reverted to the tactics they used before the Middle East war last June—hit-and-run raids across the Jordanian border.

Four bombs caused damage at the kibbutz but no casualties were reported. Army spokesmen said the tracks of three men led to the Jordan River, a mile east, and that 15 Soviet-made submachine-gun magazines, grenades and othe rammunition were found near the kibbutz.

Israeli security officials say they have rounded up at least 200 terrorists west of the river. They claim they have broken the most successful group of saboteurs and have uncovered an El Fatah operations center in Jerusalem.

Arabic-speaking Israeli agents are still searching adobe villages for isolated resisters but curfew sand other restrictions are being eased in Nablus, Tulkarm and Jenin, formerly saboteur centers.

Israeli tank gunners pounded suspected El Fatah bases east of the Jordan Saturday after snipers began firing near Sheik Hussein Bridge. It was the fiercest battle on the Jordanian border since the war.

The raid on Ma'oz Hayyim was the fifth in two weeks in the Beisan Valley, which runs south from the Sea of Galilee 25 miles to the old Israel-Jordan frontier.

The lush valley is vulnerable to sabotage raids, lying along the only sector of the border unchanged by the war and the only direct point of entry to Israel from Jordan.

Upstate GI Killed in Viet

DUNDEE, N.Y. (AP) — Richard V. Smith, 21, a Navy Medical Corpsman who had been in Vietnam war zone since Sept. 3, was reported killed last Thursday in the fighting there, his parents say.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Smith of this Finger Lakes village said Saturday their son enlisted in the Navy in July 1964 after graduation from Dundee Central School.

He leaves a brother and a sister besides his parents.

Armament Buildup Spotted in China

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. intelligence experts are puzzling over mysterious shrouded shapes spotted in a Communist Chinese railyard just above the North Vietnamese border.

At first, some experts thought the shapes might be tanks covered by tarpaulins on rail flatcars.

But sources say there is a growing belief the objects may be heavy self-propelled artillery, possibly bigger than any guns yet used by the North Vietnamese.

U.S. Marines at Conthien already have been battered by Communist artillery from north of the boundary separating North Vietnam from South Vietnam.

About eight tarpaulin-covered objects are among the mass of materiel which U.S. authorities said has been been building up in the big rail complex of P'ing Hsiang, which lies on the important train line between Hanoi and Nanning in south China.

Officials said the Chinese obviously have been stockpiling supplies and rail rolling stock at P'ing Hsiang in preparation for the extended period of bad weather, now closing in.

Under cover of this heavy rain and clouds, the Communists can hope to move supplies over the battered — but repaired—rail line to Hanoi while foul weather badly hampers U.S. bombing.

Sources said self-propelled artillery has been reported being unloaded from Soviet ships in Chinese ports.

Some government sources said there are indications the Soviets may be bypassing the port of Haiphong with war material and landing it instead in Red China, for shipment by rail and truck to North Vietnam.

The shapes which appear in U.S. reconnaissance photos are of the dimensions of either tanks or heavy self-propelled artillery, sources said. As always, they would not discuss the origin of the pictures.

One source said it looked as though the guns under the shroud might be somewhere between 140 and 160 millimeters.

Marine authorities in Washington have said the biggest guns known to be firing at Con Thien are about 130 millimeters. Such guns could reach about 18 miles south of the Ben Hai River boundary between North and South Vietnam, covering much of the important Marine front and extending to a point just above the city of Quang Tri.

Recently, Pentagon officials said somewhere around 70 Communist artillery pieces have been bombarding these Marine positions.

Ordnance officers suggested the mystery weapons possibly awaiting movement south from P'ing Hsiang could be 152 millimeter Soviet heavy assault guns.

These have about a 20-mile reach and hurl a heavier projectile than the artillery the Communists now have trained on Con Thien.

Four in Family Dead in Crash

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Four of seven members of an Ohio family driving to Syracuse to visit relatives were killed Saturday when their automobile smashed into a parked construction crane along the State Thruway.

Troopers said Mrs. Solomon Brown, 33, and a son, Anthony, 8 of Cleveland, and Mrs. William Brown, 35, and a daughter, Gertrude, 13, of Toledo, died in the crash.

They said the car struck the crane on the center mall after apparently skidding off the highway near a triple interchange at nearby West Seneca, on the eastern edge of Buffalo.

Three family members injured in the accident remained in fair condition Sunday. They are Solomon Brown, 39, and his daughter, Jeannette, 7, both at Mercy Hospital, and a brother William Brown, 33, at Our Lady of Victory Hospital.

Police said the Syracuse relatives, T.C. Brown, a brother of the two men, and their sister, Mrs. Dorothy Williamson, identified the dead.

Solomon Brown lives at 653 125th St., Cleveland.

William Brown's address is 733 Green St., Toledo.

Mother, Child Die in Fire

DEPEW, N.Y. (AP) — A 35-year-old mother, her 1½-year-old daughter and two other young children perished in a fire early today that swept a 2½-story apartment building in this village east of Buffalo, police said.

Mrs. Lorraine Galuski, her daughter Lee Ann, Dawn Champane, 16 months, and Kelly Champane, 5, died in the flames.

Damage to the building, which houses eight apartments, was estimated at more than $35,000, police said.

In addition to those killed, 24 persons, including 10 children, were made homeless, they said.

The cause of the fire was not determined immediately.

Forest Fires Ravage Large Los Angeles Area

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A series of scorching brush fires spread a patchwork pattern of destruction over the tinder-dry Los Angeles area Sunday, leaving one person dead and 40 homeless and blackening 26,000 acreas.

The worst of the fires—a 10,000 acre blaze at suburban Chatsworth in the San Fernando Valley 30 miles northwest of Los Angeles—destroyed 22 homes and raged through the night.

Fire officials said the Chatsworth blaze combined with a 3,000-acre fire in the Simi Valley of southern Ventura County. Both fires were burning on a 20-mile perimeter bordering U.S. 101, the Ventura Freeway.

Fire department spokesmen said Janet Cameron was killed at Simi when a fire truck collided with her car. Two firemen and other motorists were hospitalized. Traffic on the Ventura Freeway to the Simi area was backed up for eight miles at one point.

In addition to the 22 homes destroyed, Battalion Capt. Jake S. Dukes said, the Chatsworth blaze damaged 30 homes. Red Cross workers set up a shelter at a nearby church.

"I lost everything," said Edward Collins whose home went up in flames, "everything—house and furnishings. My son and daughter lost their home too. I stayed to fight the fire until it got so hot I had to leave. Now I have nowhere to go. All I have is on my back—pajama top, trousers and shoes."

No homes were damaged in Simi but a tract of homes near Thousand Oaks was threatened during the night. The fire burned around the rocketdyne testing center of North American Rockwell Corp., destroying several small sheds.

A blaze threatened homes in the residential suburb of Whittier about 15 miles southeast of Los Angeles.

"It burned right up to the back doors of some houses," a Los Angeles County fire official said, but the flames were contained before there was any structural damage.

In Santa Paula, 100 miles northwest of Los Angeles, two ranches were destroyed in a blaze that had swept across 16,000 acres.

It was still reported burning out of control Sunday night.

The hot, dry Santa Ana winds which fed the flames had died down during the night but the whirling air current was expected to gain momentum again. The mountainous path of the fire was inaccessable to most fire fighting equipment.

Business as Usual

Caught between its demands for economy to avoid the unpopular surtax at the beginning of an election year and its desire for "pork barrel" appropriations to defray the costs of public works in their own states and districts, Congress played it safe for itself with a business as usual decision. The pork barrel will be full, no matter what the cost to the taxpayers.

The House had passed the public works bill overwhelmingly by authorizing $4.617 billion. The Senate first refused to trim $248 million from the bill and then topped the House version by $153 million, passing a $4.77 billion pork barrel by a vote of 82 to 3.

In addition to appropriating money for river, harbor and floor control projects, the bill contains funds for the Atomic Energy Commission, water pollution control and other projects. Differences will be worked out in conference, but with such one-sided votes for the pork barrel, there is no chance it will be reduced substantially.

Another big money bill breezing through as usual is the $4.95 billion agriculture appropriations. The House did demand that the Senate back down on three additions it had made—totalling $1.57 billion at least on paper. However, $1.5 billion of the amount involved a bookkeeping transfer to the Commodity Credit Corporation and thus would have no effect on actual Government spending. If the Senate refuses to accept House demands, the bill will go back to conference. With farms and farmers declining in numbers each year, the wonder is that agriculture appropriations continue to rise each year.

Finally, the House decided not to let economy interfere with granting some two million Federal employes their 15th increase in 22 years, which coupled pay increases with increases in postal rates. President Johnson had sought separate bills, but the House provided pay increases amounting to $850 million, topping the President's proposal by $73 million. The Senate seldom rejects pay increases, and these can be expected to become final.

Yep, Congress wants economy, but won't do it the hard way, any more than the President will. War or not, it's business as usual on the eve of an election year.

Soviet Budget for War

The Soviet Union is budgeting for war—fought by others to advance Communist aims. The biggest increases in defense spending in its history were announced by Finance Minister Vasily Garbuzov. The publicity disclosed defense spending amounts to $18.6 billion. Western analysts believe this is less than half the actual defense spending. The rest is hidden under other budgetary headings, to bring the real defense budget closer to $40 billion.

As Garbuzov explained the increases, they are necessary because "international tensions demand increased attention to our defenses." Actually, that means the cost of rearming the Arab states to carry the Soviet aim of dominating the Middle East, and the cost of arming North Vietnam to continue Communist aggression in South Vietnam.

The United States spent $67 billion for defense in fiscal year ending June 30 last. President Johnson has asked for $72.3 billion for the current fiscal year, that began July. The difference is accounted for largely by the difference in our high pay economy and the Soviet's state monopoly. Actually, the two defense budgets reflect the cost of fairly evenly matched war machines.

Vanishing Skid Row

Skid row, that last refuge of homeless men, is fast disappearing as a part of the American urban scene. A study of 29 major skid row areas in as many cities throughout the country reveals that urban renewal and welfare programs have dispersed skid rows, if not eliminated them.

Howard M. Bahr, director of Columbia University's Bowery Project, concluded from the study data that skid row is gradually vanishing. However, he did not think that the absolute number of homeless persons necesesarily, is declining, though in some places the decline of skid row population may represent real attrition to the homeless.

Of the 29 cities surveyed, only Tacoma, Wash., was found to have an increasing skid row population. Boston, Birmingham and Richmond were found to have stable skid row populations. The remaining 25 cities surveyed showed declines of up to one-half.

The Bowery and other less colorful skid row areas in the country were never dangerous places. Recently, they have been invaded by hoodlums. That can account for the vanishing skid row element. Many older men are afraid to walk the streets that once were so hospitable to them. They are the healthier for the change, even though it is not so easy any more to locate the homeless in skid rows.

Soviet Is Holding Up Viet Armistice

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—The biggest single factor holding up the cessation of hostilities in Vietnam is the failure of the Soviet Government to use its influence with the North Vietnamese to bring about an armistice and the negotiation of a peace agreement.

Secretary of State Rusk, in a lengthy conference with newsmen on Thursday, emphasized that there has not been the slightest intimation from the Hanoi Government as to what it would do if there were a suspension of bombing by the American side. When the reporters asked Mr. Rusk what Russia was doing to bring peace, he replied that he had absolutely no information. The transcript of the press conference on this point reads as follows:

"Q. Mr. Secretary, is it not correct that this government was informed by the Soviet Government, on the authorization of Hanoi, that if the bombing was stopped there would be a conference between the United States and North Vietnam within three or four weeks?

"A. No, we were not informed that. There was a public statement by Mr. Kosygin, in London. But Hanio has not said that, to our knowledge....There is no one in the world who has been able to tell us what Hanoi would do if we stopped the bombing....

"Now, we are interested in peace. We are not interested in a sanctuary which will let them carry on these operations against South Vietnam and Laos for eternity while they sit there in a sanctuary taking their own time, paying no price, trying to seize their neighbors by force."

The most obvious fact of all is that North Vietnam could not continue to fight the war without the direct help of the Soviet Government. The conclusion is inescapable that Moscow is acquiescing in the Hanoi Government's adamant position in refusing to withhold military action if the bombing is stopped by the American forces. Secretary Rusk nevertheless concluded his formal statement at his press conference with the following:

"I cannot tell you when peace will come. I am encouraged by progress toward peace in South Vietnam, but I cannot name a date. But we shall continue our effort both by resisting those who would impose their solutions by brute force and by an unremitting exploration of every path which could lead to peace."

Mr. Rusk did not specify exactly what the factors are on which he bases his feeling of encouragement that peace is in prospect. But it may be inferred that the war in Vietnam today is going better for the South Vietnamese Militarily and that he believes there are elements in the world situation which may eventually persuade the Soviet government that the time has come to call a halt in Vietnam.

It could be that the Soviets are reluctant at present to take the initiative because of their uncertainty over the attitude of the Red Chinese.

The machinery for conducting peace negotiations is, of course, available. Mr. Rusk pointed out that Great Britain and the Soviet Union were co-chairmen of the Geneva Conference in 1954 and could bring about a peace conference immediately. He said that the British co-chairman is willing to go ahead but that "if the other co-chairman won't cooperate, there is very little chance" of peace. When Mr. Rusk was asked what the "motive" of the Soviet government is in failing to reconvene the Geneva Conference, he replied:

"I find it difficult to get into motives. I would suppose that Hanoi categorically refuses a Geneva Conference, and therefore the Soviet Union is unwilling to step out in front and join with the British co-chairman to convene a conference to which Hanoi and Peking both strenuously object."

While the Soviets may be inclined favorably to the idea of reconvening the conference, the Red Chinese have not been persuaded as yet that it would be to their interest, too. So the "encouragement" to which Mr. Rusk refers may be based on a hope that the Soviet government will finally assert itself and reconvene the Geneva Conference even if the Red Chinese are not too pleased with such a step.

ROME, Italy — This is a timeless town. There was a dusty water clock in the Villa Borghese and it was exact for 300 years. One day a boy heaved a rock through it. On the majestic facade of St. Pete's there are two clocks with china-blue numerals. One proclaims that the time is 7:40, the other insists it is 2:20. Both are correct twice a day.

The people of Italy are anti-time. They are nourished on conversational debate, and they have lost the art of terminating talk. Polite terms and expressions of felicitation or sympathy or slow-burn disagreement require many minutes, even before one approaches the subject.

In Rome, the people feel that watches should repose in jewelers' windows. The shops open at 8 a. m. and close at 1 p.m. They re-open at 4 p.m. and close at 8 p.m. The Eternal City is a vast conglomeration of shutters going up and down, or in and out. To buy a pair of sox the customer must understand that the clerk's greeting is going to be "una momento" and that, for the next fifteen minutes, there will be a swift conversation between a clerk and a customer who has already paid his bill.

On the road, Rome is different. It is the only city in the world where drivers going in both directions straddle the white line. To a Roman, a car is not a vehicle. It's a weapon. The streets are full of squeaky little cars with squeaky little horns, and language no one ever saw engraved on a church.

When a Roman driver sticks his hand out a window, it is not a turn signal. The hand points upward, and the fingers are meshed together in a gesture of contempt. At high speed on a four-lane autostrada, it is impossible to jam a cigarette paper between the fenders. One driver, trying to emerge from an impossible situation, yelled in Italian: "Don't move, don't breathe; the X-ray machine is on."

The telephone is Italy's penance. It can carry the fine Italian voice, the flowery words, but it doesn't translate the gestures, which represent forty percent of the meaning. It is possible that Mussolini blew the last war because of Alexander Graham Bell. Who could understand the boss when he had one hand on the transmitter?

This afternoon, I phoned the Vatican and asked for Monsignor Deskur. A polite voice replied: "It is nothing. It does not apply," and hung up. I tried seven times and now I can't distinguish between a busy signal and absolution. At our hotel, the Excelsior, the operator says hello and pulls the plug.

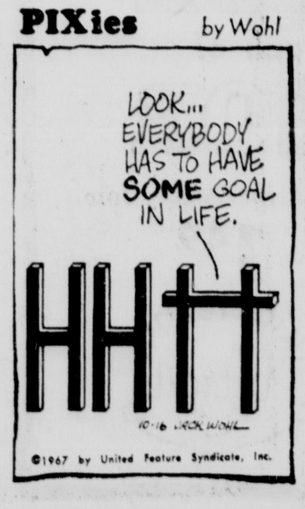

Ten years ago, it was impossible to get a plate of spaghetti in Rome unless it was served as a side dish. The Romans quietly insisted that the only people who would eat spaghetti as an entree were, in descending order, Napolitanos. Sicilianos, and Americancs. Now they have been converted. Rome serves spaghetti with meat sauce, and pizza stands are all over town. Ironically, they think they're copying from us.

Italy also boasts the biggest Communist party in Europe. It polls about 25 per cent of the vote. The people are natural political protesters. They are extremely Catholic, but anti-clerical. The average parish priest has a difficult time trying to get the men to attend mass, while at the same time remaining aloof from domestic squabbles.

The magic of Rome does not lend itself to words. The ruins of the Caesars stand in broken colonnades, but they are no more compelling than the nightly parade of Italian beauties on the via Veneto. The sparkling waters of the Trevi fountain are matched by spouting dolphins in other fountains around the city.

The timelessness of the city is exemplified, I believe, in the vast number of pilgrims from the nations of the world. A German priest, wandering, asked an Italian which way to walk to St. Peter's. "Straight ahead," said the Roman. I asked why he said it that way. "Because," he explained, "no matter where he stands in Rome, the way to St. Peter's is always straight ahead."

Chairman Mills Favors Millionaires Over Poor

WASHINGTON — Behind all the maneuvering over a tax increase, House Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., is deftly trying to shift the cost of escalating the Vietnam war from the rich to the poor.

Maneuver No. 1—Mills flatly refused to close the tax loopholes to raise the money needed to pay our growing military bills. This would have come out of the pockets of the privileged.

Maneuver No. 2—He demanded that President Johnson match the tax increase by cutting an equivalent amount out of the Great Society programs. This would come essentially out of the pockets of the poor.

The most equitable way to reduce the Vietnam war deficit should be to plug the tax leaks and compel the privileged to pay their fair share. Treasury officials acknowledge privately that a tax increase would not be needed at all if Congress would only stop up the loopholes.

Hardest hit would be the oil millionaires, who shout from the rooftops about their patriotism but who use the 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance to escape paying their share of the Vietnam war costs.

The able and amiable Mills, however, has always treated the oil millionaires as if they were underprivileged. He would rather squeeze the necessary military revenue out of social programs that help the needy.

He may deny, of course, that he wants to take food out of the mouths of the poor rather than deprive the oil millionaires of their sables. Yet in the back rooms of the Ways and Means Committee, the demands for spending cuts have been directed principally at the anti-poverty program.

In contrast, not a single Ways and Means member—least of all Mills—has shown the slightest disposition to tighten the oil depletion allowance. The most Mills has promised, simply to placate the public, is that he will take up tax reform next year (when the pressure is off).

Meanwhile, Mills has already pushed a tough, new Social Security bill through the House, cracking down on needy mothers who receive public assistance.

He has also shelved the tax increase, suspending it until the President comes up with a plan for cutting federal spending. No one knows better than Mills that $115 billion of the $136 billion budget is earmarked for national security expenditures fixed by law. This leaves $21 billion for all civilian expenditures. Of this, not much can be trimmed from established programs such as the postal service. Thus little is left to cut except the social programs.

Note: Mills' defiance shook the White House, which had always found him cooperative in the past. One reason, say committee insiders, was strictly personal. The Ways and Means chairman was disgruntled because President Johnson hadn't bothered to consult him during the backstage debate on the tax hike.

More Escalation of War

Two grim, unannounced decisions have brought a relentless intensification of the "Air War North," as the brass hats call the bombing of North Vietnam. Our planes not only are striking targets within 20 seconds flying time of the Chinese border, but they are also hitting facilities, heretofore taboo, where Soviet citizens may be killed.

President Johnson reached these dangerous decisions after a painstaking policy discussion. They are:

1. Despite appeals from world statesmen and domestic doves for a bombing pause, the President has decided to keep up the air attacks at least for the remainder of the year. He will take another look at the situation during the traditional Christmas-New Year truce.

2. Because the monsoons will hamper the bombing beginning next month, the Air Force will blast North Vietnam harder than ever while the weather is good. For the unreported fact is that our all-weather planes have had trouble hitting the targets in foul weather.

The air strikes in South Vietnam, known as the "Air War South," will also be stepped up.

President Johnson, however, has not approved all the targets the Joint Chiefs of Staff want to hit. They would like to knock out the North Vietnamese ports of Haiphong, Cam Pha and Hon Gai. Furthermore they also want to hit the remaining unbombed airfields in North Vietnam.

They have also submitted a list of targets, both military and industrial, in population centers. They point out that the communists, aware of our reluctance to hit populated places, are using them as sanctuaries. The Reds haul their military supplies in quick spurts from civilian sanctuary to civilian sanctuary. Their missile-launching sites and antiaircraft gun emplacements have also been deliberately concentrated in civilian areas.

Secretary of Defense McNamara argued vigorously against bombing civilian centers. He noted that the infiltration rate has increased from 1,500 a month at the end of 1965 to 6,500 a month today, despite the bombing. As fast as the bombs fall, he argued, Hanoi merely releases more men from its large standing army to infiltrate across the 17th parallel.

In the end, the President accepted most of the joint chiefs' arguments but also adopted McNamara's caution.

Intelligence Digest

The communist agitators in Hong Kong appear to have been left high and dry. They were taking their orders from Tao Chu, the top communist in the Canton area, who has now been accused by the Red Guards of thinking anti-Mao thoughts. Tao Chu's authority has been undermined, and the Chinese troublemakers in Hong Kong no longer are getting support from the Canton leadership. . . . The Russians are preparing to launch a space spectacular, probably this month, to celebrate the 50th Bolshevik anniversary and the 10th anniversary of the first Sputnik.

Henry J. Taylor Says

Mismanagement Costly to Air Force

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Instructors at the great Air Force Academy, the service's equivalent to Annapolis and West Point, are teaching strategic principles that are fouled-up by the conduct of the Vietnam war.

"Could anything be more incredible," one affiliated airman stated to me, "than to see American forces of half a million, serving a nation possessing the greatest aggregate of land, sea and air power the world has ever known, mucking around in the swamplands and paddy fields of Southeast Asia still nibbled to a standstill?"

The absolute cream of the Air Force Academy crop is in Vietnam, suffering shattering, heartbreaking losses. We now have 140 airfields in Vietnam, including nine jet airstrips 10,000 feet long. The adjacent Thailand complex, with 40,000 U. S. airmen and 550 planes is tremendous. Carriers catapult flyers from the Gulf of Tonkin. We're even using Navy planes designed to carry nuclear bombs as if they were World War II low-level intruders. Our great Strategic Air Force, based on Guam, not designed for such use, is used nearly around the clock.

Hitler sent 1,200 bombers over London on Sunday, May 10, 1941—the largest air attack of the war. But one whole squadron of Nazi Heinkel III-K bombers, their best, did not deliver as much bomb tonnage as one of our B-52s.

Throughout four years we dropped 500,000 tons of bombs in the vast Pacific areas. In only the past 10 months alone we've dropped more than that in an area hardly larger than the State of Michigan.

Asked about the questionable results, the air professionals pull out Secretary Robert McNamara's testimony before a Congressional committee regarding the Johnson-McNamara target selections:

"The targets influencing enemy operations are the roads and the war materials being moved over them. The North Vietnamese harbors, electric power, dams, etc., are not targets of fundamental consequence."

Experienced strategists know that as early as the African campaign in World War II we found it absolutely impossible to stop supplies by attacking one truck at a time, blowing up bridges, rails, etc. Accordingly, less than 10 per cent of our World War II bomb tonnage was targeted against roads, railways and the vehicles moving on them.

The Johnson-McNamara decision is absolutely unprecedented. I gather it has been merely a long-shot experiment in a field where the previous incontestable proof taught here made it a ghastly folly and that this overruling of our air authorities has proven directly responsible for a large part of the war's total cost before the endless failure forced partial amendments.

If "history is a lantern," the lantern must have gone out.

The tested doctrine requires that when enemy airfields are hit they must be hit simultaneously, not in a protracted schedule of one by one. First, much of the enemy air power remains a force in being. Second, regrouping beefs up the remaining airdromes. Behind the scenes able Gen. John P. McConnell, chief of the Air Force, futilely pressed for the proper method as long ago as March 2, 1965 by the official record.

Air strategists find incalculable what our flyers and troops have paid for that mistake performed under the slogan "gradual escalation."

In fact, air strategists stare in shocked protest at this whole sloganized, unworkable formula and condemn it, as has Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, as unsuitable to save lives and end the war. The fundamental accepted throughout the military of the world is Stonewall Jackson's classic: "When war comes you must draw the sword and throw away the scabbard."

Strategists are equally aghast that, after six long years, President Johson and Secretary McNamara still refuse to permit a unified command and appoint a supreme commander in the field. The air war is directed by Adm. U. S. Grant Sharp from Camp H. M. Smith in Honolulu (CINCPAC headquarters) where he is commander in chief of U. S. forces in the Pacific area, not by Gen. William C. Westmoreland in Vietnam, as popularly supposed.

After hearing the private dismays of our military commanders, at NATO's headquarters, in Naples, Brussels, Rota, Spain, regarding the mismanagement of this horrible war, the conclusion is inescapable that the American people are the victims of the greatest military scandal in the history of the United States.

Tax Opponents Bolstered By Unemployment Rise

By WILLIAM J. EATON
Chicago Daily News Service

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—Opponents of President Johnson's surtax proposal are expected to seize on a sharp rise in the national unemployment rate to bolster their case against higher taxes now.

The Labor Department, however, attributes the increase in the jobless rate from 3.8 to 4.1 per cent last month to a surge in the number of women seeking jobs. It says the job picture was still "strong" in September. Unemployment among adult men fell slightly.

Arthur M. Ross, commissioner of labor statistics, said yesterday that the economy is still in a "modest but sustained expansion." Other statistics backed this view.

Businessmen added to their inventories by $375,000,000 in August—a plus sign. Retail sales climbed in September to $26.7 billion, just a shade over the August figure.

The general prosperity, according to Ross, helped draw an additional 1,000,000 women into the job market last month, about twice as high as the normal monthly gain. Although most found work, there was a 250,000 increase in the number of jobless women in September.

This is the month that children go back to school, so many mothers had more free time to seek employment. A change in the method of taking the job surveys—inquiring about job-hunting in the past month instead of the past week — also may have elevated the women's unemployment figure.

Even without the new argument, foes of the President's plea for a 10-per cent surtax on corporation and individual incomes were confident they have blocked action this year.

Rep. John W. Byrnes (R.-Wis.), ranking GOP member of the House Ways and Means Commitee, said the tax bill is dead even if Mr. Johnson comes through with the $5 billion or more in spending cuts demanded by the committee's chairman, Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.).

House GOP leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan decried Johnson administration hints of cutbacks in highway construction funds as a "red herring." Ford said such reductions would not affect the budget deficit since highway money comes from a special fund built up by taxes on gasoline, not out of the Treasury general revenues.

Provisions of Proposed N.Y. State Constitution

(Editors: This is the first in a series of five articles discussing provisions of the remodeled state constitution to be submitted to New York voters in the Nov. 7 election)

BY CHARLES DUMAS

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The fate of New York State's remodeled constitution in the November election is inseparably linked to a religious issue bound to stir the emotions of many voters.

Although the Constitutional Convention made numerous changes in the state's basic charter, none is as likely to affect the electorate's decision as much as the proposal to repeal the present ban on financial aid to church-operated schools.

The existing provision, known as the Blaine Amendment, dates back to 1894, when it was written into the charter as an outgrowth of a presidential campaign highlighted by arguments over "rum, Romanism and rebellion."

While many Roman Catholics regard it primarily as a noxious vestige of religious prejudice that should be expunged, others of their faith take a more practical view of repeal—the prospect that their parochial school system will become eligible for millions of dollars in sorely needed assistance.

The Democratic-controlled convention did not really need the strong prodding it received from Catholic Church interests to vote overwhelmingly for repeal—as it did without hesitation.

In place of the present stringent prohibition, the convention wrote into the constitution language similar to the U.S. Constitution's First Amendment edict against enacting any laws "respecting an establishment of religion."

In a further effort to placate those who argued that repeal of Blaine would violate the traditional separation of church and state, the delegates added a provision entitling any citizen to file suit to prevent unconstitutional spending of public funds.

The act was hailed not only by Catholic clergy, who are mounting a massive campaign for approval of the proposed constitution, but also by Orthodox Jews who operate some schools of their own and thus stand to benefit similarly from repeal of Blaine.

Protestant and other Jewish elements continue to oppose the repeal, however, and are campaigning vigorously against adoption of the new constitution for that reason.

The decision of the convention's Democratic leaders to present the new charter to the voters in a single package was motivated partly by an assumption that they would draw a heavy "yes" vote from Catholic voters—about 40 per cent of the electorate.

Prominent Republicans, who dislike other features of the charter, have tried to counter by promising that the 1968 Legislature will take steps to repeal Blaine if the voters turn down the one-package offering.

How much aid would be available to church-operated schools if Blaine is rescinded is still an open question. It depends on how far the government might choose to go under limitations of the federal stricture.

Another controversial change in the education field would make annual registration of pupils, rather than average daily attendance, the basis for apportioning public school aid. Upstate Republicans oppose this on the ground it would help New York City, which has the highest percentage of dropouts, at the expense of upstate communities.

Elsewhere in the education field, the most significant provision would direct the Legislature to establish a system of higher education that "may" include free tuition in public and private colleges.

This is a watered-down version of the original plan of Convention President Anthony J. Travia to mandate free tuition. Gov. Rockefeller and other Republicans resisted that plan on the ground that tuition income was needed to finance expansion of the State University system.

The new charter also would give constitutional mention for the first time to the State University and the City University of New York. This was done to protect the institutions against any possible moves to abolish them.

Viet War as 1968 Issue Is Seen Eluding the GOP

WASHINGTON (NEA)

A high-placed Democrat seriously doubts that the Republicans, for all their recent stirrings, can make an effective clear-cut 1968 campaign issue of the controversial Vietnam war.

He holds this view in full expectation that the war will still be raging a year from now;

"Hanoi is not going to negotiate before the election even if we offer them California."

This Democrat's argument is that Republican choices on the war issue are roughly as limited as those President Johnson believes he has.

By this notion, the GOP can neither endorse all-out war nor suggest withdrawal without splitting their own ranks widely and perhaps losing crucial support in the electorate.

Republican minority leader Everet Dirksen's newest lashing of the President's GOP critics is a powerful sign of what would happen if any really heavy dove-ward pressure developed in the party.

The top Democrat contends that the Republicans will have to propose some kind of tightly governed war which in real fact would be very close to the President's own course—with emphasis on limitation, on "prudence," on selective attack.

Their great need will be to make this seem different. They can argue, in part, that merely having a "fresh face" in the White House will enlarge the outlook for settlement, even though the policies pursued wil be the same. Many Republicans already are trying to make this case.

Beyond this, they must conduct a search for variations on an existing theme. Here, too, the quest has already begun.

The Democratic source suggests that this explains what he calls the Republicans' recent "English country dances," proposals that have the sound of something new but would not materially alter the concept of the conflict as a limited war for limited goals.

These include restricting bombing to tactical war zones or adjacent supply areas and an end to "search-and-destroy" missions.

These and other inventive notions may be heard often in the months ahead. But they will be judged more closely as the 1968 campaign warms up, and particularly after the Republicans get a presidential nominee and a Vietnam policy plank in their platform next August. Says the rival party source:

There's only one dart board up there now (LBJ), but later on there will be two, and both will be fired at."

No criticism from Republicans made as big an impact as that from Kentucky's Sen. Thruston Morton. He is noted for his crusty candor and his political sensitivity. When he spoke out, it was widely assumed he had scaned the electorate and read there an ominous disenchantment with the war.

Yet there are many here who share the view of the quoted Democrat — that Republicans will be hard-pressed to devise convincing alternatives, especially since three of their four leading nominee prospects (Nixon, Reagan and Rockefeller) are hawkish.

Some politicians in both parties are suggesting, moreover, that this latest flurry of doubt over the war confuses one thing badly: To what extent are newly disaffected voters—and responsive politicians—voicing war weariness, and to what extent are they questioning the fundamental strategic idea of our being in South Vietnam and Southeast Asia?

They may be saying our staying power is running out. Or they may be arguing that our "world power" has overreached itself and should be pulled back. We had better know which it is, for it affects our whole future—and the free world's.

Car in Mishap Hit Second Time at Scene

A car operated by Eileen Barton, 20, of 192 Salem Street, Port Ewen, was involved in two mishaps within a few minutes early Sunday, according to Kingston State Police.

Trooper John McMickle said the young woman was driving east on Route 28, Town of Olive, at 12:20 a. m. when she approached a curve. The vehicle went out of control, hit the soft shoulder and crashed into guard posts, coming to rest across the eastbound traffic lane.

Miss Barton sustained bruises of the chest and suffered shock. A passenger, Doreen Emmick, 20, of 57 Montrepose Avenue, Kingston, received lacerations of the face.

A few minutes after the mishap, Herbert Vogel, 26, of Box 39, Woodstock, was driving his car east on Route 28 when he came upon the Barton vehicle which was blocking the driving lane. Trooper Mickle said Vogel was unable to stop and his car rammed the left rear of the Barton car and shoved it across the road.

Vogel's car left the right shoulder of the highway. He received possible head and leg injuries. The three injured were taken to Benedictine Hospital by Doctors Ambulance Service. Trooper J. J. Brainard investigated.

Form Marine League For Youths 8 to 17

Frank Raffaldi, commandant of the Ulster Detachment Marine Corps League, has announced the appointment of Gilbert E. Gray of RD 5, Kingston, commanding officer of the Young Marines in Ulster County.

Gray, who has served as commandant of the Ulster Detachment three times and has held the office of East Area Vice Commandant for the Department of New York in 1966, will immediately assume the new post. He will endeavor to get a program started in the county soon with other appointed officers.

The Young Marines will consist of boys between the ages of 8 and 17 and must have permission of their parents to enroll as members. He need not be a son of a Marine. Any boy is eligible to enroll.

Gray said a membership drive will be conducted in January to recruit members. Gray, who operates the Doctors Ambulance Service, Kingston, will be assisted in setting up a program by Marines Joseph Sullivan, Eugene White and Jack Kerbert. Gray is a Korean War veteran having been discharged as a sergeant in 1954.

Jersey Fire Fatals Leave 21 Fatherless

CLIFFSIDE PARK, N.J. (AP) — The deaths of five firemen trapped by a collapsing wall leaves 14 children under the age of 21 fatherless. The Ridgefield volunteer firemen also are survived by five widows.

A fire department spokesman said $8,000 had been pledged to a fund for the survivors sponsored by the Hudson Dispatch, a Union City newspaper.

Bergen County authorities say they are investigating the possibility of arson in the fire Sunday at Cardinal Lanes bowling alley in this town just across the Hudson River from New York City. The Ridgefield Fire Department scheduled memorial services for Wednesday.

One civilian and 10 other firemen also were injured when the cinder-block wall collapsed as about 130 firemen from eight communities tried to control the fire in the one-story building.

The civilian and one firemen remained in a hospital today, but their conditions were not serious.

Joseph Licata, a volunteer fireman from Palisades Park, said, "The trapped firemen were just about to enter the building. Then, all of a sudden, the whole place just went 'whoosh' and the flames traveled right down the building from front to back, blowing out the roof and a side wall."

The sole survivor of the hose crew, Henry Dengler Jr., 22, said he was at the end of the hose and farthest from the wall.

Rocky Asks Curb Of Drives for '68 Nomination

NEW YOK (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says he has asked one group in New Hampshire and another in his own state to stop pushing him for next year's Republican Presidential nomination.

The Governor's office made public Saturday two letters, one to Nicholas G. Copadis of Manchester, N.H., and the other to Irwin V. Barash, chairman of the Independent Citizens for Rockefeller in New York.

"Now that Rockefeller placed matters on a personal basis," Copadis said, in Manchester, "We certainly don't want to embarrass the governor."

Copadis said he will meet this week with other Rockefeller supporters in New Hampshire to decide what to do.

A spokesman for the New York group said "we expected the letter but it will not change our belief that he is the only candidate for the nomination."

The texts of both letters were identical. The one to the New Hampshire group was dated Oct. 3, and the other was dated Oct. 11.

After "deep consideration," Rockefeller concluded that "for me to get into this thing in any way would be divisive and destructive and defeating of the very objectives that you and I share for the party and the country."

The letter continued, "I am asking all my friends not to do me the great injustice and discourtesy of turning my career against the objectives on which it was built."

Greene Man Dies After Fire Rescue

A 73-year-old Greene County man died Saturday of carbon moxonide poisoning after he rescued his wife from a burning bed in their residence at Purling, accoridng to Leeds State Police.

Sergeant F. W. Hilfrank said Floyd Fox discovered fire in a bed where his wife, Edna, 47, was sleeping. The elderly man fought the flames and managed to extinguish the blaze before assisting his wife to safety, authorities said.

Troopers reported Fox suffered smoke inhalation and was rushed by ambulance to Greene County Memorial Hospital, Catskill. He later died of carbon monoxide poisoning, authorities said. He was pronounced dead by Dr. Joseph Cally of Catskill.

Senior BCI Investigators James J. Buckley and Michael Mattera, Trooper T. F. Parker and Greene County Coroner Leland Cunningham investigated.

500 Attend Council Youth Musical Rally

Fair Street Reformed Church, Kingston, was swaying with the sound of guitar and banjos Sunday night as nearly 500 area youth from local Protestant and Roman Catholic Churches joined in song with the 70 voice mass chorus of the Youth Fellowship from the First Presbyterian Church of Poughkeepsie.

The hour and a half program entitled, Up With People, was sponsored by the Kingston Area Council of Churches, and consisted of light musical folk numbers all directed to bringing people closer together in one brotherhood under God. The whole tenor of the evening was such a positive one, and the enthusiasm engendered so high, that it should not be long before Kingston, too, will organize an Up With People group.

After the program refreshments were served by the Junior and Senior High Youth Fellowships of the Fair Street Church in the Parish Room.

The Rev. Edwin C. Coon, chairman of the Christian education Committee of the Council, announces that the next area Council Youth Rally will be held on Jan. 14 when the men from Holy Cross Episcopal Monastery will present selections from modern folk and jazz masses. These gatherings, though specifically designed for all area youth, are open to the general adult public.

The next regular meeting of the Council of Churches will be held at the Port Ewen Reformed Church on Thursday, Oct. 26, at which time Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick has been invited to meet with representatives of area churches.

Faces Car Theft

A Kingston teenager was arraigned in City Court this morning on charges of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle after being apprehended by Ellenville State Police in a 1968 Le Mans allegedly taken from the Jerry Martin Pontiac parking lot, 708 Broadway, Sunday night.

The case of John Miller, 16, of 66 West Union Street was put off until tomorrow at 9 a. m. for the purpose of obtaining counsel. According to police, Miller was arrested in the company of a minor. The Pontiac was brand new and had dealer's plates on it. Miller is presently in the Ulster County Jail.

Pa. Tax Upped

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Gov. Raymond P. Shafer signed a bill today raising the state tax on cigarettes 5 cents per pack.

The tax boost is expected to add $55 million in state revenue, to be used for numerous programs.

Shafer signed the bill at 12:01 a.m. and it took effect immediately.

Questions Supervisors On Pollution

FRED KUHNEL

"Why hasn't the Ulster County Board of Supervisors done something constructive about air pollution in our area?"

This is one of many questions raised by Fred Kuhnel, Democrat Candidate for County Legislator for the 2nd Legislative District. (Town of Hurley, Kingston, Marbletown and Ulster).

Kuhnel charges the Republican administration with gross neglect in the areas of air pollution, mishandling of the Community College, failure to provide adequate public recreational facilities and stifling of the industrial growth of Ulster County.

He is a graduate of Kingston High School, class of '49. He is a Navy veteran of the Korean conflict. He has been a resident of the 2nd Legislative District for 21 years. Kuhnel was associated in business with his father, Herbert Kuhnel, in Stone Ridge. He is presently area sales representative for Wine Merchants Ltd. in Schenectady. He is a past treasurer of Kingston Toastmasters and was recently installed as administrative vice president. He was the Democratic candidate for supervisor, Town of Hurley, two years ago.

Kuhnel feels that any representative should be close to his constituents. He feels that his line of work, sales, brings him in daily contact with the people and thereby more aware of their pressing problems. As he puts it, "If you really want to know what the people think, work in a corner grocery store for 60 hours a week and listen. I have and it's been a very educational experience."

Camera Club Lists Speaker For Wednesday

A renowned author-teacher-photographer will be the guest speaker at the Kingston Camera Club meeting, Wednesday 7:30 p. m.

Chamber Fete Set for Tuesday

The featured speaker of Tuesday morning's meeting of Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce at the Gov. Clinton Hotel will be John J. Roberts, executive vice president of the Empire State Chamber of Commerce.

Roberts, a graduate of Union College and Harvard Law School, will speak on the topic, "A Businessman's View of the Proposed State Constitution." The meeting will be in the Crystal Room at 7:45 a. m.

In addition to Roberts there will be a question and answer period in which district delegates H. Clark Bell and S. James Matthews will participate.

Matthews, Chamber president, has urged all members and other interested members of the business community to call the Chamber office for reservations for the breakfast tomorrow morning.

P-TA Endorses Transportation Bond Passage

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Board of Directors of the New York State Teachers Association endorsed today the $2.5 - billion transportation bond issue that will be on the election ballot Nov. 7.

G. Howard Goold, executive secretary of the association, said development and expansion of the state's transportation facilities were necessary for economic growth. A healthy economy, he said, would assure funds needed for public education and other essential services.

The association announced previously that it opposed the proposed new state constitution, also to be put to the voters Nov. 7.

Investor Forum

FRUITS OF THRIFT

A towering structure is being erected in America to ease the financial needs of the retired and the elderly. Frequently it looms into my sight and invariably gives me cheer.

Recently on Fifth Ave. in New York I ran into two old friends who were exuberant. One of them said, "We haven't a financial worry. Our pensions are taking care of us. How fortunate we were when we signed up for our company-sponsored pension fund."

Right now in this country the assets of pension funds are worth over $180 billion. In four years from late 1963 to October, 1967, these assets have grown by about $50 billion.

During inflationary periods such as America is now experiencing, it is easy for millions of people to neglect or foresake thrift and savings habits. Dollars slip away here and there, and, as the years pass, armies of individuals build up no cash reserves so that when the rainy days come they are in financial distress.

Regardless of inflation and everything that undermines the integrity of the dollar, I like insurance policies for all money squanderers whose high, high standards of living make it impossible for them to save.

Pensions are wonderful. They are made possible usually by the co-operative efforts of enterprise and the individual. The present value of pension assets totaling $180 billion is eloquent testimony to the effectiveness of saving.

But in America there are millions of professional people, many of them working alone, whose work is so individual, exhausting and exhilarating that they forget what the fruits of thrift can do in meeting the financial responsibilities of later years.

Recently, a great commercial artist, who made from $50,000 to $100,000 a year during his 25 years of productive life, passed away, leaving his wife destitute.

Of course, this is an exceptional case. But it does point up the necessity for all persons to incorporate in their lives a thrift saving-investment pattern.

This artist should have carried $100,000 of insurance —life and endowment. It would have been easy for him during his period of maximum efficiency to set aside several thousand dollars yearly with which to pay insurance premiums.

Insurance policies can be a boon to spendthrift individuals. For they force them to save.

New York has city, state and federal taxes. Apartment rents are rising. Daily expenses are increasing. In such an atmosphere, it is easy to neglect thrift and saving. Some, favored by pension plans, will enjoy the fruits of thrift.

Others, like myself, will have to build their own future financial self-reliance. And it should be done before it is too late.

THE FORUM

Q—I am 44, a professional man. Last year I made $32,000 and didn't save a penny. What should I do?

A—Call in a good insurance man and take out a life policy and a 25-year endowment.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved slightly higher on balance early Monday in active trading.

Gains and losses of leading issues ranged from fractions to around a point.

About 100 more gains than losses were posted among the 1,150 or so issues traded early in the session.

Blue chips put on an indifferent performance, however, and the result was only a slight gain in the industrial average while the over-all average of industrials, rails and utilities was off a bit.

A big trading play was given some relatively low-priced issues, including Livingston Oil, Great Western Financial, Atlas Corp. and Del. E. Webb, all of which made fractional gains.

Also active, Gulf & Western, Occidental Petroleum and Purex tacked on a point or more apiece.

Eastman Kodak slumped a point despite record net income reported. Du Pont was unchanged. Ford eased. GM was up a fraction. International Nickel and Xerox added a point each. Polaroid slipped about 1½.

Steel Import Quota Bill Set for Study

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — This may be an historic week in trade relations, a frustrating one for free trade advocates, a significant one in revealing the changing sentiments of America.

Five years ago, in October 1962, the most ambitious round of tariff cuts ever attempted in this century was begun with passage of the Trade Expansion Act.

This week a wave of protectionist sentiment is expected to be heard from Congress a remarkable and partially inexplicable change of direction in only five years.

Lower Tariffs

American enthusiasm for cutting trade barriers five years ago was great. Through lower worldwide tariffs the United States hoped, among other things, to boost its exports enough to reduce the balance of payments deficit.

The trade act passed with a large majority of both houses. It was extolled as the beginning of an era, and for nearly five years negotiators for the big trading nations hacked away as tariffs.

Early this year, finally, the Kennedy Round of tariff cuts, named for the president who persuaded other nations to join us in the tariff-cutting attempt, reached a successful conclusion.

Agree to Reductions

The European Common Market reduced tariffs on more than $10 billion of imports. The United States, Canada, the European Free Trade Association and Japan, among others, agreed to gradual reductions in trade barriers.

Now the opposite of free trade could be gaining support. Several widely supported bills are before Congress to protect domestic industries, mostly by restricting imports through quotas. Among them are textiles, watches, steel, oil.

To William Roth, special U.S. representative for trade negotiations, the prospect is appalling. Protectionist sentiment he believes, could "restore the chaos in international trade that we knew during the depression of the 1930s."

We may be on the eve of a movement, he said, "that will wipe out the progress of 30 years unless those American industries concerned with world trade make themselves heard loud and clear."

Notes Crude Estimate

Roth feels that an increase in American tariffs or a reduction of imports through quotas would result in similar moves against American products. This retaliation could be enormous, he feels, because pending U.S. bills would effect $3.6 billion of imports into the country.

"And this is a very crude estimate, definitely a minimum, not a maximum," he said in a speech. The $3.6 billion total is "our rock bottom estimate."

A lot of senators and representatives feel differently.

Today, a bill for mandatory steel import quotas is expected to be introduced into Congress. Curiously, one of the arguments in support of quotas is the balance of payments, the same argument used by free traders.

Sen Vance Hartke, D-Ind., feels that "surging steel imports have aggravated the U.S. balance of payments deficit, adversely affected employment opportunities . . .and posed a threat to national security."

Another bill, already passed by the House, would permit the president to limit imports of foreign products produced under labor standards inferior to ours. This, of course, would include many thousands of items.

Another bill, with 20 senators supporting it, would establish quotas on products that contribute to economic problems for domestic producers. And 40 senators desire a bill that would increase the number of cases on which antidumping duties might be applied.

Protectionists and free traders always have put on good battles through American history, their fundamentally different philosophies sometimes stripping a lot of confusion from issues. The battle is on. It should be a good one.

More Income Possible Without Grave Added Risk

Q—We are in our late 50s. We own 500 Standard Oil of California and 500 Hercules, Inc., and have a satisfactory savings account. We are now faced with heavy medical expenses and need more income. Can you suggest other stocks paying a higher return?—A.H.

A—You own two excellent stocks. It is unfortunate that you must switch them to take care of your medical expenses, but I believe you can do so without seriously imparing your security. Standard of California — excluding stock dividends — yields 4 per cent, and I would switch this stock into equal dollar amounts of Standard of New Jersey, International Harvester, Armco Steel, Winn-Dixie Stores, Commercial Credit. These stocks yield an average of 5.2 per cent on reasonably well-covered dividends.

Utilities are relatively depressed in price because they react closely to money rates. You could double your yield to an average of 5 per cent by selling Hercules, Inc., and putting the proceeds into Washington Water Power, New England Electric, Baltimore Gas & Electric, Duquesne Light, Northern States Power. This will leave you rather heavily invested in the group, but with good geographic distribution you need not be too concerned about this element.

Q—We bought Compufund. Can you tell me anything about these shares and why they are not listed on the stock sheets?—R.T.

A—I suggest, if I may, that you change your ideas about investing. The time to check on a security is before — not after — you have made a commitment. You wouldn't buy a house without a thorough investigation, and buying securities requires even more careful consideration. Compufund is a small mutual fund, offered initially in March, 1967, which seeks maximum growth through the use of computers. It will probably be quoted among other funds when it gains broader distribution. It is up about 20 per cent since issuance.

Second Mistake

Errant Bomb Kills Three

SAIGON (AP)—A U. S. Marine plane accidentally hit the Marine outpost of Con Thien with a bomb Sunday, killing three Marines and wounding nine in the second mistaken bombing there in three days.

Communist shellfire wounded another eight Marines at the muddy base guarding Red infiltration routes just south of the demilitarized zone.

A mistaken bombing Friday killed two Marines and wounded 21. Both incidents were being investigated.

The defenders of Con Thien came under repeated savage shellings last month from North Vietnamese believed attempting to take the outpost but overwhelming American firepower beat back the assaults.

U.S. B52 bombers, which play a major role in the battle around Con Thien, swept into North Vietnam 50 miles above the demilitarized zone, their deepest raid in 10 months and blasted the Mu Gia Pass. This is the main entry to the Ho Chi Minh trail, which carries Communist troops and supplies through Laos and Cambodia to South Vietnam.

The eight-engine, $8-million bombers are usually kept away from possible danger from North Vietnamese missiles, which can reach them even at the 30,000-foot altitudes where they fly.

The bombers struck truck parks, supply concentrations and fuel storage sties at the pass after coming from Thailand over Laos so they would be in North Vietnam only briefly.

Today, they were back pounding a suspected Red infiltration route 10 miles above Con Thien and a suspected buildup point 2.5 miles southwest of the Marine fortress.

Weather hampered strikes against North Vietnam Sunday and halted all raids around the vital port of Haiphong but the man who has commanded the Haiphong campaign promised more missions in the continuing effort to isolate the port.

Holding a farewell news conference in Saigon before leaving for command of the Pacific Fleet in Hawaii, the 7th Fleet commander, Vice Adm. John J. Hyland Jr., said the recent raids had cut all four of the city's main bridges.

Acknowledging that the North Vietnamese were repairing the bridges and had set up temporary pontoon structures, Hyland said Navy planes would hit them again "when the time is ripe."

Hyland made no direct comment on whether he was satisfied with the recent gradual relaxation of the Pentagon's ban on raids against certain sensitive targets in the North. But he said military men want "all those targets turned loose."

The U.S. Command reported heavy damage to at least three of five targets in the Hanoi-Haiphong area that were hit for the first time Saturday. They included boat yards, a storage area and a radar installation.

It also reported three planes losses over the weekend but said none was connected with raids in the Hanoi-Haiphong area. They brought to 701 the number of combat planes announced as downed over the North.

Air Force, Navy and Marine pilots were barred from the North Vietnamese heartland Sunday by bad weather. All 125 missions flown during the day were directed at supply lines stretching south from Hanoi to the demilitarized zone.

U.S. planes have been trying to damage Communist supply lines as much as possible before the impending start of steady bad weather.

A U.S. spokesman said the raiders hit the small airfield of Bai Thuong northwest of Vinh.

The field, now used mainly as a storage area, was one of 12 airports originally listed by the Pentagon as worthy targets. These included six smaller fields and six MIG airports. All have been bombed with the exception of the major MIG fields at Phuc Yen and Gia Lam, both in the Hanoi area.

In South Vietnam, guerrilla gunfire brought down an evacuaton helicopter and a light spotter plane.

Attempts to lift out the downed spotter plane with a big Chinook helicopter provoked a stiff fight in the Mekong Delta. U.S. helicopters and Navy patrol boats moved in and their fire killed seven guerrillas, headquarters said.

In ground action, the U.S. Command reported that more than 100 Viet Cong mortar shells hit a U.S. Special Forces camp and two nearby South Vietnamese army installations 15 miles west of Saigon, killing two Americans and wounding 11 and causing some Vietnamese casualties.

Immolation Victim's Husband Blames Viet

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The husband of the 56-year-old woman, who police say burned herself to death on the steps of the Federal Building, says she "had a deep feeling against the slaughter in Vietnam" and "must have felt she had to do this."

Police identified the victim as Florence Beaumont of suburban La Puente, wife of a commercial artist, Goerge Beaumont, and mother of daughters aged 18 and 20.

Beaumont said his wife had told him, "It's not worth living when you have no redress from your representatives. All you receive from this is form letters."

A Federal Building security guard said the woman poured a can of gasoline over her body and set herself on fire Sunday afternoon.

Police said the woman was apparently dead before a federal guard put the flames out with a fire extinguisher.

Officers said they found literature opposing the Vietnam war in Mrs. Beaumont's purse and in the pickup truck she parked nearby.

Mrs. Beaumont's husband said she was active in antiwar groups in the Los Angeles area. "She was a perfectly normal, dedicated person, and felt she had to do this just like the people who burned themselves in Vietnam," he said.

"I never felt she would take this road," he said, "but I can see how she might have felt she had to do it."

Lomenzo Backs New York City's Gun Controls

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Secretary of State John P. Lomenzo said Monday the passage of the City Council's proposed gun control laws should set a state and national example.

Lomenzo said "Legislation....and regulation of the sale and possession of rifles and shotguns represents an excellent beginning toward affording protection to the public at large."

In remarks prepared for delivery at a public hearing on firearm legislation, Lomenzo said "the unilateral interests of a few must yield to the welfare and safety of the community as a whole."

Although the proposed law relates only to New York City, Lomenzo said, it could set an example and lay the groundwork for other municipalities and states to start similar legislative programs.

He said, "to achieve maximum possible safeguarding of our people, ...the enactment of a federal law would be the most desirable and effective step."

Our Boys Write From Vietnam

Editor's Note: The Kingston Daily Freeman is privileged to publish letters written to the Ulster County Vietnam's Servicemen's Committee of Ulster Hose Co. No. 5 by Kingston area men serving with the armed forces in Vietnam. We hope in this way we can better let our readers know how our boys in service feel.

Pfc. William M. Knox writes a letter and a poem as follows:

"I am a G.I. serving in Vietnam and would like to receive a paper from my home town. (The Kingston Freeman will be sent to Knox by the Ulster County Vietnam Servicemen's Committee of Ulster Hose Co. 5) I am serving in the Army as a medic and I am proud to serve my country.

"I also send with this letter a poem I wrote while doing my share of the work over here."

Knox's poem:

"We're here because we want to stay free.
"We're here to help the less fortunate to see.
"We're here because we fight
for what's right.
"We're here to make America's
days bright.
"We're here so that our families
can sleep.
"We're here in the darkness so
black, so deep.
"We're here for the things we all love so.
"We're here because of bloodshed so long ago.
"We're here for the ones that we love so dear.
"No reason to say more, that's why we're here."

An article published in the 1st Bn. 27th Infantry paper at Chu Chi, Vietnam, refers to Pfc. Lester Hatcher, 43 Strand, Kingston. The article notes that Hatcher had a story to tell to his GI friends in Vietnam which indicates he cannot tell a VC from a water buffalo.

The article:

"While on guard at Fire Support Base Gladys as a member of Marsh's Marauders, Pfc. Hatcher got quite excited when he heard something move about 25 meters to his front. He woke up SP4 Gary Montgomery who explained to him in so many words, that there is no such a thing as a VC with a tail and horns, that 'moo's' when a stone is thrown at him."

A 2/c Michael G. Kight writes:

"I would like to thank the people of the Ulster Fire Co. and all the people of Ulster County who so kindly contributed to send the packages to all the GI's from Ulster County who are stationed in Vietnam.

"I know that it must have taken a lot of someone's time to prepare these packages for shipping, and that it really makes a guy feel great knowing that there is someone back home that cares about us being over here.

"All the items that were sent are very useful and very seldom seen here. I am from West Hurley and have been over here since April. I am attached to the 14th Air Commandos at Nha Trang Air Base.

"In closing I would like to say thanks for myself and all the other GI's from Ulster County."

Conrad Moore serving with the Infantry writes:

"I want to thank you very much for sending The Kingston Daily Freeman to me and other residents of Ulster County who are here in Vietnam.

"With The Kingston Daily Freeman you have made it possible for us to 'catch" the news and to see what's happening in our home town. Once again I thank you very much."

Sp/4 Robert Geipel writes:

"I want to take this opportunity to express my sincere and heartfelt thanks to all the people who have made my life a little bit brighter. The packages you have sent to me leave me almost speechless at times just to know that so many people back home are sacrificing and thinking so much of you.

"This makes our tour over here a little bit easier. The radio you sent me was the biggest surprise yet. When I opened the package in the barracks I couldn't believe it. Some of my buddies were simply amazed to think your people back home in your county could do anything as wonderful as that.

"Since some of the guys over here never get anything from home, I usually split my packages with them. They also want me to thank you. All I can say is thanks to all of you wonderful people for putting some sunshine and spirit in my life. May God bless all of you for what you have done for all the servicemen from Ulster County.

"Ulster Hose Co. will remain in my heart forever. Thank you from the bottom of my heart. See you in February."

Capt. Charles Lockwood Jr., writes:

"I have just received another package from your fine organization and I'm taking this opportunity to thank you. I am very grateful for your generosity and thoughtfulness.

"Many of the articles in the packages are distributed among my men and they join me in a heartfelt thanks. It means a great deal to all of us here to know that so many Americans are supporting our efforts.

"Despite the anti-war demonstrations we hear of in the United States, the morale of the soldiers is of the highest caliber I have seen. The finest young men of our nation are serving here with honor. They will not turn their backs to the pleas of these oppressed people.

"If all Americans demonstrated their support like your organization, we would soon accomplish our mission of ridding this struggling nation of all aggressors.

"Again, for myself and all the men of my command, thank you."

Cpl. David F. Lowe writes:

"Sorry I took so long writing this but we have been busy. My whole platoon wishes to express their best wishes in hoping your much needed packages have made others as happy and proud as you made us.

"We have a funny and warm feeling inside knowing that you have spent much earned money and valuable time preparing these things for us. Although the package was addressed to me, everyone received a little something from it. Again let me say, from all of us to all of you, thank you."

BABSON on BUSINESS

CHRISTMAS SALES

BABSON PARK, Mass., Oct. 3—Sales of retail stores just chalked up a new all-time high for September. That is good news for everybody . . . especially for merchants from coast to coast. For the late summer surge came hard on the heels of a sluggish performance that had most retailers scratching their heads and wondering why Mr. and Mrs. Consumer were saving so much and spending so little. Now we can confidently look forward to a "best-ever" ringing of the nation's cash registers, come Christmastime.

Consumers Have the Cash

Recent months have seen personal income persistently poking into new high ground . . . to the tune of average monthly chunks of better than $4 billion each. Disposable personal income (what's left after taxes and other payments) had been lagging total personal income. The gap seemed to be the result of a greater disposition on the part of consumers disposition on the part of consumers to save more. Perhaps all the spring talk of a "mini-recession" had made people cautious.

Latest figures, however, indicate that spending is coming back into fashion. The September surge at retail stores is a most promising omen for Christmas sales. We can foresee new records without half raising our eyelids; and if we look real hard, it is not difficult to predict gains over Christmas 1966 of 6 per cent, or even 8 per cent. Not everywhere, of course, because big strikes will still be pinching consumer pocketbooks in some areas.

Plentiful Supplies

Neither war in Vietnam nor strikes here at home will have too serious an impact on the flow of available goods. Unless, of course, the expected upsurge in store sales should be even greater than we anticipate. In that case, some shelves could be bare for last-minute shoppers.

Fact is, supplies of most goods are plentiful. Not only are we pretty well assured of having both guns and butter; we can also count on generous amounts of quality and luxury items. Next year may be a different story, but for Yuletide 1967 shelves will be well stocked and quality and variety will be more evident than ever.

But You Will Pay More

Most manufacturers, wholesalers, jobbers, and retailers are already optimistic with regard to sales performance during the upcoming holiday season. Some, however, are more cautious — fearing perhaps that this year's higher prices may prove to be an unfavorable factor. In our opinion, the balance of factors favors optimism. Consumers, generally, are better off financially than they were a year ago. They are able to take higher prices in stride and most probably they will do just that . . . in response to diligent and well-directed sales effort on the part of merchants.

One word of caution for buyers, however. It will definitely pay you to shop early this year. Labor and other costs are still rising, and you'll pay more for many a gift in mid-December than you would have to pay in October or November.

Strong consumer buying power and a disposition to use it will be combined this year with greater availability and wider selection of merchandise than ever before. This combination promises to add up to at least a 6 per cent boost in dollar volume of Christmas sales over the record trade achieved in 1966. Because of higher prices, however, the increase in physical turnover may not be more than 3 per cent-4 per cent.

Retailers should find their increased volume leading to bigger profits compared with the first three quarters of this year. But they will be hard put to improve profitability over their experience at Christmastime last year. Stores that will chalk up the best profits records will be those whose managements make a wise—though not excessive—use of promotions while at the same time keeping a sharp eye on sales personnel performance. And above everything else, hold a tight rein on costs without scrimping on customer services.

Check Writers

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — At the annual meeting of Associated Credit Bureaus of Iowa, instructions on how to deal with rubber-check writers were given by inmates at the men's reformatory at Anamosa — members of a prison group which calls itself Check Writers Anonymous.

RESTING — Not much inspiration but plenty of comfort is what the large Goethe statue in Chicago's Lincoln Park here offers to the gent resting comfortably at base. The base is big enough to offer plenty of protection from wind sweeping in from nearby Lake Michigan. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Drug City Leases Space, Ulster Plaza

Harold Lewis president of Plaza Investors Corp., 999 Central Avenue, Woodmere, developers of the Ulster Shopping Plaza at Albany Avenue Extension, has announced that Drug City has leased 4,500 square feet of space in the Shopping Plaza, for one of its discount drug stores.

The space that has been rented was formerly occupied by the Sears Roebuck catalog sales office, Sears having vacated at the termination of its lease Oct. 15.

Drug City plans to open its new store in early November. The bright attractive drug store, which will also contain a modern prescription department, will offer to Kingston shoppers, one of the largest cosmetic selections in the area. Health aids and beauty aids will be sold at discount prices.

Work to complete the store is progressing now.

Transportation Key to Area Says Mid-Hudson Patterns

Jack Sternback, director of the Bureau of Planning of the New York State Transportation Department, will discuss the progress being made on Interstate Route 84 and the implications for the area of the state's proposed $2.5 billion transportation bond issue at the fall meeting of the Regional Chamber of Commerce Council, Oct. 18, in Newburgh.

The meeting, which gets under way at 7 p. m. at the Holiday Inn, is being sponsored by Mid-Hudson Pattern for Progress, Inc., a citizen's regional planning, research and development corporation, and the Interstate Route 84 Association, whose prime concern is an early completion of the highway, which is expected to play a key role in the development of the Mid-Hudson Region.

According to Charles R. Wolfe, Regional Chamber chairman, "transportation is the key that will open the full potential of our area and provide the job opporunities that are needed. The people of the state can assure an early completion of Interstate 84 by supporting Governor Rockefeller's bond issue, which will be on the ballot Nov. 7."

The staff of Pattern for Progress, Inc., which is based at the State University College, New Paltz, is in the process of preparing a report on the probable affects of the bond issue on the seven counties it serves — Dutchess, Ulster, Greene, Columbia, Putnam, Orange and Sullivan.

Lobbyists: $2 Million Yearly Tab

Scramble for 'Fiscal Pie' Intense

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — At an estimated annual cost of nearly $2 million, more and more cities and states are deploying their own lobbyists in the nation's capital to seek a bountiful harvest of federal favors from Uncle Sam's money tree.

Six years ago only one state had a full-time liaison office here. Now 14 states have dispatched special representatives—4 in recent months—and more are on the way. In addition, at least 22 cities and a dozen or so colleges have hired Washington agents.

Bristle at Name

These envoys bristle when called lobbyists, and they apparently aren't required to register as such although two of them do. Their goals and tactics nonetheless bear striking resemblence to those of lobbyists—registered as required by law—for big corporations, labor unions and pressure groups.

Fanning out daily from converted townhouses on Capitol Hill and glass-fronted office buildings within sight of the White House, the city and state lobbyists use salesmanship, cajolery, flattery and pressure to help their clients—the folks back home—obtain federal grants, loans, defense contracts, government installations or pork barrel projects.

Their scramble for a bigger slice of the federal fiscal pie is intense. Lobbyists sometimes even draft amendments for pending legislation, then peddle them to friendly congressmen or influential congressional aides.

"This is a very competitive business," says Peter F. Tufo, former Wall Street lawyer who heads New York Mayor John Lindsay's Washington outpost. "There just isn't enough money to go around."

"My main concern," Tufo adds, "is getting the maximum amount of federal money into the city."

Illinois' man in Washington, Edward D. Heffernan, views his mission similarly: "Getting a fair portion of federal expenditures into our state." In the view of some other states, Illinois got more than its fair share last year when it landed a $375 million atomic accelerator—described as the scientific prize of the century.

One of the newest liaison men, D. Michael B. Thompson of Florida, says it is the "absurd" bigness of the federal government that has forced cities and states to resort to lobbying for federal favors.

New Breed of Bureaucrats

Interviewed in his red-carpeted office suite two floors above the Republican National Committee headquarters, Thompson also said, "We're developing a whole new breed of bureaucrats—people who know how to fill out all these forms" required when cities and states apply for federal aid.

The growth in the new breed of lobbyists parallels the upward spiral in federal aid programs. In 1960 federal grants amounted to about $9 billion. This year they total $17 billion and officials estimate the figure will swell to $60 billion by 1975.

In addition, defense procurement now is proceeding at a $50 billion-a-year clip.

Even as they compete for individual grants and contracts, city and state forces are on opposing sides in a behind-the-scenes battle with significant long-range implications.

At stake is a fuzzy point of federal policy: Should all grants be funneled through the state governments, or should those affecting the cities be sent directly to city halls, bypassing the state level?

The administration's anti-crime bill provided the vehicle for a recent skirmish over this question.

The White House originally proposed that grants to improve local law enforcement be made directly to the cities. But House members, under prodding from state forces, amended the bill so states would receive the money and disperse it to cities with plans meeting state standards.

The bill now is in Senate committee and city lobbyists are mounting a counterattack to restore the original language. "We're not whipped yet," one of them said.

The National Governors' Conference set up a six-man Washington lobby in March to supplement the work of the individual state representatives. Counting its $265,000 budget, states are spending about $1 million a year for lobbying activities. Add on the amount that cities and universities spend and the total approaches $2 million.

New York established its Washington office in 1942 to help home state firms get defense contracts. It wasn't until 1961 that another state, California, set up a permanent office. Then came West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Guam, Texas, Missouri, Florida, Kentucky, Massachusetts and Maryland — the last four this year.

New Jersey plans to have its own representative in Washington by the end of October to help secure grants for the state. Connecticut, Iowa and Nebraska are considering such a step. Each had officials in Washington last week surveying present state offices.

Oklahoma bucked the trend. Its Democratic-controlled legislature last year abolished a Washington office created a year earlier by a Republican governor.

A Georgia legislative committee studied the idea recently but dropped it when the state's congressional delegation voiced loud opposition.

California is leading the pack with a dozen separate Washington offices. Besides the regular liaison office, complete with gold carpets and color pictures of Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan, the Democratic-controlled state legislature has set up its own office here.

The University of California has a Washington office, as does the state college system. And there are individual representatives here for Los Angeles County, the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, the City of Los Angeles—plus six other California cities: San Francisco, Long Beach, Oakland, San Diego, Napa and Vallejo.

California's cultivation of the federal decision-makers seems to have paid off handsomely. Last year the nation's most populous state received a whopping $20.4 billion from Washington and led nearly every category—defense spending $11 billion; health, education and welfare, $3.5 billion; space programs, $1.9 billion.

"IN MY FIRST YEAR AS A SWIFT HOMES DEALER, I NETTED OVER $26,000!"

Fred Kessler, owner of Kessler-Swift Homes in New England, had his own engineering and manufacturing firm for many years. "But the profit squeeze was getting tighter and tighter," he says. "I wasn't clearing enough money for all the headaches."

After he learned about Swift Homes, he sold the business and applied for a Swift franchise in a portion of New Hampshire and Vermont. Now he and his wife, Florence, work together, clear more than they did with his previous business and have time to enjoy the resort area in which they live.

"We're looking forward to a greater second year," Fred says. "The housing business in general is better than it was our first year. The special Swift features are so appealing to customers that we really see no ceiling on this new career."

Maybe you have a business that doesn't reward you enough. Or maybe you're working for someone else and would like the challenge and prestige of being a Swift Homes dealer. Send the coupon below to find out more about this exciting opportunity.

SWIFT HOMES OFFER . . . Complete Merchandising Program; beautiful line of year-round and vacation pre-cut homes; advertising and promotion help; an AAA-1 Dun and Bradstreet rating. LONG-TERM FINANCING FOR YOUR CUSTOMERS AT NO MONEY DOWN.

Auto Club: Get Jump On Winter

There's more to winterizing a car than simply adding anti-freeze, the Automobile Club of New York reports. According to the Auto Club, todays cars — with their many power-operated devices and complicated fuel systems — require careful conditioning if they are to operate trouble free during the winter.

In addition to affording cold weather protection, a thorough conditioning also will take care of many minor troubles now and avoid annoying delays and possibly big repair bills later on.

Here is the AAA's check list of major winterizing items:

—Check exhaust system; a leaky muffler or cracked exhaust pipe will permit deadly carbon monoxide fumes to seep into the car.

—Check transmission and rear end.

—If necessary, change oil to proper grade and replace oil filter cartridge.

—Lubricate chassis and tighten body if necessary.

—Adjust brakes, including emergency brake.

—Check wheel alignment and wheel balance.

—Check windshield wipers and defroster.

—Check battery and electrical system. Weak batteries should be recharged or replaced if they won't hold the charge.

Check cooling system for leaks, tighten hose connections adn fanbelt, then add anti-freeze If an "all-year" anti-freeze is being used, have it checked to make sure it still affords full protection for your engine.

—Check springs, shock absorbers and steering.

—Check tires, replace or recap if treads are thin or worn. If snow tires are to be used, now's the time to have them put on rear wheels.

In addition to tending to these major mechanical needs, wise motorists will also have the following taken care of before the temperature dips below freezing:

—Coat all exposed ignition wires with reliable waterproofing solution as a protection against wet wires.

—Turn on and test your heater.

—Lubricate door locks to avoid sticking or freezing in winter.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, Oct. 16, the 289th day of 1967. There are 76 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1793, Queen Marie Antoinette of France was executed.

On this date:

In 1815, Napoleon Bonaparte landed at the island of St. Helena as an exile.

In 1840, New Zealand became a British colony.

In 1859, the Kansas abolitionist John Brown staged a raid on Harper's Ferry, Va.

In 1925, the Pact of Locarno was signed by Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Belgium.

In 1940, 16 million Americans registered for the first draft under the Selective Service law.

In 1941, German troops captured the Russian city of Odessa during World War II.

Ten years ago — Britain's Queen Elizabeth arrived in Jamestown, Va., to help celebrate the 350th anniversary of the first permanent English settlement in the new world.

Five years ago—A U.S. high-altitude nuclear test over Johnson Island in the Pacific was unsuccessful due to a rocket failure.

One year ago — President Johnson helped consecrate a Roman Catholic shrine in Pennsylvania and urged racial tolerance on the part of Polish-Americans.

Twenty and Ten Years Ago

Oct. 16, 1947—The car of Dr. Joseph Jacobson, stolen from the rear of Kingston Hospital, was reportedly recovered in New Jersey.

A hunting ban was placed in the Adirondacks due to fire hazards. The Catskills were open.

Oct. 16, 1957—The Asian flu was blamed for 375 absentees at Kingston High School. Onteora schools were closed along with many schools in Dutchess County.

The Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce voted no on a proposed constitutional convention in 1959.

Immunization Clinic

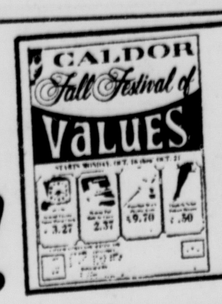

A clinic for immunizations against polio, whooping cough, diptheria, tetanus and smallpox will be conducted by the Ulster County Health Department at the Tumor Clinic Building Friday, Oct. 20, from 10:30-11:15.

Immunizations for whooping cough, diptheria, and tetanus should be started at three months of age; smallpox vaccination should be given any time during the first year of life; and polio immunizations should be started from three to six months of age.

These clinics serve those who are otherwise unable to secure these immunizations.

10-Year-Old Boy Kidnapped

Swim Instructor Charged

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — A former Boys' Club swimming instructor was held here today on a state kidnapping charge accusing him of taking a 10-year-old boy from school nearly six months ago.

The boy, William "Billy Layton, was returned to his tearful parents Sunday. Police said he was in good condition and apparently had not been abused.

John C. Wood, 25, was picked up by police Saturday night in a routine traffic check in Angola, near Buffalo. Billy was found in a nearby movie theater where Wood, who identified himself as Scott Lockwood, said he had left his son, police said.

Wood was charged with kidnapping after a check with Binghamton Police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Billy and Wood, a bachelor friend of the Layton family, had been sought since April 17, police said. Wood took the boy out of school on that date, police said, explaining the boy had a dental appointment.

At that time, the boy's father said Wood "always seemed like a heck of a nice guy."

Billy said he and Wood had traveled to Richmond, Va., from Binghamton, police said. After a three-month stay, they went to Harrisburg and Pittsburgh, Pa., for brief periods, then lived for two months in Little Rock, Ark.

The two came to Angola about a month ago, police said, and Wood had been seeling vacuum cleaners.

Billy was happy to be home, police said, and he "still regards Wood as his friend." The parents and child returned to Binghamton Sunday.

Wood was transported to Binghamton after arraignment on charges of driving without license, motor vehicle registration, and proper plates. He was fined $25 on each of the charges.

Wood was a friend of the Layton family and had taken Billy on a sightseeing tour of New York City last Easter, police said.

He was a graduate of Colby College in Maine and came to Binghamton last fall, police said. He was discharged from the Binghamton Boys' Club after working a few months there as a swimming instructor, police said, then began working at a real estate office in the Binghamton suburg of Vestal.

Sunset Wedding Set For Lynda Bird Nuptials

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lynda Johnson and Marine Capt. Charles Robb have picked romantic sunset time for their Dec. 9 White House wedding and have ruled out television coverage of the ceremony.

The Rev. Canon Gerald McAllister, a personable young Texas Episcopal clergyman, will perform the marriage, the White House also announced Sunday.

Guest list for the East Room nuptials of the President's elder daughter will be held to about 500 persons. That's 200 less than Lynda's sister, Luci, invited to her Aug. 6, 1966 cathedral wedding and White House reception.

This will be the first time in 53 years that a presidential daughter has been married in the White House. The Johnsons announced that "lack of space" will limit coverage by news media.

Only a pool of reporters will be permitted to cover certain portions of the event. There will be no television coverage of the wedding ceremony itself a White House spokesman said.

Lynda and her young Marine finance have set their Saturday wedding for 4 p.m., about a half hour before sunset.

Elizabeth Carpenter, press secretary to Mrs. Johnson, said the time of the wedding would be "an hour that suits the couple—and it also depends on the honeymoon destination," a locale that remains secret.

In choosing the minister, Lynda didn't look far from home.

She picked the tall Texas clergyman, who only two weeks ago offered prayers for Lynda and Charles at St. Barnabas Episcopal Church in Fredericksburg, Tex., 15 miles from the LBJ Ranch.

He was so surprised when Mrs. Johnson called Saturday to ask him to perform the ceremony, "we didn't even discuss the details."

Two weeks ago when newsmen asked him if he would preside, he replied, "No. That's a job for a bishop.

The Rev. Mr. McAllister, son of W. W. McAllister, mayor of San Antonio, has known the President's family about four years—ever since he presided at the laying of a cornerstone at the St. Barnabas Church.

Since about a year ago, when he became "supply priest" at the church, which has no regular minister, the Rev. Mr. McAllister has seen the first family frequently. The President often goes to St. Barnabas when he is spending weekends at his ranch.

The minister is anxious about the required ministerial counseling session required of all couples marrying in the Episcopal church. Such sessions are usually conducted by the minister who will preside over the ceremony, but the Rev. Mr. McAllister said Sunday, "If it's not possible for me to handle it then perhaps someone in Washington could."

Science Shrinks Painful Hemorrhoids Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

Finds Way That Both Relieves Pain and Shrinks Piles In Most Cases

New York, N.Y. (Special): Science has found a special formula with the ability, in most cases—to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching and relieve pain.

In case after case doctors proved, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place. The secret is Preparation H®. There is no other formula for hemorrhoids like it. Preparation H also soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In ointment or suppository form.

TRAFFIC PROBLEM SITE. After a span of seven months, action may finally be forthcoming on a proposed study of the City of Kingston-Town of Ulster traffic pattern. Back in March, 2nd Ward Supervisor Addison Jones and Ulster Supervisor Thaddeus Musialkiewicz presented a joint resolution to the Board of Supervisors to that effect, and had the Board go on record as favoring a modern four-lane highway to be built at the present Albany Avenue Extension at Foxhall Avenue. Recently, State Senator Jay P. Rolison Jr. and Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson visited the site and promised quick action in bringing the traffic problem to the State Engineers Department. At the source of the problem are (L) Jones, Rolison, Musialkiewicz and Assemblyman Wilson. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Major Reforms Seen In South Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — American officials believe that for the first time they have successfully pressured South Vietnam's present leaders into some major reforms.

But U.S. sources say the reforms have only scratched the surface. Much depends, they say, on how the new regime of President-elect Nguyen Van Thieu and Vice President-elect Nguyen Cao Ky behaves.

Recent evidence of effective U.S. pressure, one source said, was the removal of six province chiefs and from 40 to 50 district chiefs on charges of corruption and incompetence. Yet there were signs that at least some of the firings were triggered by personal rivalries rather than a desire for good government.

In a parallel development, reliable sources said U.S. and Vietnamese officials have worked out a major overhaul of the much-criticized pacification program to win over the countryside from the Communists.

The plan gives Maj. Gen. Nguyen Duc Thang, a Vietnamese general regarded by U.S. officials as hard-working, shrewd and incorruptible, greater powers to carry out the program. U.S. sources believe he may be able to claim honest success in 80 per cent of 1,100 hamlets where he has started pacification work.

Thang, father of the latest pacification program but apparently waning in influence several months ago, will become deputy chief of the joint general staff and de facto commander of the territorial security forces. He will have wide powers to weed out corrupt regional officials.

In a further effort to press South Vietnam's "other war," the U.S. Embassy announced plans to increase to 41 from 21 the number of American relief experts trying to help civilian refugees. Much of the job will be to make sure funds and supplies meant for the refugees get to them and not to corrupt Vietnamese officials.

The refugee program has come under sharp attack in the U.S. Senate, notably by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the Senate Judiciary subcommittee, on refugees. The United States is paying nearly $25.5 million in refugee aid money.

Official figures show 700,000 refugees in camps or shelters but authorities say twice as many may be homeless because of the war.

U.S. pressure for reform is believed to include placing Thieu's junta on notice that the United States would not tolerate any attempt to brush aside the country's newly elected Congress in favor of rule by decree.

A qualified source described both Thieu and Ky as reform-minded but would not extend this description to the rest of the officers making up the present military government.

Maybe that boy will kill your boy.

That boy in a stolen car. Stolen cars have 200 times more accidents. Many fatal. And who steals cars? 64% of people arrested for car theft are under 18. Teen-agers who impulsively take a car for a joyride. And who tempts them? You do. 76% of stolen cars were left unlocked. About half also had ignition keys in them. Maybe your boy doesn't mix with boys who'd steal a car, but he may walk across the street as they skid around the wrong corner.

Don't help a good boy go bad. Lock your car. Take your keys.

Kingston Corporation Counsel: Busy Man in Vital Job

By HUGH REYNOLDS

To some people the city's corporation counsel shows up at Common Council meetings to give an occasional interpretation of the city charter. The Freeman, in an interview with present corporation counsel Aaron E. Klein, found this was far from the truth.

The former city judge (1957-1961), city Democratic chairman ('62-'63) and county Democratic chairman ('63-'67) has been corporation counsel since February of this year. He was interviewed in his office at 65 John Street where he is in partnership with John J. Schick, Democratic candidate for county judge.

The interview is as follows:

Questions, Answers

Freeman: Mr. Klein, what are the basic duties of the corporation counsel in Kingston?

Klein: The basic duty is one of an attorney representing the city and all its departments. This also includes the autonimous departments such as the water department and the city lab. However, it does not include the housing authority and the urban renewal agency.

I attend all council meetings and am available to answer any questions on law. I attend committee meetings when requested and also public hearings when asked.

Freeman: That sounds like a lot of work for one man.

Klein: I haven't finished. I also attend the mayor's cabinet meetings when asked and am a member of the city planning board.

In addition, the corporation counsel must prepare all city bond issues including revenue anticipation notes and capital notes. The counsel must draw up all city contracts with outside sources in addition to reviewing all legislation and resolutions.

The corporation counsel must also defend all actions instituted against the city and its departments, except insurance coverages, and also institute suit for recovery for damages sustained by the city.

There's more but just to touch of a few other things, the counsel must also institute proceedings against persons that violate city ordinances or laws such as violation of housing laws or building codes.

Freeman: Just keeping up with all the laws and ordinances passed by the city must be a headache.

Help Ahead

Klein: It's not easy, but there's help ahead. The counsel approved codification of all city ordinances and laws at the September meeting. What this means is that all laws passed since 1872 will be under one cover. It'll be a tremendous help to anyone involved in city business and also lawyers, architects and engineers. The copies will sell for $50 and they're well worth the money.

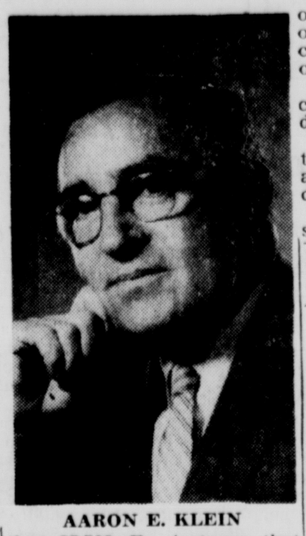

Freeman: Speaking of money, Judge, how much does the corporation counsel job pay?

Klein: Right now it pays $7,500 per year with $1,500 for secretarial work.

Bargain for City

Freeman: Nine thousand dollars doesn't sound too bad.

Klein: Believe me, the city is getting more than a bargain. I spend a lot more than $1,500 on secretarial fees. It's more like $2,500. And as far as my salary goes, if the city were to hire me, or any lawyer, on a contractural basis, it would be a heck of a lot more than $7,500. For instance, that trip I made to Albany with the Common Council Pollution Committee was part of my job as corporation counsel. If they were to hire a lawyer for that one day it would cost them $200, if we go by the fees suggested by the county bar association.

AARON E. KLEIN

The suggested consultation fee is $20 per hour. Imagine if I were getting paid that for the Common Council meetings. You know how long they can last.

Freeman: Well, judge, it would appear you're not in the corporation counsel job for the money. What's the attraction?

The Attractions

Klein: There are a number of things. I like municipal law. haven't had much opportunity to practice it during my career. I also like working with people in the legislative branches of government. I like to be in on what's happening. And of course, there's the satisfaction of doing a job well.

Freeman: Would you say the corporation counsel's office is doing a good job for the city?

Klein: A good job, yes, with the facilities and personnel available. But the operation could be much more efficient.

Freeman: What would you suggest?

Klein: First of all, I'd like a part-time assistant. I also think my job should remain on a part-time basis. It's true, there's a lot of work but it tends to come in spurts. There are times when there's really nothing for a corporation counsel to do.

Freeman: Then you are against a full-time corporation counsel?

Klein: Certainly. It isn't necessary and, besides, the city couldn't afford a full-time man.

Since we're on the subject of personnel for the corporation counsel's office, I'd like to see a full-time law secretary. Someone who could serve from administration to administration. A civil service appointment perhaps.

Freeman: What do you see in the immediate future for the corporation counsel's office in Kingston?

The Future

Klein: It appears obvious that the workload will increase in the future. To meet this we must spend time and effort to make the office orderly and efficient. The codification book I mentioned previously should be out in seven or eight months and will be a real boon.

If I gave the impression I was complaining, I'm sorry. The job has many rewards, a few of which I've mentioned in this interview. My concern for an efficient corporation counsel office is in the interest of the city and my successors.

This is the only one-man office in the city. I have to give credit to my predecessors for having managed so well under such adverse conditions.

No Viet Endorsement

Governors May Rebuff LBJ

NEW YORK (AP) — Some Democratic and Republican governors said today that President Johnson will not get an endorsement for his Vietnam war policies during the cruise to the Virgin Islands that most of the nation's governors are undertaking.

Govs. John Connally of Texas and Otto Kerner of Illinois said in separate interviews they will not press for any endorsement of Johnson's Vietnam policies.

Both of the Democratic governors noted that 20 of their colleagues had endorsed the general policies of Johnson in Vietnam at a luncheon Sunday in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

The Democrats had reaffirmed their support of the President's course in Vietnam. Most of them had criticized it at a meeting in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., last December, but they retracted the criticism in a St. Louis, Mo., meeting subsequently.

Twenty-three of the 25 Republican governors and 22 of the 25 Democratic governors were expected aboard the liner Independence today for the annual Governors' Conference.

Gov. John Love of Colorado, head of the Republican Governors Association, said he doesn't think the cruise conference will produce any unanimity on Vietnam.

"After all," Love said, "we Republicans are just about as divided as the Democrats on this issue and they have a candidate and we don't."

The declaration of Michigan Gov. George Romney, a Republican, that Johnson was following "a ping-pong" policy in Vietnam seemed to leave the governors as cold as the unsupported statement of Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan of California that the United States may be "doing much better in the war than we're being told."

Reagan said Johnson was waiting until a politically opportune time in the 1968 campaign to announce that "we've turned a point in the war and perhaps we're winning."

He spoke on ABC's program "Issues and Answers."

Gov. James Rhodes of Ohio, a Republican who had taken the initiative two years ago in lining up the governors behind Johnson's Vietnam policies, said he is not interested in taking any similar action now.

Asked why, he said he thinks there is too much Republican dissent.

"I'm not running for anything and I'm not supporting anybody who is," Rhodes said.

Bus Drivers OK Contract In Albany

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Striking bus drivers and mechanics approved a new contract with the United Traction Co. Sunday night, paving the way for the restoration of bus service today.

Members of Local 132 of the Amalgamated Transportation Union had struck the company on Sept. 22. The company serves about 60,000 riders daily and provides communter service to Troy and several other neighboring communities.

The members voted 202 to 44 to accept the new contract. The two-year contract calls for an immediate 13-cent pay hike and increases of 7 and 12 cents an hour in July and the following January, respectively. Drivers and mechanics had been paid $2.53 an hour under the old contract.

The agreement had been reached Saturday after a negotiating session that lasted about 17 hours.

Miami Roll Call

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The list of candidates in the current campaign for Miami City Commission, Group Three, sounds like a U.N. roll call.

The candidates and their birth places are: Dominic Koo, China; Maurice Ferre (incumbent), Puerto Rico; Gilberto Hernandez, Cuba; and Hendrik Berns, Austria.

Lindsay Aide At UCCC Rites

August Heckscher, who has a home in Stone Ridge, will participate in the dedication of the new Stone Ridge campus on Saturday Oct. 21 of Ulster County Community College, President George B. Erbstein reported today.

Possessing a national reputation, Heckscher is currently Administrator of Recreation and Cultural Affairs and Commissioner of Parks in New York City. He formerly was cultural advisor to Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy.

President Erbstein announced Heckschner will introduce his long-time friend, U.S. Senator Jacob K. Javits, who will give the dedication address.

"Mr. Heckschner lives near our Stone Ridge campus and has watched it grow from rolling fields to a vital center of higher education in Ulster County," President Erbstein said. "We are indeed honored to have such an outstanding person participating in our dedication program."

Heckschner was named parks and cultural chief in New York City by Mayor Lindsay last February. He succeeds Thomas P. F. Hoving, who left the post to become director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

Heckscher was born in Huntington, L. I., the son of G. Maurice and Fannie Vanderhoef Heckscher and a grandson of August Heckscher, the German-born industrialist and philanthropist, for whom a park was named on Long Island.

He attended St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and was graduated from Yale University with a B.A. Degree. He received an M.A. Degree from Harvard University and has an LL D from Fairleigh Dickinson University, and L.H.D. from the University of the State of New York and Litt. D. Degrees from C. W. Post College and Adelphi College.

From 1939 to 1941, Hechscher was editor of the Auburn Citizen-Advertiser newspaper. He served in World War II with the Office of Strategic Services, and received the Decorated Chevalier French Legion of Honor. After the war he returned to the Auburn newspaper and remained there until 1948 when he became chief editorial writer for the New York Herald Tribune, a post he kept until 1956.

Heckscher served as Art Commissioner in New York City from 1957 to 1962 and was a director of the Twentieth Century Fund until appointed to his present post early this year. He also was a member of the State Council on the Arts and was chairman of the board of the International Council of the Museum of Modern Art.

A prolific author, Heckschler's books included A Pattern of Politics and The Public Happiness. He served as the chairman of the General Nonfiction Pulitizer Prize Committee.

APPLE COFFEE CAKE

New Autumn Apples Mean Good Eating

These days you can buy your favorite apples at the markets and use them in apple cakes, appetizers, desserts and just eating out of hand. Some of the recipes listed here may give you new ideas about serving Autumn apples. For instance, the new apple corn-meal coffee cake is just right for the breakfast table or for that mid-morning coffee hour in the kitchen when a enighbor drops in. It makes that just-right snack for late in the afternoon or at night with a glass of milk. The good flavor and texture of this new coffee cake depends on apples—chopped and added to the batter they add the taste of Autumn and a special goodness which only apples can give.

Coffee Cake

¾ cup enrich yellow corn meal
¾ cup sifted all-purpose flour
¾ cup sugar
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
¾ cup milk
1 egg
1½ cups peeled chopped apples

Topping

¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

For coffee cake, mix and sift corn meal, flour, sugar, baking powder, salt and cinnamon. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add milk, egg and apples. Stir until thoroughly blended. Bake in greased 8-inch square baking pan at 350° about 30 minutes. While coffee cake is baking, prepare topping: combine brown sugar, flour and cinnamon. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Sprinkle on top of coffee cake. Bake an additional 10 minutes. Serve warm, cut in squares.

Garage Sales in Suburbia Are High Class Bargain Basements

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Grandmother's rules of housekeeping said Thursday is for marketing and Friday for dusting and sweeping. But many contemporary wives in the Great Plains and Southwest think both days are for "doing" the garage sales.

A garage sale is a kind of high-class bargain basement, organized by an individual woman or group of friends, where offerings range from sink stoppers to guinea pigs to maternity clothes, all used.

In the suburbs of Kansas City, the station wagon and sports car sets park before $30,000 ranches to examine the offerings of 35-cent baby dresses, 25-cent mixinz bowl, $2-picture frames, and other odds and ends.

Mrs. James Hopewell of suburban Fairway, Kan., did the sales regularly for months before and after her first grandchild was born. She toted home a nursery full of barely used swings, toys and basic clothing.

Mrs. Bert Rosebrough of Prairie Village, Kan., another suburb, motioned to the well-furnished living room in her early American-style home.

"Everything in it," she said, "from the sofa to the maple scounces, came from garage sales." It was the same story in her 3-year-old son's room.

Anyone can hold a garage sale—providing she has the fortitude to let go of the things she and her family no longer use. The sales are announced by ads in neighborhood newspapers and signs planted on nearby streets.

On the big day, the garage is the spot for almost anything, except the family car. The sale is run like a store, not an auction. There is almost no bargaining. If it occurs, it is usually on a relatively expensive item.

Getting buyers is seldom a problem. Few can resist the enticement of pouring through another household's collection of trifles and trivia in hope that it will yield some surprise treasure.

Many women spend Thursday and Fridays, the traditional sale days, driving through the suburbs looking for sales. Sometimes they find several on one block.

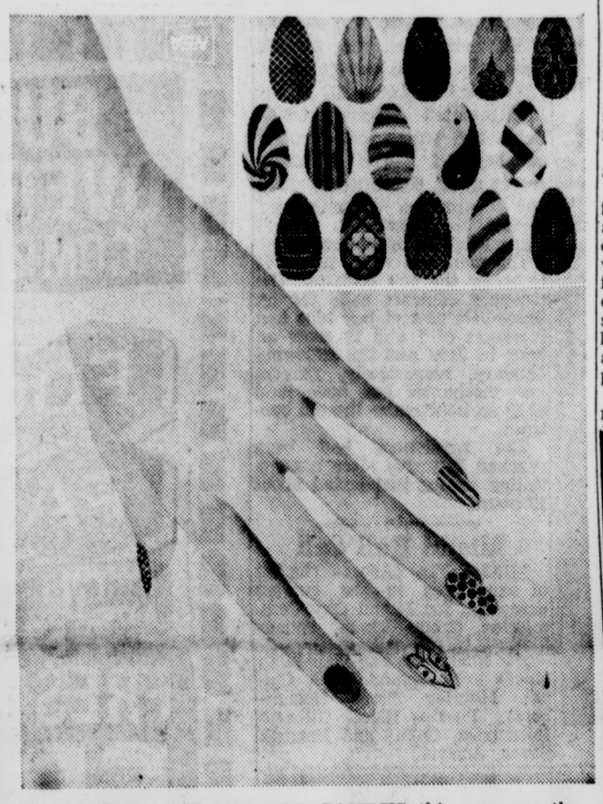

Men make fun of their wives' garage sale habits. Once they attend one, though, they usually are bitten, too. The wife of a masculine garage sale fan said many of the articles sold in her sale came from her husband's foragings.

But the enthusiasm occasionally backfires.

One woman with garage sale fever made weekly expeditions and filled her basement with odds and ends of furniture, which she gradually refinished for use in the house. But many objects never made it up the stairs. She finally took stock of her crowded basement, sighed and called the neighborhood paper.

"I want to run an ad for a garage sale," she said.

Social Activities

TO BE SEEN ON AND OFF CAMPUS this year are the zany stick-ons. A bit on the wild side of youth, these brightly colored op-art oddities come in a kit that has 102 different arty and trivia-type designs. Some are bugs; others are hearts and flowers. These stick-ons are geared for Toenails, fingernails and can be fun for the bare knee miniskirter.

Plans Costume Party

Plans for a Halloween costume party were discussed at the Oct. 3 business meeting of Gamma Chi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held at the home of Mrs. Richard Larson, Port Ewen.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cote, Tillson, will host the party which is an annual event for members and their husbands.

During the business meeting tentative plans were made to conduct a bus trip to raise funds for the chapter's service projects.

Mrs. Robert Dunn was congratulated on her election as chairman of the City Council of Beta Sigma Phi Chapters in Kingston.

Programs were presented at the conclusion of the meeting by Mrs. Robert Dunn and Ray Lawrence.

Guests for the evening were: Mrs. Joan Micozzi, Mrs. Richard Rinschler and Mrs. Fred Spinneweber.

On Oct. 7 Gamma Chi participated in the Area Council meeting of Beta Sigma Phi Chapters held in Kingston. The day of activities included a walking tour, luncheon, round table discussions and a late afternoon punch party.

The next business meeting will be Nov. 7 at the Saugerties home of Mrs. Robert O'Brien.

Betty Moul Will Speak Here About Orphanage

In 1954 the late Dr. Thomas A. Dooley, serving as a young lieutenant in the U.S. Navy, was assisting refugees to flee from North Vietnam, one of those he helped was Madame Vu Thi Ngai. A formerly wealthy woman, whose husband had been liquidated by the Communists, Madame Ngai sold her jewels to support a growing number of orphans who came to her, and founded the An Lac Orphanage in Haiphong, where Dr. Dooley met her.

Miss Betty Moul, a trustee of the Thomas A. Dooley Foundation, Inc., who visited the orphanage now located in Saigon, last winter, will speak Saturday, Oct. 21, at the St. James Methodist Church, Fair and Pearl Streets, Kingston, at 7:30 p. m. She will show slides and play tapes of the voices of Madame Ngai and the children, which now number over 350. Since Dr. Dooley's death Madame Ngai has struggled to maintain the orphanage and is now in desperate need of funds. Miss Moul, who will return to An Lac in December, hopes to take along a sizeable fund to present to the courageous Madame Ngai.

Dr. Dooley in his first book about his work in Vietnam, Deliver Us From Evil, wrote: "This orphanage and its hundreds of smiling children became our orphanage and our children. We really sort of adopted them, as they adopted us. Madame Ngai was the head of the place and my corpsmen and I became the Orphanage Medical Department. The U.S. Navy became the Orphanage Trust Fund . . . Whenever there was an opportunity, the kids would be taken out to one of the ships, where they would be given an American type party."

Today the U.S. Army First Infantry Division has in turn adopted the orphanage, and Betty Moul will tell of the help they too have given to Madame Ngai, and the work of a young Army doctor who seems to be following in Dr. Dooley's footsteps.

Miss Moul is also secretary to Senator Jacob Javits, and when she leaves on her "vacation" to work in the orphanage in December, it will be her third trip to the war-torn country, and paid for by herself.

There will be no admission charge for Miss Moul's program, but contributions for the orphanage will be greatfully accepted. They are deductible.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise,

I'm perplexed as to what items should be most frequently washed. Have you any ideas on this?

Housewife

Hon, I would guess it to be whatever you use most frequently

Here are a couple of hints which I highly recommend:

I know most people don't wash pillowcases but once a week, which brings up a question. Shouldn't they be washed more often?

Pillowcases get twice as dirty as anything in our household for our hair is loaded with oil and hair spray. (Oil collects dust, you know.)

Many people don't realize how much time they spend sleeping, but it amounts to about one-third of their lifetime. So why not wash those pillowcases twice a week?

Furthermore, I reccommend using not only one pillowcase, but TWO on each pillow. The second one will protect your ticking from the excess oil and perspiration that goes through the first pillowcase.

This will save replacing those tickings so often. If you're never covered one you don't know how costly and time-consuming it can be.

The next item would be girdles. You know how much perspiration they absorb? They will last so much longer if thrown in the washer frequently with the bath towels.

Remember, nine times out of ten, any girdle you buy is a man-made fabric. It has no pores! Your towel will scrub against this "hold-in" project and it will last much, much longer.

Don't let perspirstion rot those fabulous girdles. I've learned from an authority that the rubbing action in washing makes them last far longer than if we allow the soil and perspiration to build up . . .

So, to my way of thinking, these are two items that should be washed more often than many of us do.

Dear Heloise:

This is probably the most unglamorous hint you'll get in the mail today but it really works

The baby had dropped a comb in the toilet. Husband gone, no snake to use, the plumber's friend wouldn't budge it. So I used the spring from the screen door as a snake!

Worked like a charm, and sure saved a plumber's bill.

Mother

Dear Heloise:

When my brother wanted to give a friend some seeds the other day, I stuck them in between two pieces of masking tap so he wouldn't lose them. This method could be used in the fall when you collect seeds. The name of the seeds can be written on the tape before they are stuck to it.

Working for New Indian Image

By BEVERLEY WILSON
Miami Herald Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Behind a modern desk surrounded by businesslike file cabinets and "in" and "out" baskets in the U.S. Department of the Interior's Bureau of Indian Affairs in Hollywood, Seminole Betty Mae Jumper is out to create a new image for Seminole women.

She is the first woman elected chairman of the Tribal Council of Florida's 930 or so Seminole Indians.

The nation she helps govern has citizens whose concerns range from Keeping the Great Spirit's secret deerskin medicine bundle with its burden of herbs, stones and dried animal parts, to preventing their teenagers from drag-racing on the streets.

Mrs. Jumper takes in her amiable stride the dramatic gap between the old and the new ways of life that invasion by the white man's 20th century has brought to her three reservations.

"It's a challenge," she said simply, echoing every ambitious woman new to her job. She met her first challenge years ago when she became the first Seminole to get a high school diploma, over violent opposition from her family.

"Woman have never held political office in Indian tribes. Men have been the chiefs, the medicine men, the thinkers who governed. Women have stuck to the planting, the clothes making and child raising," said the 44-year-old mother of three. She is Mrs. Moses Jumper to neighbors at her native Okalee Indian Village here.

Chairman Jumper's duties include presiding over the powerful four-man council that makes decisions about the welfare and betterment of the nation. She works easily with newly-elected president Joe Dan Osceola, 30-year-old social worker, who oversees the $13 million Seminole Corporation and just as smoothly with white civic leaders and U.S. Interior Department officials.

Other squaws, who are beginning to believe a woman's place isn't always in the chickee, warm to her unpretentious manner as well as her political daring. "Our women are beginning to win equal rights. Prejudice against them is on the decline," she observed.

The tribe's myriad interests have become big business, requiring active support of both sexes. They include a large cattle industry, agriculture, clothing and arts and crafts industries, land development, a Seminole village and camping grounds in Hollywood open to the public.

In her campaign, Mrs. Jumper ran into surprisingly little opposition from men. "They voted for me, didn't they? I had strong supporters 4 working hard."

Her shy, friendly smile and generously-proportioned figure became familiar sights as she stumped along the chickee huts and newer concrete block and frame houses of the Okalee, Big Cypress and Brighton reservations.

Her platform was much like that of any civic-minded mother concerned about juvenile delinquency, better education and welfare programs, better housing, irrigation and creation of more industry.

Concrete blocks and frame houses are replacing the old open-sided thatched roof chickees and the open campfire kitchens, but not as rapidly as she'd like. Sewing machines whir in even the primitive chickees, as ducks and roosters and an occasional flamboyant peacock waddle past.

"We need street lights and a lighted recreation area for our young people to keep them off the streets at night," Mrs. Jumper said. "Compared to the white population, our juvenile delinquency rate is low, but it's rising. The white boys come onto the reservations and teach our youngsters to drag race."

Young people are getting away from the stern disciplines the tribal elders used to enforce now that they are in public schools.

She worries sometimes about her own son, Moses Jr., who like every boy in high school wanted his own motorcycle and now drives his own car to school.

Fourteen-year-old daughter Scarlett Marie ("named for Scarlett O'Hara" her mother pointed out proudly) wants to be either a nurse or a secretary.

But unlike the children of other ethnic groups being absorbed into the American culture, young educated Seminoles are loyal about living among their people. They don't want to leave the reservations, the council chairman believes.

"What we need are more arts and crafts and clothing industries, and more modern agricultural techniques so they earn a better living."

Mrs. Jumper isn't hanging by her thumbs waiting for her people to become rich from the $40 million the federal claims court in Washington, D.C., has decided Seminoles are due for the $32 million taken from them in 1840.

More immediately, she visits with older people, sympathizing in their Miccosukee language (a blend of Indian tongues and Spanish idioms) with their dismay over the youngsters who don't take such sacred rituals as green corn dances seriously and who prefer the white man's doctors to the tribe's few remaining elder medicine men. To the younger adults, she speaks English in a soft southern drawl.

Her third child, fifth-grader Boettner, is named for an admired white medical doctor.

"Miccosukee is only a spoken language. I knew I had to learn to read and write English if I wanted to help my people," Mrs. Jumper said. "I had to go West to school because Indians didn't go to Florida schools at that time.

"My grandmother was sure I'd come to harm mingling with whites, as the women in her family had. She thought the only fit life for an Indian girl was helping her with her corn, bean and pumpkin garden until I married."

NCJW Committee On Legislation

The State Legislation Committee of the National Council of Jewish Women in New York, today came out strongly against the proposed new state constitution, stating that repeal of the "Blaine Amendment" is "a disservice to ourselves and to future generations."

Mrs. Jacob Benderson of Syracuse, chairman of the committee, declared that "this amendment to date has safeguarded the separation of church and state, and provided the basis for our public school system. A single public school system for all children, supported by all citizens, has been the backbone of our American way of life," Mrs. Benderson concluded.

Since the constitution is being presented as a single package, without choice on individual provisions, the NCJW committee is urging all New York State Council members to vote against the document.

"We will campaign activiely to defeat the constitution in November," said Mrs. Benderson.

Suddenly Your Silver Polish Is Obsolete!

Your silver's worst enemy "tarnish" has been defeated. Hagerty chemistry gives you a new Silver Care Team that works like magic — one easy application of new Silversmith's Polish removes tarnish, makes silver shine, and locks out tarnish for months and months. Simple dusting with Silversmiths' Gloves keeps it shining and replenishes the tarnish barrier. In test after test, this new Silver Care Team has been proven conclusively to prevent tarnish 10, 20, or 30 times longer than any competing product tested. It's so effective in preventing tarnish that it literally makes all other silver polishes obsolete! Hagerty Silversmiths' Polish — 8 oz. only $2.00; 12 oz. only $3.00 Silversmith's Gloves — $1.40 per pair.
It's as easy as 1, 2, 3!

1 First, clean your silver with HAGERTY Silversmiths' Polish. The Polish produces an effective invisible barrier to tarnish-causing elements.

2 Then, each time you dust your silver, use the darker, impregnated sides of the gloves to invisibly shut out tarnish-causing elements . . . dust regularly to restore the original tarnish barrier.

3 Twirl gloves around for final gentle polishing, remove excess tarnish - preventing chemical . . . buff to a gleaming lustre.

With Early Burst

OCS Routs Wallkill In UCAL Game, 28-6

Onteora Central's varsity recovered two fumbles and blocked a kick in the first period to roll up a 21-0 lead then retired to the bench to let the second and third stringers complete a routine 28-6 UCAL football win over Wallkill Central Saturday at Boiceville.

Co-Captain Mickey Bush completed two touchdown passes to halfback George Colon — one for 10 yards and the other a spectacular 60-yard pass-run play and plunged 2 yards to account for three of the Onteora touchdowns.

The fourth Onteora TD resulted from a blocked punt which fullback John Adsit downed in the Wallkill end zone. OCS is now 3-1 in the UCAL.

Co-Captain Dale Chauncey, who is one of the all-time great Onteora linemen, recovering beautifully from his injury in the Rondout Valley loss, was again his usual awesome presence. He blocked a Wallkill punt on the 22 yard line in the hectic first period and Adsit fell on the ball in the end zone for Onteora's first touchdown. Later he recovered a fumble on an unsuccessful Wallkill onside kick on the visitors' 47-yard line and the Indians marched the 47 yards in 7 plays as Bush plunged over from the 2 yard line for the second TD of the game.

Cocks Grabs Fumble

Alan Cocks recovered a fumble on the Wallkill 17 in the big first period and three plays later Bush completed the 10-yard TD aerial to Colon.

Coach Paul Jordan, pleased to see his club rebound beautifully from the Rondout Valley defeat, cleared his bench after the varsity piled up the 21-0 first quarter lead.

But just to make sure that Onteora did not have to rely solely on fast breaking plays, he sent the varsity back intact for the second half kickoff. And what followed was sheer devastation for Wallkill.

Mike Patrick, one of three quarterbacks used by Jordan (Jim Marcato was the other), returned the kickoff to the Onteora 8. Three plays later Bush hit Colon on the Wallkill 31 and the fleet halfback went the rest of the distance into the Wallkill end zone untouched for a 60-yard touchdown play.

60-Yard Bomb

On the first play, Pete Morey, circled right end for 16 yards to the OCS 24. Bush then hit Clark Van Etten with a 16-yard pass to the OCS 40. Bush faded back and hit Colon on the 31. The latter came up from the right side, veered toward center, caught the ball in mid-field at the 31 and raced into the end zone for Onteora's fourth touchdown. George Stothoof then kicked his fourth successive extra point to put Onteora ahead, 28-0.

Operating against Onteora's second and third stringers, Wallkill marched 85 yards in 12 plays to crash the scoreboard for the only time late in the third period. Quarterback Mike Mulqueen, a workhorse throughout the day for Wallkill plunged over from the 2-yard line but Andy Balsz's soccer style try for extra point failed.

Wallkill marched from its own 43 to the OCS 8 in the closing minutes of the game but Coach Jordan rushed his regular back into the fray. Wayne Simpson dropped an interception on the OCS 15. Two plays later Paul Morey recovered a Mike Mulqueen fumble on the OCS 8 after Dave Beryann jolted the ball loose from the Wallkill quarterback.

Late in the second period, Wallkill marched 66 yards but the Indians stiffened and took over on their own 6. Another 47-yard Wallkill drive came to grief on the OCS 23 against the OCS reserves.

If there is any question about the misleading quality of football statistics, the OCS-Wallkill chart proves it. Wallkill had 12 first downs to Onteora's 7. Total yardage was 201 for Onteora to 190 for Wallkill. It was 87-85 in favor of Wallkill on the ground; 116-193 for OCS in the air. But don't believe those statistics. The game was never that close.

Byrd Runs 90 Yards For Maroon

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Don't write off Port Jervis as a DUSO pennant contender.

While more than 2,000 watched Saturday under the foggy skies at Glennette Field, the Raiders threw their lightning fast "pony" backfield at Kingston High and stopped the locals, 33-14, in the league opener for both schools.

Quarterback Bill Gastmeyer, halfbacks Garrett Hill and Bill Lain and fullback Mike Gould went around, over and through the KHS defense in an awesome show of sheer speed. It was something to behold.

The victory overshadowed an electrifying run by little Marshall Byrd of the visitors. With 11 seconds of the first half remaining, Byrd took the kickoff after the second PJ score on the 10 yard line.

Byrd Shakes Free

He tucked the ball under his arm and headed towards the sideline at his left. Apparently trapped at midfield, Byrd managed to shake free and outspeed the secondary for a KHS touchdown. It sent the visitors into the locker room only trailing by a 13-7 count as Tim Bowens made the extra point.

Port moved 61 yards in seven plays in the first period with Gastmeyer cracking the middle from the one. Carl DeGroat made the first of his three extra points.

With time running out in the second stanza, the Raiders of coach Joe Viglione moved 51 yards in nine plays. The payoff came with 11 seconds of the first half left. Gastmeyer passed to DeGroat, a quick moving end. He made a fake to the outside and then cut towards the middle. He made the catch and fell into the end zone.

Then came the nifty return by Byrd and it was still anybody's game, despite the fact the locals didn't have a first down.

Kingston hopes were dashed within two minutes after the interim. Defensive end Bill Clary intercepted a pass by Mike Hoffman on the K 43. He brought it to the five before being shoved out of bounds.

Two plays later, Lain cracked over and DeGroat booted the PAT. It was now a 20-7 game.

Port put a punt in play on the KHS 32 moments later. Gastmeyer hit DeGroat for a first down on the 19 and for another first down on the six.

Lain lugged the pigskin to the one and Gastmeyer sneaked over for another TD. DeGroat's kick made it a 27-7 contest. It marked the fourth touchdown scored in less than eight minutes of action.

The Classy Raiders were striking again as the third period ended, having moved the pigskin to the KHS 36.

Six plays into the fourth session, Gould bulled in from the two. Again it was a Gastmeyer to DeGroat toss which aided the surge. This one carried 19 yards. DeGroat was wide with his boot.

The KHS offense was dormant until the middle of the fourth period. A 15 yard penalty against the Raiders gave the locals their initial first down.

Hoffman completed a pair of tosses against the second unit. The first covered 22 yards and was caught by Bowens. It gave the visitors their other first down and moved the ball to the PJ 27.

On the next play, the KHS quarterback hit halfback Jeff Perry near the sidelines. He made it to the end zone and Bowens split the uprights with his placement.

Port ran two plays before time ran out.

The Raiders, who figure to give both Newburgh and Middletown battles before the season is over, go for their fourth straight win Saturday at Roosevelt.

Kingston, showing signs of improvement each time out, entertainns winless Cardinal Farley Military Academy Saturday at Dietz Stadium.

One thing is certain. The Maroon players won't meet a faster backfield than the one they faced Saturday. The Raiders were simply too quick and talented.

Lourdes Nips CFMA, 13-6

After being held to a scoreless tie in the first half, the undefeated Warriors of Our Lady of Lourdes scored touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters to nip Cardinal Farley Military Academy, 13-6, in a non-league football game Saturday in Rhinecliff.

In scoring their fourth straight verdict and keeping the Cadets winless, the Warriors were thwarted deep in Farley territory in the opening half.

Mike Erts set up the initial score when he picked off a pass in the third quarter. Taking over on the 40, the visitors cracked the stubborn Farley line and on the ninth play after the interception, quarterback Tim Gartland threw a three yard scoring aerial to end Bill O'Neill. Erts then cracked over guard for the extra point.

The winning TD had some razzle-dazzle touch. Gartland flipped a short pass to O'Neill, who in turn lateralled to Erts, who went 34 yards.

The Cadets stormed back and went 60 yards in 15 plays with Terry Mackell going off tackle from four yards out.

Cardinal Farley visits Dietz Stadium Saturday to oppose Kingston High School.

LAWRENCEVILLE, N.J. (AP) —Steve Turner of Long Island University upset top seeded Barry Conway of Army 6-3, 6-4 to win the singles title in the ECAC fall tennis tournament's university division here Saturday at Rider College.

The Army duo of Rick Wilber and Bill Campbell defeated Bob McKinley and Manny Weiss of MIT 6-1, 6-4 to take the doubles crown.

Army won the team championship in the university division with 10 points. Colgate, LIU, MI, Navy and Rutgers had 5 a piece.

In the college divisions, Mike Ginsburg of Brooklyn College was the singles winner while the Lehigh team of Charles Jennings and Sandy Salam were the doubles champs.

Final standings in the college division were Brooklyn 11, Lehigh 10, Haverford 9, Vermont 7, Hunter 7, St. Lawrence 7, Upsala 6, Bucknell 5, Oneonta 5, Rider 5, St. Francis 5, Connecticut 4, Fairfield 4, Philadelphia Textile 4, Plattsburg 4, Rhode Island 4, Franklin and Marshall 1, Fairleigh Dickinson 1.

RVC, Marlboro Play Scoreless Tie

Defense dominated Saturday at Marlboro as the homestanding Dukes held Rondout Valley's high scoring Ganders to a scoreless deadlock.

Coach Jack Kroh's eleven limited Gordie Taylor, the Gander ace halfback, to 87 yards for the afternoon, only the second time this season he has been limited to less than 200 yards in a game.

A sloppy field hampered the ball carriers and a mist, which fell from start to finish, hurt the passing game of both squads.

Rondout reached the Marlboro 30 late in the second period but lost the ball on downs. The home side fumbled away its only scoring opportunity in the same period.

Despite the deadlock Rondout Valley still clings to first place in the UCAL. The Ganders won three and tied one. Marlboro is second, showing two victories and two ties in four starts.

Roosevelt Rips Arlington, 19-0

Winless Roosevelt High shocked the high flying Arlington Admirals with a rock-ribbed defense and surprised the defending DCSL champions, 19-0, Saturday at the Freedom Plains gridiron.

Reserve quarterback Gary Luhmann played a key role as the Presidents scored their initial win of the campaign.

Taking over for the injured Bob O'Connor, Luhmann completed 13 passes in 22 tries, good for 173 yards.

His five yard toss to fullback And Johnson gave the visitors a 6-0 lead at the interim.

In the third quarter, the Presidents drove 60 yards and Luhmann took it in from the one. Jodie Kagan was successful with his extra point try.

Trying to get back into the game, Arlington had a pass intercepted late in the fourth period. Luhmann passed to end Bob Clark from the four for the final score.

Arlington was so stymied by the FDR defense it was able to pick up only two first downs.

Red Hook Decisions Dover Plains, 26-6

Nearing its Bi-Valley showdown date with Pawling, Red Hook cruised to its fourth straight victory, 26-6, over Dover Plains Saturday at the losers' gridiron.

The Hookers spotted their hosts a first stanza TD as quarterback Pete Dolan heaved 45 yards to Gary Doria, his halfback.

Red Hook knotted the count as Jay Gardner ran 51 yards. The visitors went in front for keeps when Ralph Cort plunged for the extra point.

Cort went off tackle for a seven yard slant in the second period. He also ran for the PAT.

Quarterback Ed Thompson threw a couple of "bombs" in the third session. The first went 30 yards and the second was a 60 yard toss, both of them going to end Terry White.

Hawk Player Gets Four Goals

BOSTON (AP) — Those who wondered how lanky Phil Esposito would get along without Bobby Hull skating on his left wing didn't have to wait long for an answer.

Now there might be some doubt if Hull and the Chicago Black Hawks will be able to get by without Esposito.

Esposito, a gifted 6-foot-1 center obtained by Boston in an offseason trade with the Black Hawks, exploded for four goals Sunday night as the Bruins ranked Montreal 6-2 to remain unbeaten in two National Hockey League starts.

It was the biggest scoring splurge — and first hat trick — for Esposito in his NHL career.

The Toronto Maple Leafs, meanwhile, handed Chicago's defending NHL champions their third setback in three games—pounding the Black Hawks 5-3 despite Hull's third goal of the young season.

Elsewhere, Detroit edged New York 3-2 and Los Angeles trimmed Minnesota 5-3.

Esposito hardly missed exlinemate Hull as he banged in three goals in the opening period and added another in the middle session, staking the Bruins to a commanding lead.

Poughkeepsie Turns Back Sawyers, 21-13

PHS SCORE — Defensive back Gary Stauderman of Poughkeepsie is on his way to a 20 yard touchdown run after intercepting Saugerties High pass Saturday. The Pioneers gave up their first points of the season but still managed to defeat the Sawyers, 21-13, in their DCSL tussle. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Unbeaten Poughkeepsie High School scored a pair of first half touchdowns on Saugerties mistakes and then had to fight for its life before finally beating the spirited Sawyers, 21-13, in a DCSL game Saturday at the SHS field.

Trailing by a 21-0 count early in the fourth session, the winless home side struck for a pair of scores and threw a giant-sized scare into the powerful Pioneers, who had their goal line crossed for the first time this season.

Poughkeepsie scored twice in the first period as halfback Charles Ellis ran 36 yards with a recovered blocked punt and reserve quarterback Gary Stauderman swiped a pass and took it 20 yards for a score. Ray Watkins made both conversions.

SHS Defense Stiffens

Poughkeepsie drove 93 yards in the second quarter but was stopped at the seven. The defensive work on the part of the Sawyer line kept it a 14-0 game at halftime. The expected rout was not taking place.

Coach Don Smith's talented club took the second half kickoff and moved for a third score. Fullback Bill Kreen, a human dynamo, went in from 13 yards out and Watkins again converted.

The fourth quarter belonged to the Sawyers. The first time they had the ball in those final 12 minutes, the Sawyers hit paydirt. A 36 yard run by Tony Konopka was the big gainer. The touchdown came on a six yard pass from quarterback John Warns to end Drew Craig. Fullback Roger Praetorious made the extra point.

After the Pioneers were forced to punt, the home forces moved again. Konopka did most of the lugging. Finally, with a first and goal from the one, he stormed over for a score. Warns attempted a pass for the extra point but it was knocked down.

Again the Sawyers took over. With less than a minute remaining, Warns tried a long one. It was picked off by Rudy Jones at the 20. He ran 40 yards to the SHS 40 as time ran out.

Despite the setback, Seither was happy over the improved performance of the Sawyers. "The boys hit a lot harder and didn't give up. Those mistakes in the first half were the difference," he said.

Minasian-Murray Share Tourney Lead

Ed Minasian of Twaalfskill and his pro partner, Jim Murray of Pine Brook Country Club in Gloversville, posted a best-ball 60 to capture Sunday's Northeastern Pro-Member-Guest at The Twaalfskill Club.

Murray, one of the 1967 tour's leading players, and Minasian, one time Kingston High football star, edged Ray Osborne and Ed Ziombrowski of Pinehaven by one shot. Ziombroski, an amateur, led the entire field with a one-under-par 69.

Bill Gressick, Catskill Country Club pro and John S. Provenzano of Twaalfskill placed third with best-ball 63.

Murray also shared fourth spot at 64 with J. Zambella as his partner. Hap Duval, unattached pro, and William Merrill Sr. also had 64. Duval also teamed with John Madison for a 65 to tie with Ian (Scotty) Robertson and Leon Randall.

Gressick and Frank Montoya of Little Falls tied for low pro honors with 3-over-par 73's.

Alex Gerlak, host pro, was in a 3-way tie at 74 with Jim Hutchins of Woodstock and Marty Czwaikel of Normanside. Robertson posted a 75.

Troy Titans Rip Crusaders

The Hudson Valley Crusaders returned to River view Field in Poughkeepsie Sunday night and lost a 19-2 verdict to the Troy Titans before about 800 fans.

Aside from a snap from center which sailed out of the end zone in the first quarter, the Crusaders didn't come close to scoring.

Highland Turns Back New Paltz Squad, 7-0

After failing to score in four downs from the two yard line, Highland came back to reach paydirt next time it had the pigskin and nipped New Paltz, 7-0, in a defensive UCAL struggle Saturday at the Huguenot field.

Coach Lem Atkins' defending champions remained in title contention with the victory. The Highlanders have a 2-1 record while New Paltz is winless in four league starts.

After a scoreless first half, the winners had several scoring opportunities in the third and fourth periods. They capitalized on the final one as Charlie Hicks scampered in from the 15 and Cus Trapani booted the extra point.

The home side moved well near midfield but couldn't penetrate much beyond that point.

Fallsmen Zip Beacon, 27-0

After four games, the Wappingers Falls Indans have still to yield their first point.

Saturday at Beacon, the Falls Flyers tallied once in each quarter and buried Beacon, 27-0, in a DCSL contest.

While the visitors ground out 214 yards on the ground, their defense didn't permit the Bulldogs to pose a serious threat. In capturing three games and tying one, Wappingers is the only area club to produce all shutouts.

Quarterback Ed Bonnett scored twice for the winners. Charlie McKinney ran 11 yards for the first score and Bill Gates bulled in from the one for the other. Despite his first miss of the season, Mike Guiliano made three of four extra point attempts.

Red Sox Seek More Pitching

BOSON (AP) — Dick Williams, armed with a fat three-year contract as manager of the Boston Red Sox, shopped around for pitching and catching strength today to help his young charges defend the American League pennant in 1968.

Williams, a 38-yer-old former journeyman player, frankly discussed his needs after being rewarded during the weekend with the long-term contract calling for a reported $50,000 a year.

"We'll be looking to strengthen our pitching and catching next year," Williams said. "This is what we'll trade for if the opportunity presents itself. I'm not up to date on the trade situation, but we've been laying the groundwork.

"The winter meetings in Mexico are coming up and we might be able to do some business then."

Williams, who directed the Red Sox from a ninth-place finish in 1966 to the championship in his rookie season as manager, was re-hired immediately after carrying the St. Louis Cardinals to seven games in the World Series.

Denver Cagers Debut With Win

The Denver Rockets opened their American Basketball Association season Sunday night with a 110-105 victory over Anaheim while in the National Basketball Association the St. Louis Hawks posted their second victory of the young season, defeating the San Francisco Warriors 107-102.

Denver's debut was sparked by the 39-point output of Lefty Thomas, who hit 19 field goals and a free throw. Les Selvage and seven-footer Larry Bunce led the Amigos with 26 and 22 points, respectively.

It was Anaheim's second loss.

A slimmed-down Paul Silas led the Hawks' attack with 15 points with four of his teammates also hitting in the double figures.

The Warriors are generally the Hawks' chief rivals for the Western Division championship but they are now without the services of Rick Barry, who chose to sit out this season so he can jump to the Oakland Oaks of the ABA next season.

San Francisco held a 51-49 lead at the half but the Hawks took a three-point lead with 2:43 remaining and never relinquished it.

Port Ewen Juniors Top Saugerties, 4-0

Twelve-year-old Johnny Robinson scored two goals and David Farrell (10) and Bobby Graves (10) had one each as the Port Ewen Juniors blanked Saugerties, 4-0, in a soccer preliminary Sunday at Oehler's Mountain Lodge.

The Port Ewen aggregation, coached by Bob Graves of the Kingston Sports Club, is undefeated in two years of play.

All for the price of a fancier priced car.

$3260 is the latest average price paid for a new car these days. (So says the Automobile Manufacturers Association.)

$3260 will also buy you a new range, a new refrigerator, a new dryer, a new washer, two new television sets, a record player and a $1,695* Volkswagen.

Of course our little package doesn't include all those tricky little items you find on those fancier-priced cars. (like electric ashtray cleaners. Or headlights that disappear when the sun comes out.)

But it does include good food, clean clothes, nice music and a chance to watch all the summer reruns in color.

A lot of people frown on a Volkswagen because they feel it doesn't offer enough in the way of fancy gadgetry.

Giants Nip Steelers, 27-24

Vikings' 10-7 Win Over Packers NFL's Biggest Upset

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

No wonder the winning habit hasn't come easy for the Minnesota Vikings. They only play Green Bay a couple of times each year.

The Vikings pulled the biggest upset of the young National Football League season Sunday, spilling Green Bay's world champs 10-7 on a 12-yard field goal by Fred Cox with eight seconds to play.

It was Minnesota's first victory of the season...and the first setback for the Packers since they bowed to the Vikings 20-17 last November.

"Beating Green Bay is getting to be a habit," quipped Cox, whose second field goal in the 1966 game at Green Bay provided Minnesota's margin of victory.

After losing that one, however, the Packers reeled off five straight victories, beat Dallas for the NFL title, whipped Kansas City in the Super Bowl and got off to a 3-0-1 start this year. The Vikings, meanwhile, dropped five of their last six games in 1966 for a 4-9-1 finish and were 0-4 this season going into Sunday's game at rain-drenched Milwaukee, Wis.

While the Vikings were overtaking Green Bay with a 10-point spurt in the final period, the Los Angeles Rams came from 10 points down in the last six minutes to earn a 24-24 standoff at Baltimore and spoil the Colts' perfect NFL record.

Falcons in Tie

At Atlanta, Wade Traynham's 31-yard field goal with two seconds remaining gave the winless Falcons a 20-20 deadlock with Washington.

At Pittsburgh, Fran Tarkenton's 69-yard TD bomb to Joe Morrison off a triple reverse shot the New York Giants past the Steelers 27-24 with 1:50 to go.

At Philadelphia, Ken Willard's fourth-quarter scoring burst carried the San Francisco 49ers to a 28-27 nod over the Eagles.

The Dallas Cowboys edged New Orleans 14-10, the Cleveland Browns shaded St. Louis 20-16 and the Chicago Bears subdued Detroit 14-3 in other NFL games.

Green Bay's Zeke Bratkowski, unbeaten in eight previous games as a relief pitcher for Bart Starr, had two fourth-quarter passes picked off by the Vikings, who turned each theft into a score.

Rams in Rally

Bruce Gossett's 47-yard field goal and Roman Gabriel's third scoring pass—a 16-yarder to Bernie Casey with 2:57 to play—pulled Los Angeles even at Baltimore. The Colts had won their first four games and appeared to have No. 5 wrapped up on Johnny Unitas' 31-yard TD pitch to Willie Richardson early in the fourth quarter.

Unitas, who signed a three-year contract for a reported $375,000 before the game, also hit Alex Hawkins with a 14-yard TD pass. Lous Michaels kicked a 45-year field goal for the Colts, but missed a 44-yard bid with 1½ minutes reminaing.

The Redskins, beaten by Dallas in the final minute a week ago, erased a 17-14 Atlanta lead on a 24-yard Sonny Jurgenson-Bobby Mitchell TD pass with 42 seconds to go. But Tommy Nobis, Atlanta's brilliant linebacker, blocked the extra point kick by Brig Owens and Traynham's tying three-pointer capped a last-ditch drive by the Falcons.

Trailing 24-20 at the two-minute warning, the Giants caught the Steelers napping when Tarkenton handed off to Ernie Koy, who slipped the ball to Homer Jones on an apparent end-around play. Jones, however, flipped it back to the quarterback, who found Morrison all alone on the Pittsburgh 30.

Willard's winning four-yard plunge avenged San Francisco's one-point loss to the Eagles last year, two touchdowns by fullback Gary Lewis helped stake the 49ers to a 21-10 halftime lead, but the Eagles rallied to take the lead behind Norm Snead, who fired three TD passes.

The Cowboys held off winless New Orleans in the rain at Dallas, stopping a fourth-quarter Saints' march on the five-yard line and thwarting another drive when Dave Edwards recovered a fumble on the seven with one minute to play.

Lou Groza's first two field goals of the season lifted the Browns past the fumbling Cardinals. Jim Bakken's third field goal cut the Browns' lead to 17-16 early in the final period before Groza kicked a 34-yarder with 58 seconds remaining.

Gale Sayers romped over a muddy field for 142 yards and one touchdown and Bennie McRae scored on a 29-yard interception runback as the Bears cuffed the Lions at Chicago. The winners threw only four passes in the game, but completed three—including a 31-yard Jack Concannon-Johnny Morris flip that set up Sayers' three-yard TD run.

See $375,000 Pact For Johnny Unitas

BALTIMORE (AP) — A few years ago, quarterback John Unitas of the Baltimore Colts predicted that within five years someone in the National Football League would be drawing an annual salary of $100,000.

"But," he added, in the same matter-of-fact tone he uses when discussing one of his many NFL records, "it won't be me."

Typically—for Unitas—there was no flag waving when he did reach the magic figure. The Colts, in fact, practically kissed off the signing with the same notice given to the release of a rookie.

Just before the opening kickoff for Sunday's Baltimore-Los Angeles game, a terse announcement was made in the Memorial Stadium press box:

"Attention press. John Unitas has signed a three-year contract."

As usual, terms were not disclosed. But the best guess was Unitas signed for about $375,000, which more than likely would be spread over more than the three playing years. Still, he would be one of the highest-paid athletes and probably tops in football on straight salary, disregarding bonuses.

Now 34 and in his 12th NFL season, Unitas reached agreement with club owner Carroll Rosenbloom on the monetary value of the new contract during the training season, the additional time was used to work out ways of easing the tax bite.

Unitas has acknowledged that he makes more money during the off-season than for playing football—income that will be sharply curtailed when he retires from the gridiron. That's why he sought the long-term payments as he concluded his previous three-year pact.

Had Unitas been injured and knocked out of action before he actually signed, he would have been paid on the basis of the new agreement rather than the stimated $70,000 he earnd annually under the old contract.

Perhaps because of the verbal agreement prior to the season, the Colts did not accompany the signing with fanfare. They failed to capitalize on the publicity value, as did the Philadelphia 76ers last week when they announced basketball star Wilt Chamberlain signed for about $250,000.

Duncan's Act Two TDs Better Than His Dream

Charger Back Intercepts Six Kaycee Passes

By RON RAPOPOR
Associated Press Sports Writer

The voices Speedy Duncan hears give him good information, but his dreams tend to get a little out of hand.

"I had a dream Saturday night that I would intercept four passes and help San Diego win," the Charger defensive back said after an important 45-31 victory over Kansas City Sunday.

In real life, Duncan intercepted just one of Len Dawson's throws, but it was a good one. Duncan took it 100 yards for a touchdown, the longest return of a pass interception in league history.

"Chris Burford had beaten me on that play for the last two years," the 5-10, 175-pound defensive back said. "It's a short up-and-out pattern where he pushes me off, goes for the flag and beats me. This time, I played a yard or two deeper.

"I got the ball with my hand, batted it up and was ready to down it when I heard (defensive back) Bud Whitehead yell, 'Run, Speedy, run, you've got the sideline.' So I looked. Whitehead yelled again, and I ran."

Earlier in the afternoon's festivities, Duncan had picked up a fumble by Mike Garrett and taken it 35 yards for a touchdown.

Other Long Strikes

Two other Charger touchdowns also came on long strikes. Quarterback John Hadl hit flanker Lance Alworth with a 60-yard scoring pass, and rookie halfback Dick Post burst through for a 67-yard touchdown run.

In other AFL games Sunday, New York and Houston fought to a 28-28 tie, Oakland beat Buffalo 24-20 and Boston crushed Miami 41-10. Denver was idle.

The defeat dropped the Chiefs into third place in the AFL's Western Division with a 3-2 mark while San Diego stayed in first with a 4-0 record. The Chargers face Denver, last in the division, next week, and Kansas City tries to take out its frustrations on Houston.

Houston's defense did what its offense couldn't, scoring three touchdowns and setting up the fourth against the Jets. Safety Ken Houston scored on a 71-yard return of a blocked field-goal try and a 43-yard run with a pass interception. Miller Farr intercepted three passes, returning one for a score.

Only Intercept Six

In all, the Oilers interceptd six of Joe Namath's passes and threatened to win the game with a steal on the last play of the game by W.K. Hicks. Seventy-one yards and two laterals later, Namath himself prevented the score, tackling Larry Carwell on the four.

Daryle Lamonica threw two touchdown passes against his former Buffalo teammates despite a lot of pressure from the Bills' line, which threw him five times for losses of 50 yards. The Oakland defense was equally hard-hitting, punishing Jackie Kemp 11 times for 96 yards lost.

Babe Parilli threw five touchdown passes for Boston, three to Jim Whalen and two to Larry Grantham. The Patriots rolled to a 27-3 halftime bulge on four Parilli scoring aerials. Babe finished with 16 completions in 20 attempts and 281 yards gained.

PANAMA CITY (AP) — Edward Fitzgerald of Phoenix, Ariz. and Mrs. Norma Heitzman of Nan Nuys, Calif., were announced today as winners of Panama's 15th international fishing tournament. Fitzgerald won with a 506 pound black marlin. Mrs. Heitzman led the women's division with a 466-pound black marlin. Both catches were made in Pinas Bay off the Pacific Coast of southeastern Panama. The tournament lasted from July 1 to Sept. 4.

Tie for G-A Lead

Kickers Rally Tops Yonkers Team, 5-3

Richie Lotze Bags Two Goals

Outside right Richie Lotze donned the hero's mantle, as Kingston Sport Club Kickers rallied with three goals in the last 15 minutes of play to turn back a stubborn Yonkers squad, 5-3, in German-American Soccer league play Sunday at Oehler's.

The win vaulted the Kickers into a League Division tie for first place with White Plains and Yonkers.

The Sport Club has accumulated nine points with 4 wins and a tie in the five games of the 1967-68 schedule. Their point total of 27 is the highest in the league. They have yielded nine goals to the opposition.

Lotze tied the score on a pass from Bill Newmershinsky at the 75-minute mark after the Yonkers team had forged ahead, 3-2, at the 60-minute mark.

The outside right bounced back with the go-ahead goal at the 86-minute mark, scoring on a rebound from a free kick by Eugene Ventriglia.

One minute before the end of the game, the Ghanian ace Obbie Elliot-Asare took a Lotze pass and boomed in a long goal which was frosting on the cake.

It looked like an easy win for the Kickers when Tony Reinhardt booted a 40 - yarder through the nets at the 22-minute mark and Ventriglia added another at 32:00 to put the locals ahead, 2-0. Reinhardt and Asare teamed up on the combination pass setting up the Ventriglia score.

Yonkers broke the ice with a free kick at 44 minutes, tied it 2-2 at 48 minutes and forged ahead, 3-2, at 60 minutes.

Fros Good Sub

Coach Bob Graves used only one substitution — Gene Fros, who replaced Jimmy Reinhardt at right halfback and gave a tremendous 30 - minute performance. "It was a big factor in our victory," said Graves.

In other League Division action Sunday, White Plains edged Poughkeepsie, 2-1; Dalmatinac routed West New York, 5-1; Schwaben blanked Lithuanians, 3 - 0, and American Czechs stopped College Point, 3-0.

The Kingston lineup:

Goalie—Liekoskie; RFB—Lee Roberts; LFB — Bill Newmershinsky; RHB — Tony Reinhardt; CHB — Winnie Soddermann; LHB—Reiner Schwebel; OR—Richie Lotze; IR—Obbie Elliott-Asare; CF—Eugene Ventriglia; IL—Jon Weber; OL—Walt Grasmeier; sub — Gene Fros.

Kingston plays Dalmatinac next Sunday at 2:30 at Oehler's field.

Middies Top Newburgh, 13-6

Tab Middletown High as the team to beat again in the DUSO football race.

Before a disappointed crowd of better than 4,000 Saturday in Newburgh, the Middies overcame a 6-0 first half deficit and rallied to topple the homestanding Goldbacks, 13-6, in a battle of the unbeatens.

Quarterback Paul Hughes and halfback Bill Clemmer were the Middletown heroes.

Hughes, taking the play away from Wayne Youngs of the home side, passed for 155 yards, including a 49 yard toss which set up the initial score.

Clemmer banged over from the six in the third period and galloped 64 yards after recovering a fumbled lateral in the fourth session. Dick Field made good one of two extra point attempts.

Newburgh, which had hopes of dethroning the Middies as league champions, scored early in the second period as Youngs passed 19 yards to George Butwell.

Aside from that thrust, the NFA signal caller was constantly hampered by the rugged Middletown line.

Both sides had touchdowns called back in the hard hitting struggle.

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Patriots asked American Football League waivers on tight end Tony Romeo today to make room for quarterback Don Trull, obtained from the Houston Oilers Sunday in exchange for an undisclosed draft choice.

Romeo, a 29-year-old Baptist minister, starred at Florida State. He was obtained by the Patriots in a trade with the Dallas Texans in 1962.

Local Man Hurt In City Mishap

A St. James Street man suffered multiple injuries after being ejected from his car in an accident Monday night at 10:54 at the intersection of Delaware Avenue and Moore Street.

Injured was John Carpino, 34, of 152 St. James Street when he lost control of his car. According to police, Carpino was going west on Delaware Avenue when his car skidded into a telephone pole, damaging the right side of the car. The car then swerved into another pole, damaging the rear of the auto. Carpino was ejected, suffering injuries to his right arm and side and his left wrist.

He was taken to Benedictine Hospital by Doctor's Ambulance, treated and released.

$102,000 Loot Taken in Holdup At JFK Airport

NEW YORK (AP) — Three gunmen wearing Hallowe'en masks held up a cargo hangar of American Airlines at Kennedy Airport Sunday night and made off with $102,000 in cash and sapphires and rubies from the Far East.

The bandits appeared at the hangar, in a remote section of the sprawling airport.

The trio, armed with pistols, rounded up an unarmed guard and six freight clerks, then locked them in the hangar.

The cash and gems were being transshipped from the Far East.

Face Snake-Infested Swamps

Plan Bridge Through Bayou

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The state Highway Department is putting together final plans for one of its most difficult construction jobs—bridging the snake-infested wilds of the Atchafalaya Swamp.

"It's a tremendous job," Acting State Highway Director A. B. Ratcliff said. "It's quite a challenge to me."

Highway engineers said the project will probably take more than five years. Contractors may find it tougher to build than the Lake Pontchartrain Causeway of New Orleans.

When completed, the bridge will stretch 18.3 miles across the muck and myriads of bayous making it perhaps the most important link in Louisiana's interstate highway system.

It will be part of a 52-mile stretch, tying in with a new interstate highway bridge across the Mississippi River at Baton Rouge.

Contractors will face a monumental task in moving construction equipment into the swamp.

Ratcliff said contractors would have to bring in most of their heavy equipment by barge. Then they will have the problem of getting it into position for work on the bridge.

The decision to bridge the swamp was made after years of controversy with the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads, which had insisted that an embankment be built.

"If we had tried to put up an embankment, the cost would have been terrific," Ratcliff said. Although embankments have been used in building highways through other swamps, engineers determined the job of dredging the muck and filling it with sand in the Atchafalaya would be impractical.

"Besides, it would interfere with the floodway," an official said.

Even with the modern six-lane, twin-span structure, the cost will be high. For the 18.3-mile section, engineers figure it will cost about $75 million.

For the entire 52-mile route, the cost will exceed $100 million.

The U.S. Bureau of Public Roads recently approved an additional safety lane for each span—meaning that drivers who have car trouble on the bridge will have a place to pull off.

"We were extremely pleased with this decision," said engineer George Landry.

"We will have to let the contracts in stages, because the area is so inaccessible," he said. "We don't want one contractor to block the route of another.

"I have instructed our engineers to prepare a layout of the whole project. I will meet with them and plan the sections we can let, so that we can get the advantage of the best bids and best working conditions."

Building the interstate through the swamp between Baton Rouge and New Orleans is also a tough job—but not nearly so much as licking the Atchafalaya. Because an embankment will be used in the swamp between Baton Rouge and New Orleans, a barge with dredging equipment will be able to dig out all the muck and form a canal.

Then sand will be slung into the canal for fill. Once the sand has impacted and settled, the construction of the road will begin.

Attention Veterans

A very small or possibly no down payment may be needed to buy this neat, 3 bedrm., 2 story home. It is centrally located in the city and close to schools, on 75 Andrew St. There is a large lot, 2 car garage, reasonable taxes and new baseboard hot water heat thruout. Payments for the right buyer would be just $100 a month, including taxes.

Dear Abby

They Need Understanding

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for saying that a divorcee can be alone thru no fault of her own, just as a widow is. Most people aren't willing to give a divorcee a kind word. I am a divorcee because a wealthy widow decided she wanted my husband.

"FOOD FOR THOUGHT"

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the widow who wonders why widows keep losing all the eligible men to divorcees is one that I would like to answer. My qualifications: A bachelor who has had a great deal of experience dating both.

On a man's first date with a widow, she will pull a picture of her "dearly beloved, deceased husband" out of her purse and then tell you how "wonderful" he was, and what a beautiful life they had together. (If you ask around, their life wasn't nearly as "beautiful" as she said it was.)

Then, to show you how domestic she is, she invites you to her home where, on the living room wall, hangs a big picture of "HIM" staring you in the face all evening. (If you had any romantic ideas about her, this will kill them fast.)

Her conversation is about how "good" he was to her and the trips they had together. It is sickening.

A divorcee, on the other hand, will seldom mention her ex-husband's name. And if she does, she doesn't make you feel as tho you are competing with a saint.

I've known exceptions, of course, but as a rule, divorcees are much better company. Sincerely, EXPERIENCED

DEAR ABBY: I was quite interested in your article a while back where the widow complained that she has lost out several times to divorcees, and asked you why.

As you know, the longer a woman is a widow, the greater was her husband, and it often gets to the point that he was the most magnificent human being who ever lived. The following story may illustrate the point:

"The greatest man who ever lived was Huggins. Broad-minded, tolerant, generous, temperate, patient, brilliant, yet he died with all his good qualities unsuspected."

"Well, how did you manage to find out so much about him?"

"I married his widow."

Sincerely yours,
ALBERT M.,
SAN FRANCISCO

Confidential to C. V. K.: Young couples would do well to heed this advice. If you need money, don't borrow from a friend or relative on an "interest-free" basis. Get it from a bank or a legitimate loan agency, and pay the interest. The needling, abuse, and aggravation the indebted one sometimes gets from his "benefactors" isn't worth it.

Horoscope — By SYDNEY OMARR

It's In The Stars—

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

Forecast for Tuesday, October 17, 1967

ARIES (Mar. 21 - Apr. 19): Weight of added responsibility, pressure is indicated. Much appears to center around domestic circle. Get co-operation of family. Stress harmony, good will. Avoid arguments.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Time now to deal with matters that were hidden or undercover. Be responsible for past promises, responsibilities. Realize that direct action will chase away foolish fears.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Some friends may appear troubled. Key is to be realistic. Sharpen vision but avoid daydreaming. You can make plans which result in profit. Be persistent, determined.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Prestige, standing in community is emphasized. You can put finishing touches on significant project. Some who give orders may appear dictatorial. Maintain calm, balance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Remember duties close to home. May not be so good for journeys. Break through red tape. Study operational methods. You could be overlooking basic step.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Your sense of perception is put to test. Utilize intuitive intellect. Look beyond surface indications. Pounce on any hint. Take advantage of any opportunity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Some associates may appear ponderous, ultraconservative. Maintain sense of humor. Be reasonable. Respect age. Make wise concession but hold tight to principles.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Serious consideration required with regard to work methods. You may be adhering to old-fashioned devices. Take a fresh look. There may be way to cut red tape.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Hold tight to budget strings. If you try to buy your way there is loss of face. Simple approach today is best one. Don't speculate. Act on facts. Avoid wishful thinking.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): If you have delayed basic tasks, today you may be called to explain. Know this and get busy. Applies especially to fixing things around the house. Install safety devices.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Avoid heavy-handed methods. Applies especially in dealing with relatives. May be difficult for you to see situation as a whole. Wait for all facts before making decision.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - Mar. 20): Financial advice received today deserves serious consideration. Heed voice of experience. Realize importance of intelligent savings program. Look to future rather than immediate needs.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a natural executive and would excel at law. You need outlet for self-expression and might help enlighten others in areas of justice.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for ARIES, TAURUS, GEMINI. Special word to Sagittarius: frank talk with member of opposite sex is required.

Timid Players Lose Oftener

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

You don't get to be a great bridge player by sitting back in a rocking chair and waiting for sure thing bids. You have to take calculated risks from time to time.

If Eric Murray's eight-point vulnerable double of South's one no-trump response had backfired at him, we can see the chorus of criticism from the defeatist players — who criticize beautifully and never win when and if they get to the table against tough competition.

Opening lead—♠ Q

Anyway, this double in the World's Championship Match worked to perfection. North saw no reason to run. Sammy Kehela with his nice East hand was delighted to pass. South had reason to think that a run-out to diamonds would be a case of out of the frying pan into the fire. Actually two diamonds would only go down one trick but South could not tell that North held a good five card diamond suit.

West opened the queen of spades and continued the suit after South ducked in both hands. South's nine of diamonds drew the queen and ace. Kehela won the next diamond with the ten and led a low club to Murray's ten. Murray cleared the spade suit and eventually the defense collected three clubs, three spades, two diamonds and 500 points.

The bidding started the same way at the other table but the Italian West did not double. He would have been incurring far greater risk than Murray because in our systems North could have a very good hand. In the particular Italian system used here the diamond bid and no-trump response were both rather limited bids.

Our net gain on this board was 300 points, or seven International Match Points. Although Murray did not know it since they were in the middle of a season, it left the match an exact tie.

Slates Top Dramatic Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The first of the season's important dramatic shows will arrive Tuesday night, a drama of the kind television talks about a lot but rarely presents.

The play, an original by Loring Mandel called "Do Not Go Gentle into that Good Night," stars Melvyn Douglas and Shirley Booth. When CBS broadcasts the 79 minutes of drama, there will be no commercial interruptions—and that's really special.

Currently just about everything short of the Saturday morning kiddie cartoons are being labeled "specials," and the language used to describe some more special than others is beginning to sound like grades of olives.

George Schaefer, who for the past decade has concentrated on directing and—lately producing—NBC's "Hall of Fame" dramas, directed the program, his first outside assignment for a long time.

The current emphasis on special programs, particularly drama, he believes is forcing welcome changes in programming concepts.

"Hall of Fame," for instance, will break its familiar mold by kicking off its season with an adaptation of "A Bell for Adano," and later in the season will present Shaw's "St. Joan."

For years the NBC series has specialized in presenting performers of major stature like the Lunts and Julie Harris, in historical biographies—colorful, beautiful and perfectly safe.

"For at least three years I've been screaming to get away from that," Schaefer said. "But what really changed it was the success of the movies—and movie nights on television are really a succession of special programs—plus the success of 'Death of a Salesman.' Now there is once again real interest in original drama—so the wheel has made a complete circle again."

The return to favor of meaty drama in specials may, he hopes, bring back some of the talents who have moved into motion pictures. "There just was not enough to television to keep them busy--men like Franklin Schaffer, Fielder Cook and Delbert Mann," Schaefer said. "Unless they wanted to turn out religious programs for Sunday mornings, there was not drama beyond the series. So they left and they've all done very well."

Turning out Mandel's drama for CBS's "Playhouse" series was not without its crises. Rehearsals were almost over and taping ready to start when Fredric March, who was to star, was stricken with a circulatory ailment and hospitalized and his wife left the cast with him.

"I was lucky beyond my best dreams—Douglas found he could make the time and Miss Booth was willing to break into a vacation to handle the emergency," Schaefer said. "And they are great."

Joey Bishop, whose late evening ABC show had been catching on nicely until forced into reruns by the recent strike on the network, has had a contract renewal that will carry the show to January 1969. The program, incidentally, resumes with new shows tonight.

Recommended tonight: "The Bob Hope Show," NBC, 9-10 EDT, with Debbie Reynolds, Eydie Gorme and Steve Lawrence.

Cites Disagreement on City Budget

Smith Sees Garraghan-Gallo Team as 'Ridiculous'

LOUIS J. SMITH

"We've heard the expression that politics make for strange bedfellows, but this one is more than strange, it is almost ridiculous, Louis J. Smith, Republican - Conservative candidate for alderman-at-large, said today in reference to the Garraghan-Gallo team running for mayor and alderman-at-large, respectively.

Speaking before the Republican City Committee, Smith recalled the problems Mayor Garraghan had in getting approval of his 1967 budget from the Common Council. "The situation became so ridiculous that finally, in desperation and because the affairs of city government demanded that a budget be passed, it became necessary for the five Republican aldermen to demand a special meeting of the Council for the specific purpose of passing upon the Mayor's Budget. The budget was passed at this meeting by a coalition of the five Republican aldermen and three Democrats," Smith said.

"You will recall," Smith continued, "that a group of Democratic alderman, led by none other than T. Robert Gallo of the Ninth Ward, had gone so far as to present their own version of a budget, which soon came to be referred to as The Gallo Budget. This same Gallo is now the running mate of Garraghan," Smith said.

"We wonder how Garraghan accepts his running mate. We further speculate what will happen in the unlikely event that Garraghan and Gallo are successful in this election; how would Garraghan feel having as head of the Common Council a man who has repeatedly displayed an intense personal dislike for him coupled with an absolute refusal to cooperate to any degree? It is a matter of record that the mayor had more than his share of difficulty with Francis Koenig as alderman-at-large, but with Gallo it promises to be even worse, if such is possible," Smith charged.

Smith went on to say "I do not mean to create the impression that I harbor any sympathy for Garraghan. I readily admit that many of his problems were brought about by his own lack of leadership and refusal to recognize the legitimate function of the Common Council. My concern is for the group that really suffers in a situation like this, and that is the City of Kingston. When you have this type of situation where deceit and doublecross are the rules governing legislative action, the city has to be the ultimate loser. This, sad to relate, is what we have today," Smith said.

"The team of Garraghan and Gallo promises little change. It is a known fact that the mayor for many months has refused to have any personal contact with Gallo—it is interesting to observe them along the campaign trail trying to appear to be compatible. How can they present themselves to the voters as a legislative team?" Smith asked.

Smith concluded by saying, "If elected as your alderman-at-large I pledge my complete cooperation with Mayor C. John Bechtold. Together we will make an executive-legislative team that will work always for the progress of our city. Together we will plan legislative program that will best serve our people. Always mindful of the constitutional division of executive and legislative functions, cooperation between the two branches can be accomplished."

Final State Consent Given For TB Hospital Conversion

Final consent for conversion of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital to use as a county infirmary was secured last week from Dr. William R. Donovan, New York State regional director, clearing the way to convert the 50 beds to use by the Ulster County Social Services for county infirmary patients.

The TB clinic will be continued as in the past, using a separate portion of the building for clinic purposes.

Plans are now under way to transfer the remaining TB patients to Homer Folks Hospital at Oneonta, probably next week. Seven patients will be transferred, one by ambulance and the other six by station wagon. Approximately a half dozen other, patients who have been hospitalized are consibered sufficiently recovered to become "out-patients" and will not be transferred to Oneonta.

When the 50 beds are transferred to the Ulster County Social Services Department, the clinic will be transferred to the Ulster County Health Department for operation. An application will be made to the Board of Supervisors Thursday for the transfer of a portion of the funds to Ulster County Health Department for continuation of the clinic.

Alterations at the TB Hospital on Golden Hill necessary to use the facility for infirmary purposes, have been practically completed and following transfer of the TB patients to Oneonta, will be followed shortly by use of the 50-bed facility for county infirmary purposes.

A conference was held in Albany last Wednesday with local and State Health Department officials for discussion of plans necessary to put the 50-bed facility in use as a county infirmary. The new facility will augment the present infirmaries operated at New Paltz and in Kingston by the Social Services Department.

Call More Witnesses In CR Murder Trial

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP) — The 12 defense lawyers have summoned more witnesses at the federal court trial of 18 men charged with conspiracy in the deaths of three civil rights workers.

As the trial starts its second week today, 40 witnesses had taken the stand. Defense lawyers said the case may go to the jury by midweek.

Testimony before the weekend recess was given in behalf of six of the defendants: Olen Burrage, on whose farm the three bodies were found; James T. Harris, Meridian; Jimmy Arledge, Meridian; Edgar Ray Killen, of near Philadelphia, Miss.; Alton W. Roberts, Meridian; and Herman Tucker, Philadelphia.

In each instance, the jury was told that the defendant was elsewhere at the time of the June 21, 1964, killings near Philadelphia.

Before sending the all-white jury of seven women and five men home for the weekend, Judge Harold Cox announced he would deal severely with anyone who tried to talk to a juror about the case.

The 18 white men are charged with conspiring to violate the civil rights of the three slain men. Maximum punishment under the 1870 law is 10 years prison and a $5,000 fine. No state charges were ever filed.

The government contends that the White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan set out to execute Michael Schwerner, a white Congress of Racial-Equality staffer in Meridian, and also killed two men who were with him.

Schwerner, 24, of Brooklyn, was accompanied by Andrew Goodman, 20, also white of New York, and James Chaney, 21, a Negro of Meridian, on a drive to the Philadelphia area to investigate a Negro church burning.

The government said Neshoba County Deputy Sheriff Cecil Price arrested the three on a speeding charge, held them until night fell, and delivered them to the KKK crew.

Auto Talks Continue In Secrecy

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers union continue their contract talks in secrecy again today.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther and Malcolm L. Denise, Ford vice president for labor relations, were expected to head the bargaining teams in the third straight day of face-to-face talks.

They met for 10 hours Sunday, but neither side reported the results of that session.

A news blackout the two sides imposed at 9 p.m. Tuesday remained in effect.

The strike by 160,000 Ford workers is almost six weeks old with a total wage loss the company estimates at more than $140 million. The damage to Ford's business won't be fully known for months to come, but its new car sales in the first 10 days of this month were 60,000 below those of the same period a year ago.

Workers struck at 11:59 p.m. Sept. 6 when the old three-year contract expired.

Prior to the 9 p.m. Sunday recess, there had been speculation that settlement was so close that the bargainers would continue talks on an around-the-clock basis to wrap up the contract.

ART THEFTS - - Believe Burglaries Solved

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

The State Police Bureau of Criminal Investigation believe they have the man responsible for a two-year series of burglaries of antique shops and art galleries in the Woodstock-Saugerties area.

During the night of October 7, a Saturday, a Kingston State Police uniformed patrol arrested a Saugerties man outside a Veteran antique store and charged him with burglarizing the establishment.

The man, Robert Francis Paganelli, 28, of RD 1, Box 400, Saugerties, waived examination before Town of Ulster Justice of the Peace Arthur A. Reilly and was remanded to the Ulster County jail.

Later, County Judge Raymond J. Mino released Paganelli, on what was called "a high bail," to await further court action.

It was through questioning of the accused and a search of his house, however, that convinced investigators that they had a major breakthrough in the two-year series of unsolved burglaries.

A search of the Pagnelli home, under the authority of a warrant, turned up $4,000 worth of stolen paintings and antiques, according to BCI Investigator John G. Salters—the alleged haul taken from eight area antique shops and several art gallaries.

According to Investigator Salters, Paganelli seemed drawn to the works of Woodstock artist Robert Angeloch, a painter of realistic landscapes.

Angeloch's works were stolen from the Art Student's League Gallery and the Lewis Gallery, both in Woodstock.

It was discovered, however, that most of the Angeloch works—about $10,000 worth—were destroyed by fire which the BCI believes was used by the suspect in an effort to destroy evidence.

Paganelli will appear before the Grand Jury at a later date.

WOODSTOCK FATALITY — A 20-year-old Kingston man was killed and three others injured Sunday night when a car in which they were traveling along Route 375 near the Woodstock golf course crashed into a tree. State troopers and a tow truck crew worked 20 minutes before they freed the victim from the wreckage of the vehicle shown above. (Freeman photo by Glenn Fitzgerald)

City Youth, Teener Die In Separate Mishaps

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

Death rode the highways of Ulster County for the second consecutive weekend and claimed the lives of an 18-year-old Ellenville woman and a 20-year-old Kingston youth, who were killed in separate one-car accidents investigated by State Police.

Four other persons including a Kingston fireman were injured in the two mishaps.

State Police identified the victim of a spectacular one-car accident which occurred on the State Thruway north of Saugerties Friday night as William E. Hall, 24, of Albany. Two others were seriously hurt when the 1967 car was sliced in two after crashing into a bridge abutment.

1967 Toll at 37

The three fatalities boosted the Ulster County highway death toll for 1967 to 37. Five persons have been killed in county mishaps this month. The 37th fatality in 1966 occurred Aug. 8 on Route 9W at Glenerie.

The other victims of the weekend fatalities were:

Michael Modica, 20, of 159 Washington Avenue, a passenger in a car involved in a one-car mishap on Route 375 Woodstock, Sunday night, and Miss Nancy June Van Keuren, 18, of Ellenville, who died of injuries sustained in a one-car accident on Route 52, east of Walker Valley early today.

State Police Sergeant Joseph Ellsworth of Kingston, said Modica was a passenger in a car operated by Michael S. Andrews, 19, of 37 Wall Street, who was driving north on Route 375 near the Woodstock golf course at 8:20 p. m. Sunday, when he lost control. Ellsworth said the car failed to negotiate a right curve, went off the highway, veered back to the east side of the road and hit a tree.

When authorities arrived at the scene they found Modica pinned between the wrecked car and a tree. Andrews sustained abrasions of the right hand and knees, and contusions. He was treated at Kingston Hospital and released.

Cause of Death

Troopers said Modica died of a skull fracture and crushed chest.

Other occupants of the Andrews car were Jay Thorn, 21-year-old Kingston provisional fireman of 35 Montrepose Avenue, who suffered a fractured right femur and head injuries, and Thomas Komosa, 22, of Colonial Gardens, who sustained lacerations of the scalp and injuries of the right ankle. The injured were taken to Kingston Hospital by Doctors Ambulance and State Police. Modica was pronounced dead on arrival.

Investigating the Woodstock fatality with Sergeant Ellsworth were BCI Investigator James Kaljian, Troopers Carl Van Wagenen, Craig Bremer, R. G. Bergin, David Wachtel, assisted by Woodstock Chief Constable William Waterous.

Sergeant Ellsworth said the mishap occurred about three-tenths of a mile south of Route 212 on Route 375, Town of Woodstock.

Troopers reported investigation of the fatality will continue.

Fatally Injured

Miss Van Keuren, 18, of 13 Pershing Avenue, Ellenville, was injured fatally at 2 a. m. today when the car in which she was riding failed to negotiate a left curve on Route 52 one mile east of Walker Valley. Trooper James Curtis said investigation disclosed the vehicle skidded sideways in a ditch for a distance of 350 feet, overturned several times and traveled 125 feet before it came to rest on its wheels.

Miss Van Keuren and and the owner of the car, Wayne Harrison Krom, 18, of Grahamsville, were both ejected from the vehicle as it rolled over, and troopers investigating the mishap had difficulty in determining who was driving the car at the time it careened out of control.

Trooper Curtis said Miss Van Keuren died of a fractured skull and internal injuries. Krom suffered a skull fracture and internal injuries. He was taken to Ellenville Community Hospital for emergency treatment and later transferred to Kingston Hospital. The fatality was investigated by Trooper C. R. Larsen of the Accident Investigation Unit, Zone Sergeant Russell Dauch, BCI Investigator M. J. Bonney and Trooper J. E. Kelly.

Continued investigation of a spectacular accident on the State Thruway about two miles north of Saugerties Friday night, established the identity of a man killed in the mishap. State Police said the victim was William E. Hall, 24, of Albany.

In Rented Car

According to Thruway troopers, Hall and Thomas Smith, 27, of 16 Albany Avenue, Albany, and William Scott, 21, of 839 Brandt Street, Schenectady, were traveling south in a 1967 car owned by Chrysler Rental Service of Detroit, Mich., when the vehicle went out of control and slammed into a bridge abutment.

The force of the impact cut the sedan in two pieces, Smith and Scott were both hurled from the vehicle. The man identified later as Hall, was slumped in the front seat. Troopers said it had not been determined who was driving the car at the time of the fatal crash. They said witnesses observed the vehicle was traveling at a high speed before the mishap.

Ulster County Coroner William S. Keyser investigated with state troopers from the Thruway and Kingston stations.

Bechtold Raps Meeting Even Before It Happens

C. John Bechtold, Republican-Liberal candidate for mayor, today labeled Mayor Garraghan's meeting this afternoon on urban blight as "sheer campaign hogwash."

The story of the 4:30 p. m. meeting with the Building and Housing Code Department appeared in Friday's Freeman. Bechtold referred to the meeting as an "obvious attempt to hoodwink the people into believing that finally some action was being initiated to solve this problem."

Garraghan has proposed the registration of all apartments as a means to curtail violations of city building codes. Under the Garraghan plan no apartment could be rented or dwelling sold until it met with all city housing and building regulations.

Referring to the Freeman article Bechtold says "A careful reading of the statement clearly indicates that what is really being done here is nothing more than what has been accomplished to date... exactly nothing."

Let us analyze the "action" that is being taken here," Bechtold said. "It is just another meeting with the Mayor's own building code staff to, in the Mayor's own words, "work on new legislation" in the city's fight. This whole statement is an empty promise to do nothing. The Mayor in his usual style is procrastinating, making any promise to keep the people quiet for a while, hopefully in this case until after the election, and then a return to the Garraghan do-nothing style of city administration."

"Let us review the entire situation concerning Building Code enforcement," Bechtold said.

"During the administration of Mayor John J. Schwenk the Common Council did adopt a uniform building code. As part of the enforcement procedure of this new code, a survey was made of the entire city, of every building that might be in violation. This report was completed either in late 1965 or early '66. Therefore, it is a fact that complete information has been in Garraghan's possession ever since he took office," Bechtold said.

"The next step was to begin a program of code enforcement. The mayor submitted as part of his 1967 budget an item for some $16,000 additional funds for his building department for the expressed purpose of building code enforcement. The council passed this measure, but, this is where the whole program came to a halt. Despite the many loud protestations of the mayor, it is a fact that there has been no enforcement of building codes in the city, Bechtold charged.

Building Inspector Radcliffe admitted this before the 10th Ward Action Committee. Thereafter, and at the same meeting, the mayor gave his usual lame excuses, and now after several such sessions he has finally initiated some action against a grand total of two properties in that area for conditions which existed long before the Action Committee was organized. I fear that here too the mayor has merely performed another of his famous "con jobs" by promising anything necessary to relieve the pressure of the moment," Bechtold said.

"The final step of this program was the workable program which was to be a carefully planned and executed means of rehabilitating residence properties. Here is where there has been an utter and complete faiure to even begin planning such a program. Yet, how many times has the mayor talked about this?" Bechtold asked.

"The whole building enforcement situation in our city is a prime example of the Garraghan administration's handling of governmental affairs. The rule here is government by deceit—the big promise—no action—the big lie to cover the situation of the moment. Meanwhile our city continues to go downhill . . . a sad situation indeed," Bechtold concluded.

Gorman Outlines Objectives

Wants County Ethics Code

During a press conference held at the Governor Clinton Hotel today, Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, chairman of the Ulster County Democratic Committee, called for a county code of ethics, a central purchasing agency, an elected county executive. He accused Republicans with "perpetuation of mediocrity."

Citing the objectives of the Ulster County Democratic party in 1967, Dr. Gorman declared that the 1956 Tompkins investigation "clearly demonstrated the need for defining a code of ethics to guide our elected officials."

Raps Patronage

Gorman said a code of ethics "would limit the awarding of political patronage, would reveal obvious conflicts of interest and would prevent premature disclosure of confidential information that would be profitable to a certain few friends of the administration."

He further stated that the Democrats "propose and pledge ourselves to such a code of ethics and we challenge the Republicans to do the same."

Dr Gorman asked why it took so long "for the Board of Supervisors to take any action to alleviate jail overcrowding?"

He mentioned that the county had been criticized for its "overcrowded jail conditions, lack of juvenile detention facilities and for a lack of rehabilitation and prisoner recreational facilities.

He asked "why hasn't the Republican administration seen fit to accept the recommendations of a Democratic sheriff to solve these problems?"

Cites Waste

The Democratic chairman also charged "Ulster County is wasting tens of thousands of dollars through uneconomical purchasing." Gorman claimed that much duplicate purchasing was being done by various county departments.

"We believe that a central purchasing agent would save thousands of dollars by putting the county in a better bargaining position through volume purchasing."

On the subject of public recreation facilities, the Democratic chairman said "the failure of Ulster County to utilize existing federal and state programs for the development of recreational facilities has caused the waste of thousands of acres of available land. We pledge ourselves," he said, "to actively seek the assistance of state and federal agencies in developing swimming facilities, public golf courses, public marinas and public parks and campsites for use of Ulster County residents."

Gorman claimed that "we will seek the appointment of a county park commission to guide in the orderly development of an overall plan for recreational facilities."

The chairman of the Ulster Democrats said that "politics of an unethical nature continues to rear its ugly head... in the perpetuation of the coroner system.

"In 1965 over 24,000 people voted for a physician who advocated the medical examiner system. Isn't this indicative of their favoring this plan?", he asked adding, "why then the lack of response from the Republican dominated Board of Supervisors?"

The Democrat further declared that the Ulster GOP "has not nurtured the creation of an Ulster County Industrial Planning Commission."

Gorman claimed that such a commission would "attract new industry that will provide jobs and encourage our young people to remain in Ulster County."

Dr. Gorman pledged the Democrats to backing a "county charter form of government . . . with a fulltime elected county executive."

Scores Ratio

The Democrat also hit at the felony conviction — felony indictment ration claiming that "there is no reason why Ulster has to have the lowest ratio of the 62 counties in the state. A heavy caseload," he said, "is no excuse for a poor record."

Dr. Gorman called further for a tax map of Ulster County citing that "hundreds of acres of privately owned lands are not on the tax rolls."

Gorman further accused the Republican administration "of lack of foresight in not developing training programs to permit more of our welfare recipients to enjoy the dignity of full employment." Ulster Democrats, he said, would seek a welfare agency staffed by fully qualified people devoid of political appointments and would raise the morale of the staff by this elimination of political patronage."

Rhinebeck Petition Asks Budget Vote

A parent and taxpayer's petition, asking the Rhinebeck Board of Education to adopt the austerity budget under which it is operating, plus four additional items including transportation and instructional services, is expected to be presented at a meeting tonight.

About 450 of the 570 required signatures had been secured as of this morning according to Mrs. Arthur R. Locke Jr., one of those promoting the petition.

"At the moment, it looks good," she said, hopeful that the needed names will be obtained by nightfall.

The petition calls for a special meeting to vote on the contingency budget of $1,300,-677.61 mandated after voters twice turned down board proposed budgets. It also calls for a vote on four separate items: instructional services (urged by the Rhinebeck Teacher's Association) $39,375.25; transportation, $18,368; operation and maintenance of plant, $7,775.04 and inter-fund transfer for cafeteria, $1,000.

Should the petition be successful a fourth referendum will be held with district residents voting on five separate propositions.

City Pharmacy Sale Revealed

Negotiations for the sale of the United Pharmacy, 329 Wall Street, Kingston, to Ralph Megna, who is associated with a chain of Parker-Megna drug stores in Brooklyn, are expected to be finalized in two weeks.

George Svirsky, president of the Wall Street pharmacy, said his decision to sell the business had nothing to do with his future political ambitions. He explained the negotiations had been underway the last several months.

Svirsky has been prominently mentioned in Republican circles in the city, as a potential candidate for a seat in Congress in 1968.

The Parker-Megna chain of drug stores in Brooklyn have been operated for many years on a "price conscious" level, according to Svirsky, who pointed out that Megna will continue to conduct business at United Pharmacy on a high level with possible lower prices. Megna also plans to expand the business, which has been successfully conducted by the present owner.

Asked about his future plans, Svirsky said "I haven't a vague idea at this time as to my future." Commenting on his ambition to win the Republican nomination for Congress in 1968, Svirsky noted that he "is not actively seeking the nomination, neither have I declined to accept the Republican nomination."

Svirsky said he had heard reports that Ulster County Republican Chairman John B. Sterley and Hamilton Fish Jr. planned to confer on the Congressional outlook for 1968 at the Governor Clinton Hotel today. He said he did not expect to attend that conference.

If nominated by the GOP as its candidate for Congress next year, Svirsky will oppose incumbent sophomore Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, Ellenville Democrat, who defeated Fish, Dutchess County Republican hopeful.

Last November, Svirsky, prominent business man and leader in civic affairs in the area many years, announced he was seeking endorsement of the GOP as the party's candidate for Congress. He said at that time he had "been approached" and commenting on his candidacy added, "after great consideration . . . I feel it is in the best interests of my community and my party to seek this office."

Svirsky, who plans to continue to work at the Wall Street pharmacy until early next year, will continue to serve as the campaign manager for C. John Bechtold, Gop candidate for mayor of Kingston, and Louis J. Smith, Republican candidate for alderman-at-large.

Ownership of United Pharmacy formerly known as United Cut Rate Pharmacy, 324 Wall Street, was transferred to Svirsky the week of July 14, 1948 from the former owner Mortimer H. Englander. Svirsky had thorough experience in the drug business, including management of several large chain stores in upper New York State before taking over the local store.

The Day the British Razed 'A Rebel's Nest'

TEMPORARY CAPITAL AT HURLEY

By JEAN DOLAN

A nest of rebels reduced to smoldering ashes — That was Kingston exactly 190 years ago today.

The Wiltwyck settlement which had grown to increasing importance in the Revolutionary War was put to the torch by British General Vaughn who gloated in his official report he had "reduced the place to ashes." It was he who labelled the village which served as the first New York State Capital a "nest of rebels" and a "nursery for almost every villain."

Harsh words but to be expected from an emeny at the doors of the "third largest settlement in the State." Earlier in 1777, Kingston hosted the first State Constitutional Convention and on July 30 George Clinton took the oath of office as first governor of the state at the local courthouse. The first court held under the new constitution convened at Kingston Sept. 9, 1777. Rebelious actions against the Crown certainly.

The British sailing northward up the Hudson, burning and plundering along the way, arrived opposite Esopus Island about 5 p. m. Oct. 15. By the afternoon of the 16th they were making their way back to their ships with the smoke of the burned village blending with the autumn haze behind them.

But what of the villagers themselves? The alarm had sounded when the British forces were sighted on the river. Word of the northbound fleet had reached the community earlier and the state government had faltered as men left to protect their land and families. The Council of Safety, hastily formed of the remnants, ordered food and livestock taken to safer ground.

As the British forces were landing on the morning of Oct. 16 a mass exodus to Hurley was underway. Excitement mounted as householders sought to hide valuables and load belongings.

Deputy County Clerk Christopher Tappan is credited with saving many valuable records while losing some of his own possessions to save them. However a more colorful account says it was his wife who saved the records while he was helping defend the village. According to a manuscript at the Senate House, she carried them away in her skirts.

The women of the village figured prominently in history of the holocaust, doing much to maintain their households as best they could. One such devoted housewive, Mrs. Benjamin Low, after fleeing with family and portable possessions returned with her servant to "do some wash." Her errand completed, she fled again just as troops rounded the church corner.

The village was not completely deserted when the British arrived. At a little house near the slave cemetery, a woman in labor lay in a cellar alcove, giving birth to Johannis Van Keuren as the wooden frame of the dwelling caught fire.

Teenager Rachel DuMond helped her mother and father to safety and returned to the house at Green Street and Lucas Avenue to save the farm

Spending and Taxes Occupy Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another fiscal donnybrook confronts Congress this week, with the House the arena for action.

Involved, as they have been for weeks, are the issues of taxes, spending, appropriations and whether Congress or the President should take the lead in putting the federal financial house in order.

The big battle comes Wednesday when the House acts on a fourth emergency appropriation bill to put money into the coffers of government agencies whose regular appropriations for the year that started July 1 have not cleared Congress. Their emergency funding expires next Monday.

The shape of the emergency measure is to be molded at a meeting of the Appropriations Committee today.

Republicans are trying to tie to the bill a requirement that the President cut spending for the fiscal year by at least $5 billion. The President claims that assignment can't be carried out until all the appropriation bills become law.

The GOP came within eight votes of winning when they tried that approach to enforced economy Oct. 3.

Appropriations Committee Democrats are convinced the Senate would not accept the GOP plan. That could cause a House-Senate deadlock that would be difficult to break by next Monday.

They huddled with Chairman George H. Mahon, D-Tex., and tossed around several alternative proposals Friday but reached no decision.

There was strong sentiment, however, for a requirement that the President freeze government employment until Congress finishes its appropriation tasks.

If the Senate went along, that would give Congress a breathing spell to finish the appropriation bills and give the Appropriations Committee time to draft another measure taking back some of the money Congress has appropriated this year and in past years.

Four appropriations bills, all compromises, could be disposed of this week, leaving only a few in the legislative mill. The compromises carry money for military construction programs, the Department of Transportation, the space program and a score of other agencies.

Mahon has promised to present later in the session a general bill rescinding specific appropriations already made. He takes the position that Congress, not the President, should decide where cuts should be made.

The GOP proposal for a mandatory $5 billion reduction doesn't spell out the areas for cuts.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee has not changed his insistence that before his group will even consider the President's request for tax increases, there must be concrete evidence of sharp cuts in spending. His committee colleagues support his position. It doesn't care who wields the economy axe so long as it falls heavily.

Arab Saboteurs Losing War Hopes

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Under unrelenting pressure from Israeli security forces, Arab saboteurs appear to have given up hope of starting a guerrilla war in Israeli-occupied areas west of the Jordan River.

Sources here said El Fatah gangs backed by Syria are pulling out of bases from which they have carried on a terror campaign for the last six weeks.

The sources said the raid on the Ma'oz Hayyim kibbutz in northern Israel Sunday is a strong indication that the saboteurs have reverted to the tactics they used before the Middle East war last June—hit-and-run raids across the Jordanian border.

Four bombs caused damage at the kibbutz but no casualties were reported. Army spokesmen said the tracks of three men led to the Jordan River, a mile east, and that 15 Soviet-made submachine-gun magazines, grenades and othe rammunition were found near the kibbutz.

Israeli security officials say they have rounded up at least 200 terrorists west of the river. They claim they have broken the most successful group of saboteurs and have uncovered an El Fatah operations center in Jerusalem.

Arabic-speaking Israeli agents are still searching adobe villages for isolated resisters but curfew sand other restrictions are being eased in Nablus, Tulkarm and Jenin, formerly saboteur centers.

Israeli tank gunners pounded suspected El Fatah bases east of the Jordan Saturday after snipers began firing near Sheik Hussein Bridge. It was the fiercest battle on the Jordanian border since the war.

The raid on Ma'oz Hayyim was the fifth in two weeks in the Beisan Valley, which runs south from the Sea of Galilee 25 miles to the old Israel-Jordan frontier.

The lush valley is vulnerable to sabotage raids, lying along the only sector of the border unchanged by the war and the only direct point of entry to Israel from Jordan.

Upstate GI Killed in Viet

DUNDEE, N.Y. (AP) — Richard V. Smith, 21, a Navy Medical Corpsman who had been in Vietnam war zone since Sept. 3, was reported killed last Thursday in the fighting there, his parents say.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Smith of this Finger Lakes village said Saturday their son enlisted in the Navy in July 1964 after graduation from Dundee Central School.

He leaves a brother and a sister besides his parents.

The family lives on Himrod Road.

Slated for North Viets

Armament Buildup Spotted in China

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. intelligence experts are puzzling over mysterious shrouded shapes spotted in a Communist Chinese railyard just above the North Vietnamese border.

At first, some experts thought the shapes might be tanks covered by tarpaulins on rail flatcars.

But sources say there is a growing belief the objects may be heavy self-propelled artillery, possibly bigger than any guns yet used by the North Vietnamese.

U.S. Marines at Conthien already have been battered by Communist artillery from north of the boundary separating North Vietnam from South Vietnam.

About eight tarpaulin-covered objects are among the mass of materiel which U.S. authorities said has been been building up in the big rail complex of P'ing Hsiang, which lies on the important train line between Hanoi and Nanning in south China.

Officials said the Chinese obviously have been stockpiling supplies and rail rolling stock at P'ing Hsiang in preparation for the extended period of bad weather, now closing in.

Under cover of this heavy rain and clouds, the Communists can hope to move supplies over the battered — but repaired—rail line to Hanoi while foul weather badly hampers U.S. bombing.

Sources said self-propelled artillery has been reported being unloaded from Soviet ships in Chinese ports.

Some government sources said there are indications the Soviets may be bypassing the port of Haiphong with war material and landing it instead in Red China, for shipment by rail and truck to North Vietnam.

The shapes which appear in U.S. reconnaissance photos are of the dimensions of either tanks or heavy self-propelled artillery, sources said. As always, they would not discuss the origin of the pictures.

One source said it looked as though the guns under the shroud might be somewhere between 140 and 160 millimeters.

Marine authorities in Washington have said the biggest guns known to be firing at Con Thien are about 130 millimeters. Such guns could reach about 18 miles south of the Ben Hai River boundary between North and South Vietnam, covering much of the important Marine front and extending to a point just above the city of Quang Tri.

Recently, Pentagon officials said somewhere around 70 Communist artillery pieces have been bombarding these Marine positions.

Ordnance officers suggested the mystery weapons possibly awaiting movement south from P'ing Hsiang could be 152 millimeter Soviet heavy assault guns.

These have about a 20-mile reach and hurl a heavier projectile than the artillery the Communists now have trained on Con Thien.

Four in Family Dead in Crash

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Four of seven members of an Ohio family driving to Syracuse to visit relatives were killed Saturday when their automobile smashed into a parked construction crane along the State Thruway.

Troopers said Mrs. Solomon Brown, 33, and a son, Anthony, 8 of Cleveland, and Mrs. William Brown, 35, and a daughter, Gertrude, 13, of Toledo, died in the crash.

They said the car struck the crane on the center mall after apparently skidding off the highway near a triple interchange at nearby West Seneca, on the eastern edge of Buffalo.

Three family members injured in the accident remained in fair condition Sunday. They are Solomon Brown, 39, and his daughter, Jeannette, 7, both at Mercy Hospital, and a brother William Brown, 33, at Our Lady of Victory Hospital.

Police said the Syracuse relatives, T.C. Brown, a brother of the two men, and their sister, Mrs. Dorothy Williamson, identified the dead.

Solomon Brown lives at 653 125th St., Cleveland.

William Brown's address is 733 Green St., Toledo.

Mother, Child Die in Fire

DEPEW, N.Y. (AP) — A 35-year-old mother, her 1½-year-old daughter and two other young children perished in a fire early today that swept a 2½-story apartment building in this village east of Buffalo, police said.

Mrs. Lorraine Galuski, her daughter Lee Ann, Dawn Champane, 16 months, and Kelly Champane, 5, died in the flames.

Damage to the building, which houses eight apartments, was estimated at more than $35,000, police said.

In addition to those killed, 24 persons, including 10 children, were made homeless, they said.

The cause of the fire was not determined immediately.

Forest Fires Ravage Large Los Angeles Area

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A series of scorching brush fires spread a patchwork pattern of destruction over the tinder-dry Los Angeles area Sunday, leaving one person dead and 40 homeless and blackening 26,000 acreas.

The worst of the fires—a 10,000 acre blaze at suburban Chatsworth in the San Fernando Valley 30 miles northwest of Los Angeles—destroyed 22 homes and raged through the night.

Fire officials said the Chatsworth blaze combined with a 3,000-acre fire in the Simi Valley of southern Ventura County. Both fires were burning on a 20-mile perimeter bordering U.S. 101, the Ventura Freeway.

Fire department spokesmen said Janet Cameron was killed at Simi when a fire truck collided with her car. Two firemen and other motorists were hospitalized. Traffic on the Ventura Freeway to the Simi area was backed up for eight miles at one point.

In addition to the 22 homes destroyed, Battalion Capt. Jake S. Dukes said, the Chatsworth blaze damaged 30 homes. Red Cross workers set up a shelter at a nearby church.

"I lost everything," said Edward Collins whose home went up in flames. "everything—house and furnishings. My son and daughter lost their home too. I stayed to fight the fire until it got so hot I had to leave. New I have nowhere to go. All I have is on my back—pajama top, trousers and shoes."

No homes were damaged in Simi but a tract of homes near Thousand Oaks was threatened during the night. The fire burned around the rocketdyne testing center of North American Rockwell Corp., destroying several small sheds.

A blaze threatened homes in the residential suburb of Whittier about 15 miles southeast of Los Angeles.

"It burned right up to the back doors of some houses," a Los Angeles County fire official said, but the flames were contained before there was any structural damage.

In Santa Paula, 100 miles northwest of Los Angeles, two ranches were destroyed in a blaze that had swept across 16,000 acres.

It was still reported burning out of control Sunday night.

The hot, dry Santa Ana winds which fed the flames had died down during the night but the whirling air current was expected to gain momentum again. The mountainous path of the fire was inaccessable to most fire fighting equipment.

Business as Usual

Caught between its demands for economy to avoid the unpopular surtax at the beginning of an election year and its desire for "pork barrel" appropriations to defray the costs of public works in their own states and districts, Congress played it safe for itself with a business as usual decision. The pork barrel will be full, no matter what the cost to the taxpayers.

The House had passed the public works bill overwhelmingly by authorizing $4.617 billion. The Senate first refused to trim $248 million from the bill and then topped the House version by $153 million, passing a $4.77 billion pork barrel by a vote of 82 to 3.

In addition to appropriating money for river, harbor and floor control projects, the bill contains funds for the Atomic Energy Commission, water pollution control and other projects. Differences will be worked out in conference, but with such one-sided votes for the pork barrel, there is no chance it will be reduced substantially.

Another big money bill breezing through as usual is the $4.95 billion agriculture appropriations. The House did demand that the Senate back down on three additions it had made—totalling $1.57 billion at least on paper. However, $1.5 billion of the amount involved a bookkeeping transfer to the Commodity Credit Corporation and thus would have no effect on actual Government spending. If the Senate refuses to accept House demands, the bill will go back to conference. With farms and farmers declining in numbers each year, the wonder is that agriculture appropriations continue to rise each year.

Finally, the House decided not to let economy interfere with granting some two million Federal employes their 15th increase in 22 years, which coupled pay increases with increases in postal rates. President Johnson had sought separate bills, but the House provided pay increases amounting to $850 million, topping the President's proposal by $73 million. The Senate seldom rejects pay increases, and these can be expected to become final.

Yep, Congress wants economy, but won't do it the hard way, any more than the President will. War or not, it's business as usual on the eve of an election year.

Soviet Budget for War

The Soviet Union is budgeting for war—fought by others to advance Communist aims. The biggest increases in defense spending in its history were announced by Finance Minister Vasily Garbuzov. The publicity disclosed defense spending amounts to $18.6 billion. Western analysts believe this is less than half the actual defense spending. The rest is hidden under other budgetary headings, to bring the real defense budget closer to $40 billion.

As Garbuzov explained the increases, they are necessary because "international tensions demand increased attention to our defenses." Actually, that means the cost of rearming the Arab states to carry the Soviet aim of dominating the Middle East, and the cost of arming North Vietnam to continue Communist aggression in South Vietnam.

The United States spent $67 billion for defense in fiscal year ending June 30 last. President Johnson has asked for $72.3 billion for the current fiscal year, that began July. The difference is accounted for largely by the difference in our high pay economy and the Soviet's state monopoly. Actually, the two defense budgets reflect the cost of fairly evenly matched war machines.

Vanishing Skid Row

Skid row, that last refuge of homeless men, is fast disappearing as a part of the American urban scene. A study of 29 major skid row areas in as many cities throughout the country reveals that urban renewal and welfare programs have dispersed skid rows, if not eliminated them.

Howard M. Bahr, director of Columbia University's Bowery Project, concluded from the study data that skid row is gradually vanishing. However, he did not think that the absolute number of homeless persons necesesarily, is declining, though in some places the decline of skid row population may represent real attrition to the homeless.

Of the 29 cities surveyed, only Tacoma, Wash., was found to have an increasing skid row population. Boston, Birmingham and Richmond were found to have stable skid row populations. The remaining 25 cities surveyed showed declines of up to one-half.

The Bowery and other less colorful skid row areas in the country were never dangerous places. Recently, they have been invaded by hoodlums. That can account for the vanishing skid row element. Many older men are afraid to walk the streets that once were so hospitable to them. They are the healthier for the change, even though it is not so easy any more to locate the homeless in skid rows.

Soviet Is Holding Up Viet Armistice

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—The biggest single factor holding up the cessation of hostilities in Vietnam is the failure of the Soviet Government to use its influence with the North Vietnamese to bring about an armistice and the negotiation of a peace agreement.

Secretary of State Rusk, in a lengthy conference with newsmen on Thursday, emphasized that there has not been the slightest intimation from the Hanoi Government as to what it would do if there were a suspension of bombing by the American side. When the reporters asked Mr. Rusk what Russia was doing to bring peace, he replied that he had absolutely no information. The transcript of the press conference on this point reads as follows:

"Q. Mr. Secretary, is it not correct that this government was informed by the Soviet Government, on the authorization of Hanoi, that if the bombing was stopped there would be a conference between the United States and North Vietnam within three or four weeks?

"A. No, we were not informed that. There was a public statement by Mr. Kosygin, in London. But Hanio has not said that, to our knowledge....There is no one in the world who has been able to tell us what Hanoi would do if we stopped the bombing....

"Now, we are interested in peace. We are not interested in a sanctuary which will let them carry on these operations against South Vietnam and Laos for eternity while they sit there in a sanctuary taking their own time, paying no price, trying to seize their neighbors by force."

The most obvious fact of all is that North Vietnam could not continue to fight the war without the direct help of the Soviet Government. The conclusion is inescapable that Moscow is acquiescing in the Hanoi Government's adamant position in refusing to withhold military action if the bombing is stopped by the American forces. Secretary Rusk nevertheless concluded his formal statement at his press conference with the following:

"I cannot tell you when peace will come. I am encouraged by progress toward peace in South Vietnam, but I cannot name a date. But we shall continue our effort both by resisting those who would impose their solutions by brute force and by an unremitting exploration of every path which could lead to peace."

Mr. Rusk did not specify exactly what the factors are on which he bases his feeling of encouragement that peace is in prospect. But it may be inferred that the war in Vietnam today is going better for the South Vietnamese Militarily and that he believes there are elements in the world situation which may eventually persuade the Soviet government that the time has come to call a halt in Vietnam.

It could be that the Soviets are reluctant at present to take the initiative because of their uncertainty over the attitude of the Red Chinese.

The machinery for conducting peace negotiations is, of course, available. Mr. Rusk pointed out that Great Britain and the Soviet Union were co-chairmen of the Geneva Conference in 1954 and could bring about a peace conference immediately. He said that the British co-chairman is willing to go ahead but that "if the other co-chairman won't cooperate, there is very little chance" of peace. When Mr. Rusk was asked what the "motive" of the Soviet government is in failing to reconvene the Geneva Conference, he replied:

"I find it difficult to get into motives. I would suppose that Hanoi categorically refuses a Geneva Conference, and therefore the Soviet Union is unwilling to step out in front and join with the British co-chairman to convene a conference to which Hanoi and Peking both strenuously object."

While the Soviets may be inclined favorably to the idea of reconvening the conference, the Red Chinese have not been persuaded as yet that it would be to their interest, too. So the "encouragement" to which Mr. Rusk refers may be based on a hope that the Soviet government will finally assert itself and reconvene the Geneva Conference even if the Red Chinese are not too pleased with such a step.

ROME, Italy — This is a timeless town. There was a dusty water clock in the Villa Borghese and it was exact for 300 years. One day a boy heaved a rock through it. On the majestic facade of St. Pete's there are two clocks with china-blue numerals. One proclaims that the time is 7:40, the other insists it is 2:20. Both are correct twice a day.

The people of Italy are anti-time. They are nourished on conversational debate, and they have lost the art of terminating talk. Polite terms and expressions of felicitation or sympathy or slow-burn disagreement require many minutes, even before one approaches the subject.

In Rome, the people feel that watches should repose in jewelers' windows. The shops open at 8 a. m. and close at 1 p.m. They re-open at 4 p.m. and close at 8 p.m. The Eternal City is a vast conglomeration of shutters going up and down, or in and out. To buy a pair of sox the customer must understand that the clerk's greeting is going to be "una momento" and that, for the next fifteen minutes, there will be a swift conversation between a clerk and a customer who has already paid his bill.

On the road, Rome is different. It is the only city in the world where drivers going in both directions straddle the white line. To a Roman, a car is not a vehicle. It's a weapon. The streets are full of squeaky little cars with squeaky little horns, and language no one ever saw engraved on a church.

When a Roman driver sticks his hand out a window, it is not a turn signal. The hand points upward, and the fingers are meshed together in a gesture of contempt. At high speed on a four-lane autostrada, it is impossible to jam a cigarette paper between the fenders. One driver, trying to emerge from an impossible situation, yelled in Italian: "Don't move, don't breathe; the X-ray machine is on."

The telephone is Italy's penance. It can carry the fine Italian voice, the flowery words, but it doesn't translate the gestures, which represent forty percent of the meaning. It is possible that Mussolini blew the last war because of Alexander Graham Bell. Who could understand the boss when he had one hand on the transmitter?

This afternoon, I phoned the Vatican and asked for Monsignor Deskur. A polite voice replied: "It is nothing. It does not apply," and hung up. I tried seven times and now I can't distinguish between a busy signal and absolution. At our hotel, the Excelsior, the operator says hello and pulls the plug.

Ten years ago, it was impossible to get a plate of spaghetti in Rome unless it was served as a side dish. The Romans quietly insisted that the only people who would eat spaghetti as an entree were, in descending order, Napolitanos, Sicilianos, and Americancs. Now they have been converted. Rome serves spaghetti with meat sauce, and pizza stands are all over town. Ironically, they think they're copying from us.

Italy also boasts the biggest Communist party in Europe. It polls about 25 per cent of the vote. The people are natural political protesters. They are extremely Catholic, but anti-clerical. The average parish priest has a difficult time trying to get the men to attend mass, while at the same time remaining aloof from domestic squabbles.

The magic of Rome does not lend itself to words. The ruins of the Caesars stand in broken colonnades, but they are no more compelling than the nightly parade of Italian beauties on the via Veneto. The sparkling waters of the Trevi fountain are matched by spouting dolphins in other fountains around the city.

The timelessness of the city is exemplified, I believe, in the vast number of pilgrims from the nations of the world. A German priest, wandering, asked an Italian which way to walk to St. Peter's. "Straight ahead," said the Roman. I asked why he said it that way. "Because," he explained, "no matter where he stands in Rome, the way to St. Peter's is always straight ahead."

Chairman Mills Favors Millionaires Over Poor

WASHINGTON — Behind all the maneuvering over a tax increase, House Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., is deftly trying to shift the cost of escalating the Vietnam war from the rich to the poor.

Maneuver No. 1—Mills flatly refused to close the tax loopholes to raise the money needed to pay our growing military bills. This would have come out of the pockets of the privileged.

Maneuver No. 2—He demanded that President Johnson match the tax increase by cutting an equivalent amount out of the Great Society programs. This would come essentially out of the pockets of the poor.

The most equitable way to reduce the Vietnam war deficit should be to plug the tax leaks and compel the privileged to pay their fair share. Treasury officials acknowledge privately that a tax increase would not be needed at all if Congress would only stop up the loopholes.

Hardest hit would be the oil millionaires, who shout from the rooftops about their patriotism but who use the 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance to escape paying their share of the Vietnam war costs.

The able and amiable Mills, however, has always treated the oil millionaires as if they were underprivileged. He would rather squeeze the necessary military revenue out of social programs that help the needy.

He may deny, of course, that he wants to take food out of the mouths of the poor rather than deprive the oil millionaires of their sables. Yet in the back rooms of the Ways and Means Committee, the demands for spending cuts have been directed principally at the anti-poverty program.

In contrast, not a single Ways and Means member—least of all Mills—has shown the slightest disposition to tighten the oil depletion allowance. The most Mills has promised, simply to placate the public, is that he will take up tax reform next year (when the pressure is off).

Meanwhile, Mills has already pushed a tough, new Social Security bill through the House, cracking down on needy mothers who receive public assistance.

He has also shelved the tax increase, suspending it until the President comes up with a plan for cutting federal spending. No one knows better than Mills that $115 billion of the $136 billion budget is earmarked for national security expenditures fixed by law. This leaves $21 billion for all civilian expenditures. Of this, not much can be trimmed from established programs such as the postal service. Thus little is left to cut except the social programs.

Note: Mills' defiance shook the White House, which had always found him cooperative in the past. One reason, say committee insiders, was strictly personal. The Ways and Means chairman was disgruntled because President Johnson hadn't bothered to consult him during the backstage debate on the tax hike.

More Escalation of War

Two grim, unannounced decisions have brought a relentless intensification of the "Air War North," as the brass hats call the bombing of North Vietnam. Our planes not only are striking targets within 20 seconds flying time of the Chinese border, but they are also hitting facilities, heretofore taboo, where Soviet citizens may be killed.

President Johnson reached these dangerous decisions after a painstaking policy discussion. They are:

1. Despite appeals from world statesmen and domestic doves for a bombing pause, the President has decided to keep up the air attacks at least for the remainder of the year. He will take another look at the situation during the traditional Christmas-New Year truce.

2. Because the monsoons will hamper the bombing beginning next month, the Air Force will blast North Vietnam harder than ever while the weather is good. For the unreported fact is that our all-weather planes have had trouble hitting the targets in foul weather.

The air strikes in South Vietnam, known as the "Air War South," will also be stepped up.

President Johnson, however, has not approved all the targets the Joint Chiefs of Staff want to hit. They would like to knock out the North Vietnamese ports of Haiphong, Cam Pha and Hon Gai. Furthermore they also want to hit the remaining unbombed airfields in North Vietnam.

They have also submitted a list of targets, both military and industrial, in population centers. They point out that the communists, aware of our reluctance to hit populated places, are using them as sanctuaries. The Reds haul their military supplies in quick spurts from civilian sanctuary to civilian sanctuary. Their missile-launching sites and antiaircraft gun emplacements have also been deliberately concentrated in civilian areas.

Secretary of Defense McNamara argued vigorously against bombing civilian centers. He noted that the infiltration rate has increased from 1,500 a month at the end of 1965 to 6,500 a month today, despite the bombing. As fast as the bombs fall, he argued, Hanoi merely releases more men from its large standing army to infiltrate across the 17th parallel.

In the end, the President accepted most of the joint chiefs' arguments but also adopted McNamara's caution.

Intelligence Digest

The communist agitators in Hong Kong appear to have been left high and dry. They were taking their orders from Tao Chu, the top communist in the Canton area, who has now been accused by the Red Guards of thinking anti-Mao thoughts. Tao Chu's authority has been undermined, and the Chinese troublemakers in Hong Kong no longer are getting support from the Canton leadership. . . . The Russians are preparing to launch a space spectacular, probably this month, to celebrate the 50th Bolshevik anniversary and the 10th anniversary of the first Sputnik.

Henry J. Taylor Says

Mismanagement Costly to Air Force

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Instructors at the great Air Force Academy, the service's equivalent to Annapolis and West Point, are teaching strategic principles that are fouled-up by the conduct of the Vietnam war.

"Could anything be more incredible," one affiliated airman stated to me, "than to see American forces of half a million, serving a nation possessing the greatest aggregate of land, sea and air power the world has ever known, mucking around in the swamplands and paddy fields of Southeast Asia still nibbled to a standstill?"

The absolute cream of the Air Force Academy crop is in Vietnam, suffering shattering, heartbreaking losses. We now have 140 airfields in Vietnam, including nine jet airstrips 10,000 feet long. The adjacent Thailand complex, with 40,000 U. S. airmen and 550 planes is tremendous. Carriers catapult flyers from the Gulf of Tonkin. We're even using Navy planes designed to carry nuclear bombs as if they were World War II low-level intruders. Our great Strategic Air Force, based on Guam, not designed for such use, is used nearly around the clock.

Hitler sent 1,200 bombers over London on Sunday, May 10, 1941—the largest air attack of the war. But one whole squadron of Nazi Heinkel III-K bombers, their best, did not deliver as much bomb tonnage as one of our B-52s.

Throughout four years we dropped 500,000 tons of bombs in the vast Pacific areas. In only the past 10 months alone we've dropped more than that in an area hardly larger than the State of Michigan.

Asked about the questionable results, the air professionals pull out Secretary Robert McNamara's testimony before a Congressional committee regarding the Johnson-McNamara target selections:

"The targets influencing enemy operations are the roads and the war materials being moved over them. The North Vietnamese harbors, electric power, dams, etc., are not targets of fundamental consequence."

Experienced strategists know that as early as the African campaign in World War II we found it absolutely impossible to stop supplies by attacking one truck at a time, blowing up bridges, rails, etc. Accordingly, less than 10 per cent of our World War II bomb tonnage was targeted against roads, railways and the vehicles moving on them.

The Johnson-McNamara decision is absolutely unprecedented. I gather it has been merely a long-shot experiment in a field where the previous incontestable proof taught here made it a ghastly folly and that this overruling of our air authorities has proven directly responsible for a large part of the war's total cost before the endless failure forced partial amendments.

If "history is a lantern," the lantern must have gone out.

The tested doctrine requires that when enemy airfields are hit they must be hit simultaneously, not in a protracted schedule of one by one. First, much of the enemy air power remains a force in being. Second, regrouping beefs up the remaining airdromes. Behind the scenes able Gen. John P. McConnell, chief of the Air Force, futilely pressed for the proper method as long ago as March 2, 1965 by the official record.

Air strategists find incalculable what our flyers and troops have paid for that mistake performed under the slogan "gradual escalation."

In fact, air strategists stare in shocked protest at this whole sloganized, unworkable formula and condemn it, as has Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, as unsuitable to save lives and end the war. The fundamental accepted throughout the military of the world is Stonewall Jackson's classic: "When war comes you must draw the sword and throw away the scabbard."

Strategists are equally aghast that, after six long years, President Johson and Secretary McNamara still refuse to permit a unified command and appoint a supreme commander in the field. The air war is directed by Adm. U. S. Grant Sharp from Camp H. M. Smith in Honolulu (CINCPAC headquarters) where he is commander in chief of U. S. forces in the Pacific area, not by Gen. William C. Westmoreland in Vietnam, as popularly supposed.

After hearing the private dismays of our military commanders, at NATO's headquarters, in Naples, Brussels, Rota, Spain, regarding the mismanagement of this horrible war, the conclusion is inescapable that the American people are the victims of the greatest military scandal in the history of the United States.

Tax Opponents Bolstered By Unemployment Rise

By WILLIAM J. EATON
Chicago Daily News Service

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—Opponents of President Johnson's surtax proposal are expected to seize on a sharp rise in the national unemployment rate to bolster their case against higher taxes now.

The Labor Department, however, attributes the increase in the jobless rate from 3.8 to 4.1 per cent last month to a surge in the number of women seeking jobs. It says the job picture was still "strong" in September. Unemployment among adult men fell slightly.

Arthur M. Ross, commissioner of labor statistics, said yesterday that the economy is still in a "modest but sustained expension." Other statistics backed this view.

Businessmen added to their inventories by $375,000,000 in August—a plus sign. Retail sales climbed in September to $26.7 billion, just a shade over the August figure.

The general prosperity, according to Ross, helped draw an additional 1,000,000 women into the job market last month, about twice as high as the normal monthly gain. Although most found work, there was a 250,000 increase in the number of jobless women in September.

This is the month that children go back to school, so many mothers had more free time to seek employment. A change in the method of taking the job surveys—inquiring about job-hunting in the past month instead of the past week — also may have elevated the women's unemployment figure.

Even without the new argument, foes of the President's plea for a 10-per cent surtax on corporation and individual incomes were confident they have blocked action this year.

Rep. John W. Byrnes (R.-Wis.), ranking GOP member of the House Ways and Means Commitee, said the tax bill is dead even if Mr. Johnson comes through with the $5 billion or more in spending cuts demanded by the committee's chairman, Wilbur D. Mills (D-Ark.).

House GOP leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan decried Johnson administration hints of cutbacks in highway construction funds as a "red herring." Ford said such reductions would not affect the budget deficit since highway money comes from a special fund built up by taxes on gasoline, not out of the Treasury general revenues.

Provisions of Proposed N.Y. State Constitution

(Editors: This is the first in a series of five articles discussing provisions of the remodeled state constitution to be submitted to New York voters in the Nov. 7 election)

BY CHARLES DUMAS

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The fate of New York State's remodeled constitution in the November election is inseparably linked to a religious issue bound to stir the emotions of many voters.

Although the Constitutional Convention made numerous changes in the state's basic charter, none is as likely to affect the electorate's decision as much as the proposal to repeal the present ban on financial aid to church-operated schools.

The existing provision, known as the Blaine Amendment, dates back to 1894, when it was written into the charter as an outgrowth of a presidential campaign highlighted by arguments over "rum, Romanism and rebellion."

While many Roman Catholics regard it primarily as a noxious vestige of religious prejudice that should be expunged, others of their faith take a more practical view of repeal—the prospect that their parochial school system will become eligible for millions of dollars in sorely needed assistance.

The Democratic-controlled convention did not really need the strong prodding it received from Catholic Church interests to vote overwhelmingly for repeal—as it did without hesitation.

In place of the present stringent prohibition, the convention wrote into the constitution language similar to the U.S. Constitution's First Amendment edict against enacting any laws "respecting an establishment of religion."

In a further effort to placate those who argued that repeal of Blaine would violate the traditional separation of church and state, the delegates added a provision entitling any citizen to file suit to prevent unconstitutional spending of public funds.

The act was hailed not only by Catholic clergy, who are mounting a massive campaign for approval of the proposed constitution, but also by Orthodox Jews who operate some schools of their own and thus stand to benefit similarly from repeal of Blaine.

Protestant and other Jewish elements continue to oppose the repeal, however, and are campaigning vigorously against adoption of the new constitution for that reason.

The decision of the convention's Democratic leaders to present the new charter to the voters in a single package was motivated partly by an assumption that they would draw a heavy "yes" vote from Catholic voters—about 40 per cent of the electorate.

Prominent Republicans, who dislike other features of the charter, have tried to counter by promising that the 1968 Legislature will take steps to repeal Blaine if the voters turn down the one-package offering.

How much aid would be available to church-operated schools if Blaine is rescinded is still an open question. It depends on how far the government might choose to go under limitations of the federal stricture.

Another controversial change in the education field would make annual registration of pupils, rather than average daily attendance, the basis for apportioning public school aid. Upstate Republicans oppose this on the ground it would help New York City, which has the highest percentage of dropouts, at the expense of upstate communities.

Elsewhere in the education field, the most significant provision would direct the Legislature to establish a system of higher education that "may" include free tuition in public and private colleges.

This is a watered-down version of the original plan of Convention President Anthony J. Travia to mandate free tuition. Gov. Rockefeller and other Republicans resisted that plan on the ground that tuition income was needed to finance expansion of the State University system.

The new charter also would give constitutional mention for the first time to the State University and the City University of New York. This was done to protect the institutions against any possible moves to abolish them.

Viet War as 1968 Issue Is Seen Eluding the GOP

WASHINGTON (NEA)

A high-placed Democrat seriously doubts that the Republicans, for all their recent stirrings, can make an effective clear-cut 1968 campaign issue of the controversial Vietnam war.

He holds this view in full expectation that the war will still be raging a year from now;

"Hanoi is not going to negotiate before the election even if we offer them California."

This Democrat's argument is that Republican choices on the war issue are roughly as limited as those President Johnson believes he has.

By this notion, the GOP can neither endorse all-out war nor suggest withdrawal without splitting their own ranks widely and perhaps losing crucial support in the electorate.

Republican minority leader Everet Dirksen's newest lashing of the President's GOP critics is a powerful sign of what would happen if any really heavy dove-ward pressure developed in the party.

The top Democrat contends that the Republicans will have to propose some kind of tightly governed war which in real fact would be very close to the President's own course—with emphasis on limitation, on "prudence," on selective attack.

Their great need will be to make this seem different. They can argue, in part, that merely having a "fresh face" in the White House will enlarge the outlook for settlement, even though the policies pursued wil be the same. Many Republicans already are trying to make this case.

Beyond this, they must conduct a search for variations on an existing theme. Here, too, the quest has already begun.

The Democratic source suggests that this explains what he calls the Republicans' recent "English country dances," proposals that have the sound of something new but would not materially alter the concept of the conflict as a limited war for limited goals.

These include restricting bombing to tactical war zones or adjacent supply areas and an end to "search-and-destroy" missions.

These and other inventive notions may be heard often in the months ahead. But they will be judged more closely as the 1968 campaign warms up, and particularly after the Republicans get a presidential nominee and a Vietnam policy plank in their platform next August. Says the rival party source:

There's only one dart board up there now (LBJ), but later on there will be two, and both will be fired at."

No criticism from Republicans made as big an impact as that from Kentucky's Sen. Thruston Morton. He is noted for his crusty candor and his political sensitivity. When he spoke out, it was widely assumed he had scaned the electorate and read there an ominous disenchantment with the war.

Yet there are many here who share the view of the quoted Democrat — that Republicans will be hard-pressed to devise convincing alternatives, especially since three of their four leading nominee prospects (Nixon, Reagan and Rockefeller) are hawkish.

Some politicians in both parties are suggesting, moreover, that this latest flurry of doubt over the war confuses one thing badly: To what extent are newly disaffected voters—and responsive politicians—voicing war weariness, and to what extent are they questioning the fundamental strategic idea of our being in South Vietnam and Southeast Asia?

They may be saying our staying power is running out. Or they may be arguing that our "world power" has overreached itself and should be pulled back. We had better know which it is, for it affects our whole future—and the free world's.

Car in Mishap Hit Second Time at Scene

A car operated by Eileen Barton, 20, of 192 Salem Street, Port Ewen, was involved in two mishaps within a few minutes early Sunday, according to Kingston State Police.

Trooper John McMickle said the young woman was driving east on Route 28, Town of Olive, at 12:20 a. m. when she approached a curve. The vehicle went out of control, hit the soft shoulder and crashed into guard posts, coming to rest across the eastbound traffic lane.

Miss Barton sustained bruises of the chest and suffered shock. A passenger, Doreen Emmick, 20, of 57 Montrepose Avenue, Kingston, received lacerations of the face.

A few minutes after the mishap, Herbert Vogel, 26, of Box 39, Woodstock, was driving his car east on Route 28 when he came upon the Barton vehicle which was blocking the driving lane. Trooper Mickle said Vogel was unable to stop and his car rammed the left rear of the Barton car and shoved it across the road.

Vogel's car left the right shoulder of the highway. He received possible head and leg injuries. The three injured were taken to Benedictine Hospital by Doctors Ambulance Service. Trooper J. J. Brainard investigated.

Form Marine League For Youths 8 to 17

GILBERT E. GRAY

Frank Raffaldi, commandant of the Ulster Detachment Marine Corps League, has announced the appointment of Gilbert E. Gray of RD 5, Kingston, commanding officer of the Young Marines in Ulster County.

Gray, who has served as commandant of the Ulster Detachment three times and has held the office of East Area Vice Commandant for the Department of New York in 1966, will immediately assume the new post. He will endeavor to get a program started in the county soon with other appointed officers.

The Young Marines will consist of boys between the ages of 8 and 17 and must have permission of their parents to enroll as members. He need not be a son of a Marine. Any boy is eligible to enroll.

Gray said a membership drive will be conducted in January to recruit members. Gray, who operates the Doctors Ambulance Service, Kingston, will be assisted in setting up a program by Marines Joseph Sullivan, Eugene White and Jack Kerbert. Gray is a Korean War veteran having been discharged as a sergeant in 1954.

Jersey Fire Fatals Leave 21 Fatherless

CLIFFSIDE PARK, N.J. (AP) — The deaths of five firemen trapped by a collapsing wall leaves 14 children under the age of 21 fatherless. The Ridgefield volunteer firemen also are survived by five widows.

A fire department spokesman said $8,000 had been pledged to a fund for the survivors sponsored by the Hudson Dispatch, a Union City newspaper.

Bergen County authorities say they are investigating the possibility of arson in the fire Sunday at Cardinal Lanes bowling alley in this town just across the Hudson River from New York City. The Ridgefield Fire Department scheduled memorial services for Wednesday.

One civilian and 10 other firemen also were injured when the cinder-block wall collapsed as about 130 firemen from eight communities tried to control the fire in the one-story building.

The civilian and one firemen remained in a hospital today, but their conditions were not serious.

Joseph Licata, a volunteer fireman from Palisades Park, said, "The trapped firemen were just about to enter the building. Then, all of a sudden, the whole place just went 'whoosh' and the flames traveled right down the building from front to back, blowing out the roof and a side wall."

The sole survivor of the hose crew, Henry Dengler Jr., 22, said he was at the end of the hose and farthest from the wall.

Rocky Asks Curb Of Drives for '68 Nomination

NEW YOK (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says he has asked one group in New Hampshire and another in his own state to stop pushing him for next year's Republican Presidential nomination.

The Governor's office made public Saturday two letters, one to Nicholas G. Copadis of Manchester, N.H., and the other to Irwin V. Barash, chairman of the Independent Citizens for Rockefeller in New York.

"Now that Rockefeller placed matters on a personal basis," Copadis said, in Manchester, "We certainly don't want to embarrass the governor."

Copadis said he will meet this week with other Rockefeller supporters in New Hampshire to decide what to do.

A spokesman for the New York group said "we expected the letter but it will not change our belief that he is the only candidate for the nomination."

The texts of both letters were identical. The one to the New Hampshire group was dated Oct. 3, and the other was dated Oct. 11.

After "deep consideration," Rockefeller concluded that "for me to get into this thing in any way would be divisive and destructive and defeating of the very objectives that you and I share for the party and the country."

The letter continued, "I am asking all my friends not to do me the great injustice and discourtesy of turning my career against the objectives on which it was built."

Greene Man Dies After Fire Rescue

A 73-year-old Greene County man died Saturday of carbon moxonide poisoning after he rescued his wife from a burning bed in their residence at Purling, accoridng to Leeds State Police.

Sergeant F. W. Hilfrank said Floyd Fox discovered fire in a bed where his wife, Edna, 47, was sleeping. The elderly man fought the flames and managed to extinguish the blaze before assisting his wife to safety, authorities said.

Troopers reported Fox suffered smoke inhalation and was rushed by ambulance to Greene County Memorial Hospital, Catskill. He later died of carbon monoxide poisoning, authorities said. He was pronounced dead by Dr. Joseph Cally of Catskill.

Senior BCI Investigators James J. Buckley and Michael Mattera, Trooper T. F. Parker and Greene County Coroner Leland Cunningham investigated.

500 Attend Council Youth Musical Rally

Fair Street Reformed Church, Kingston, was swaying with the sound of guitar and banjos Sunday night as nearly 500 area youth from local Protestant and Roman Catholic Churches joined in song with the 70 voice mass chorus of the Youth Fellowship from the First Presbyterian Church of Poughkeepsie.

The hour and a half program entitled, Up With People, was sponsored by the Kingston Area Council of Churches, and consisted of light musical folk numbers all directed to bringing people closer together in one brotherhood under God. The whole tenor of the evening was such a positive one, and the enthusiasm engendered so high, that it should not be long before Kingston, too, will organize an Up With People group.

After the program refreshments were served by the Junior and Senior High Youth Fellowships of the Fair Street Church in the Parish Room.

The Rev. Edwin C. Coon, chairman of the Christian education Committee of the Council, announces that the next area Council Youth Rally will be held on Jan. 14 when the men from Holy Cross Episcopal Monastery will present selections from modern folk and jazz masses. These gatherings, though specifically designed for all area youth, are open to the general adult public.

The next regular meeting of the Council of Churches will be held at the Port Ewen Reformed Church on Thursday, Oct. 26, at which time Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick has been invited to meet with representatives of area churches.

Faces Car Theft

A Kingston teenager was arraigned in City Court this morning on charges of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle after being apprehended by Ellenville State Police in a 1968 Le Mans allegedly taken from the Jerry Martin Pontiac parking lot, 708 Broadway, Sunday night.

The case of John Miller, 16, of 66 West Union Street was put off until tomorrow at 9 a. m. for the purpose of obtaining counsel. According to police, Miller was arrested in the company of a minor. The Pontiac was brand new and had dealer's plates on it. Miller is presently in the Ulster County Jail.

Pa. Tax Upped

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Gov. Raymond P. Shafer signed a bill today raising the state tax on cigarettes 5 cents per pack.

The tax boost is expected to add $55 million in state revenue, to be used for numerous programs.

Shafer signed the bill at 12:01 a.m. and it took effect immediately.

Questions Supervisors On Pollution

FRED KUHNEL

"Why hasn't the Ulster County Board of Supervisors done something constructive about air pollution in our area?"

This is one of many questions raised by Fred Kuhnel, Democrat Candidate for County Legislator for the 2nd Legislative District. (Town of Hurley, Kingston, Marbletown and Ulster).

Kuhnel charges the Republican administration with gross neglect in the areas of air pollution, mishandling of the Community College, failure to provide adequate public recreational facilities and stifling of the industrial growth of Ulster County.

He is a graduate of Kingston High School, class of '49. He is a Navy veteran of the Korean conflict. He has been a resident of the 2nd Legislative District for 21 years. Kuhnel was associated in business with his father, Herbert Kuhnel, in Stone Ridge. He is presently area sales representative for Wine Merchants Ltd. in Schenectady. He is a past treasurer of Kingston Toastmasters and was recently installed as administrative vice president. He was the Democratic candidate for supervisor, Town of Hurley, two years ago.

Kuhnel feels that any representative should be close to his constituents. He feels that his line of work, sales, brings him in daily contact with the people and thereby more aware of their pressing problems. As he puts it, "If you really want to know what the people think, work in a corner grocery store for 60 hours a week and listen. I have and it's been a very educational experience."

P-TA Endorses Transportation Bond Passage

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Board of Directors of the New York State Teachers Association endorsed today the $2.5 - billion transportation bond issue that will be on the election ballot Nov. 7.

G. Howard Goold, executive secretary of the association, said development and expansion of the state's transportation facilities were necessary for economic growth. A healthy economy, he said, would assure funds needed for public education and other essential services.

The association announced previously that it opposed the proposed new state constitution, also to be put to the voters Nov. 7.

Investor Forum

FRUITS OF THRIFT

A towering structure is being erected in America to ease the financial needs of the retired and the elderly. Frequently it looms into my sight and invariably gives me cheer.

Recently on Fifth Ave. in New York I ran into two old friends who were exuberant. One of them said, "We haven't a financial worry. Our pensions are taking care of us. How fortunate we were when we signed up for our company-sponsored pension fund."

Right now in this country the assets of pension funds are worth over $180 billion. In four years from late 1963 to October, 1967, these assets have grown by about $50 billion.

During inflationary periods such as America is now experiencing, it is easy for millions of people to neglect or foresake thrift and savings habits. Dollars slip away here and there, and, as the years pass, armies of individuals build up no cash reserves so that when the rainy days come they are in financial distress.

Regardless of inflation and everything that undermines the integrity of the dollar, I like insurance policies for all money squanderers whose high, high standards of living make it impossible for them to save.

Pensions are wonderful. They are made possible usually by the co-operative efforts of enterprise and the individual. The present value of pension assets totaling $180 billion is eloquent testimony to the effectiveness of saving.

But in America there are millions of professional people, many of them working alone, whose work is so individual, exhausting and exhilarating that they forget what the fruits of thrift can do in meeting the financial responsibilities of later years.

Recently, a great commercial artist, who made from $50,000 to $100,000 a year during his 25 years of productive life, passed away, leaving his wife destitute.

Of course, this is an exceptional case. But it does point up the necessity for all persons to incorporate in their lives a thrift saving-investment pattern.

This artist should have carried $100,000 of insurance —life and endowment. It would have been easy for him during his period of maximum efficiency to set aside several thousand dollars yearly with which to pay insurance premiums.

Insurance policies can be a boon to spendthrift individuals. For they force them to save.

New York has city, state and federal taxes. Apartment rents are rising. Daily expenses are increasing. In such an atmosphere, it is easy to neglect thrift and saving. Some, favored by pension plans, will enjoy the fruits of thrift.

Others, like myself, will have to build their own future financial self-reliance. And it should be done before it is too late.

THE FORUM

Q—I am 44, a professional man. Last year I made $32,000 and didn't save a penny. What should I do?

A—Call in a good insurance man and take out a life policy and a 25-year endowment.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved slightly higher on balance early Monday in active trading.

Gains and losses of leading issues ranged from fractions to around a point.

About 100 more gains than losses were posted among the 1,150 or so issues traded early in the session.

Blue chips put on an indifferent performance, however, and the result was only a slight gain in the industrial average while the over-all average of industrials, rails and utilities was off a bit.

A big trading play was given some relatively low-priced issues, including Livingston Oil, Great Western Financial, Atlas Corp. and Del. E. Webb, all of which made fractional gains.

Also active, Gulf & Western, Occidental Petroleum and Purex tacked on a point or more apiece.

Eastman Kodak slumped a point despite record net income reported. Du Pont was unchanged. Ford eased. GM was up a fraction. International Nickel and Xerox added a point each. Polaroid slipped about 1½.

Steel Import Quota Bill Set for Study

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — This may be an historic week in trade relations, a frustrating one for free trade advocates, a significant one in revealing the changing sentiments of America.

Five years ago, in October 1962, the most ambitious round of tariff cuts ever attempted in this century was begun with passage of the Trade Expansion Act.

This week a wave of protectionist sentiment is expected to be heard from Congress a remarkable and partially inexplicable change of direction in only five years.

Lower Tariffs

American enthusiasm for cutting trade barriers five years ago was great. Through lower worldwide tariffs the United States hoped, among other things, to boost its exports enough to reduce the balance of payments deficit.

The trade act passed with a large majority of both houses. It was extolled as the beginning of an era, and for nearly five years negotiators for the big trading nations hacked away as tariffs.

Early this year, finally, the Kennedy Round of tariff cuts, named for the president who persuaded other nations to join us in the tariff-cutting attempt, reached a successful conclusion.

Agree to Reductions

The European Common Market reduced tariffs on more than $10 billion of imports. The United States, Canada, the European Free Trade Association and Japan, among others, agreed to gradual reductions in trade barriers.

Now the opposite of free trade could be gaining support. Several widely supported bills are before Congress to protect domestic industries, mostly by restricting imports through quotas. Among them are textiles, watches, steel, oil.

To William Roth, special U.S. representative for trade negotiations, the prospect is appalling. Protectionist sentiment he believes, could "restore the chaos in international trade that we knew during the depression of the 1930s."

We may be on the eve of a movement, he said, "that will wipe out the progress of 30 years unless those American industries concerned with world trade make themselves heard loud and clear."

Notes Crude Estimate

Roth feels that an increase in American tariffs or a reduction of imports through quotas would result in similar moves against American products. This retaliation could be enormous, he feels, because pending U.S. bills would effect $3.6 billion of imports into the country.

"And this is a very crude estimate, definitely a minimum, not a maximum," he said in a speech. The $3.6 billion total is "our rock bottom estimate."

A lot of senators and representatives feel differently.

Today, a bill for mandatory steel import quotas is expected to be introduced into Congress. Curiously, one of the arguments in support of quotas is the balance of payments, the same argument used by free traders.

Sen Vance Hartke, D-Ind., feels that "surging steel imports have aggravated the U.S. balance of payments deficit, adversely affected employment opportunities . . .and posed a threat to national security."

Another bill, already passed by the House, would permit the president to limit imports of foreign products produced under labor standards inferior to ours. This, of course, would include many thousands of items.

Another bill, with 20 senators supporting it, would establish quotas on products that contribute to economic problems for domestic producers. And 40 senators desire a bill that would increase the number of cases on which antidumping duties might be applied.

Protectionists and free traders always have put on good battles through American history, their fundamentally different philosophies sometimes stripping a lot of confusion from issues. The battle is on. It should be a good one.

More Income Possible Without Grave Added Risk

Q—We are in our late 50s. We own 500 Standard Oil of California and 500 Hercules, Inc., and have a satisfactory savings account. We are now faced with heavy medical expenses and need more income. Can you suggest other stocks paying a higher return?—A.H.

A—You own two excellent stocks. It is unfortunate that you must switch them to take care of your medical expenses, but I believe you can do so without seriously imparing your security. Standard of California — excluding stock dividends — yields 4 per cent, and I would switch this stock into equal dollar amounts of Standard of New Jersey, International Harvester, Armco Steel, Winn-Dixie Stores, Commercial Credit. These stocks yield an average of 5.2 per cent on reasonably well-covered dividends.

Utilities are relatively depressed in price because they react closely to money rates. You could double your yield to an average of 5 per cent by selling Hercules, Inc., and putting the proceeds into Washington Water Power, New England Electric, Baltimore Gas & Electric, Duquesne Light, Northern States Power. This will leave you rather heavily invested in the group, but with good geographic distribution you need not be too concerned about this element.

Q—We bought Compufund. Can you tell me anything about these shares and why they are not listed on the stock sheets?—R.T.

A—I suggest, if I may, that you change your ideas about investing. The time to check on a security is before — not after — you have made a commitment. You wouldn't buy a house without a thorough investigation, and buying securities requires even more careful consideration. Compufund is a small mutual fund, offered initially in March, 1967, which seeks maximum growth through the use of computers. It will probably be quoted among other funds when it gains broader distribution. It is up about 20 per cent since issuance.

SAIGON (AP)—A U. S. Marine plane accidentally hit the Marine outpost of Con Thien with a bomb Sunday, killing three Marines and wounding nine in the second mistaken bombing there in three days.

Communist shellfire wounded another eight Marines at the muddy base guarding Red infiltration routes just south of the demilitarized zone.

A mistaken bombing Friday killed two Marines and wounded 21. Both incidents were being investigated.

The defenders of Con Thien came under repeated savage shellings last month from North Vietnamese believed attempting to take the outpost but overwhelming American firepower beat back the assaults.

U.S. B52 bombers, which play a major role in the battle around Con Thien, swept into North Vietnam 50 miles above the demilitarized zone, their deepest raid in 10 months and blasted the Mu Gia Pass. This is the main entry to the Ho Chi Minh trail, which carries Communist troops and supplies through Laos and Cambodia to South Vietnam.

The eight-engine, $8-million bombers are usually kept away from possible danger from North Vietnamese missiles, which can reach them even at the 30,000-foot altitudes where they fly.

The bombers struck truck parks, supply concentrations and fuel storage sties at the pass after coming from Thailand over Laos so they would be in North Vietnam only briefly.

Today, they were back pounding a suspected Red infiltration route 10 miles above Con Thien and a suspected buildup point 2.5 miles southwest of the Marine fortress.

Weather hampered strikes against North Vietnam Sunday and halted all raids around the vital port of Haiphong but the man who has commanded the Haiphong campaign promised more missions in the continuing effort to isolate the port.

Holding a farewell news conference in Saigon before leaving for command of the Pacific Fleet in Hawaii, the 7th Fleet commander, Vice Adm. John J. Hyland Jr., said the recent raids had cut all four of the city's main bridges.

Acknowledging that the North Vietnamese were repairing the bridges and had set up temporary pontoon structures, Hyland said Navy planes would hit them again "when the time is ripe."

Hyland made no direct comment on whether he was satisfied with the recent gradual relaxation of the Pentagon's ban on raids against certain sensitive targets in the North. But he said military men want "all those targets turned loose."

The U.S. Command reported heavy damage to at least three of five targets in the Hanoi-Haiphong area that were hit for the first time Saturday. They included boat yards, a storage area and a radar installation.

It also reported three planes losses over the weekend but said none was connected with raids in the Hanoi-Haiphong area. They brought to 701 the number of combat planes announced as downed over the North.

Air Force, Navy and Marine pilots were barred from the North Vietnamese heartland Sunday by bad weather. All 125 missions flown during the day were directed at supply lines stretching south from Hanoi to the demilitarized zone.

U.S. planes have been trying to damage Communist supply lines as much as possible before the impending start of steady bad weather.

A U.S. spokesman said the raiders hit the small airfield of Bai Thuong northwest of Vinh.

The field, now used mainly as a storage area, was one of 12 airports originally listed by the Pentagon as worthy targets. These included six smaller fields and six MIG airports. All have been bombed with the exception of the major MIG fields at Phuc Yen and Gia Lam, both in the Hanoi area.

In South Vietnam, guerrilla gunfire brought down an evacuaton helicopter and a light spotter plane.

Attempts to lift out the downed spotter plane with a big Chinook helicopter provoked a stiff fight in the Mekong Delta. U.S. helicopters and Navy patrol boats moved in and their fire killed seven guerrillas, headquarters said.

In ground action, the U.S. Command reported that more than 100 Viet Cong mortar shells hit a U.S. Special Forces camp and two nearby South Vietnamese army installations 15 miles west of Saigon, killing two Americans and wounding 11 and causing some Vietnamese casualties.

Immolation Victim's Husband Blames Viet

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The husband of the 56-year-old woman, who police say burned herself to death on the steps of the Federal Building, says she "had a deep feeling against the slaughter in Vietnam" and "must have felt she had to do this."

Police identified the victim as Florence Beaumont of suburban La Puente, wife of a commercial artist, Goerge Beaumont, and mother of daughters aged 18 and 20.

Beaumont said his wife had told him, "It's not worth living when you have no redress from your representatives. All you receive from this is form letters."

A Federal Building security guard said the woman poured a can of gasoline over her body and set herself on fire Sunday afternoon.

Police said the woman was apparently dead before a federal guard put the flames out with a fire extinguisher.

Officers said they found literature opposing the Vietnam war in Mrs. Beaumont's purse and in the pickup truck she parked nearby.

Mrs. Beaumont's husband said she was active in antiwar groups in the Los Angeles area. "She was a perfectly normal, dedicated person, and felt she had to do this just like the people who burned themselves in Vietnam," he said.

"I never felt she would take this road," he said, "but I can see how she might have felt she had to do it."

Lomenzo Backs New York City's Gun Controls

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Secretary of State John P. Lomenzo said Monday the passage of the City Council's proposed gun control laws should set a state and national example.

Lomenzo said "Legislation....and regulation of the sale and possession of rifles and shotguns represents an excellent beginning toward affording protection to the public at large."

In remarks prepared for delivery at a public hearing on firearm legislation, Lomenzo said "the unilateral interests of a few must yield to the welfare and safety of the community as a whole."

Although the proposed law relates only to New York City, Lomenzo said, it could set an example and lay the groundwork for other municipalities and states to start similar legislative programs.

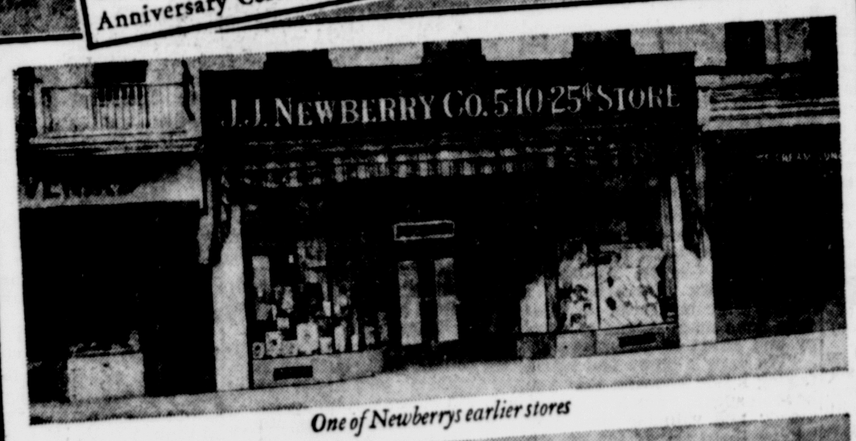

He said, "to achieve maximum possible safeguarding of our people, ...the enactment of a federal law would be the most desirable and effective step."

Our Boys Write From Vietnam

Editor's Note: The Kingston Daily Freeman is privileged to publish letters written to the Ulster County Vietnam's Servicemen's Committee of Ulster Hose Co. No. 5 by Kingston area men serving with the armed forces in Vietnam. We hope in this way we can better let our readers know how our boys in service feel.

Pfc. William M. Knox writes a letter and a poem as follows:

"I am a G.I. serving in Vietnam and would like to receive a paper from my home town. (The Kingston Freeman will be sent to Knox by the Ulster County Vietnam Servicemen's Committee of Ulster Hose Co. 5) I am serving in the Army as a medic and I am proud to serve my country.

"I also send with this letter a poem I wrote while doing my share of the work over here."

Knox's poem:

"We're here because we want to stay free.
"We're here to help the less fortunate to see.
"We're here because we fight
for what's right.
"We're here to make America's
days bright.
"We're here so that our families
can sleep.
"We're here in the darkness so
black, so deep.
"We're here for the things we
all love so.
"We're here because of bloodshed so long ago.
"We're here for the ones that
we love so dear.
"No reason to say more, that's

An article published in the 1st Bn. 27th Infantry paper at Chu Chi, Vietnam, refers to Pfc. Lester Hatcher, 43 Strand, Kingston. The article notes that Hatcher had a story to tell to his GI friends in Vietnam which indicates he cannot tell a VC from a water buffalo.

The article:

"While on guard at Fire Support Base Gladys as a member of Marsh's Marauders, Pfc. Hatcher got quite excited when he heard something move about 25 meters to his front. He woke up SP4 Gary Montgomery who explained to him in so many words, that there is no such a thing as a VC with a tail and horns, that 'moo's' when a stone is thrown at him."

A 2/c Michael G. Kight writes:

"I would like to thank the people of the Ulster Fire Co. and all the people of Ulster County who so kindly contributed to send the packages to all the GI's from Ulster County who are stationed in Vietnam.

"I know that it must have taken a lot of someone's time to prepare these packages for shipping, and that it really makes a guy feel great knowing that there is someone back home that cares about us being over here.

"All the items that were sent are very useful and very seldom seen here. I am from West Hurley and have been over here since April. I am attached to the 14th Air Commandos at Nha Trang Air Base.

"In closing I would like to say thanks for myself and all the other GI's from Ulster County."

Conrad Moore serving with the Infantry writes:

"I want to thank you very much for sending The Kingston Daily Freeman to me and other residents of Ulster County who are here in Vietnam.

"With The Kingston Daily Freeman you have made it possible for us to 'catch' the news and to see what's happening in our home town. Once again I thank you very much."

Sp/4 Robert Geipel writes:

"I want to take this opportunity to express my sincere and heartfelt thanks to all the people who have made my life a little bit brighter. The packages you have sent to me leave me almost speechless at times just to know that so many people back home are sacrificing and thinking so much of you.

"This makes our tour over here a little bit easier. The radio you sent me was the biggest surprise yet. When I opened the package in the barracks I couldn't believe it. Some of my buddies were simply amazed to think your people back home in your county could do anything as wonderful as that.

"Since some of the guys over here never get anything from home, I usually split my packages with them. They also want me to thank you. All I can say is thanks to all of you wonderful people for putting some sunshine and spirit in my life. May God bless all of you for what you have done for all the servicemen from Ulster County.

"Ulster Hose Co. will remain in my heart forever. Thank you from the bottom of my heart. See you in February."

Capt. Charles Lockwood Jr., writes:

"I have just received another package from your fine organization and I'm taking this opportunity to thank you. I am very grateful for your generosity and thoughtfulness.

"Many of the articles in the packages are distributed among my men and they join me in a heartfelt thanks. It means a great deal to all of us here to know that so many Americans are supporting our efforts.

"Despite the anti-war demonstrations we hear of in the United States, the morale of the soldiers is of the highest caliber I have seen. The finest young men of our nation are serving here with honor. They will not turn their backs to the pleas of these oppressed people.

"If all Americans demonstrated their support like your organization, we would soon accomplish our mission of ridding this struggling nation of all aggressors.

"Again, for myself and all the men of my command, thank you."

Cpl. David F. Lowe writes:

"Sorry I took so long writing this but we have been busy. My whole platoon wishes to express their best wishes in hoping your much needed packages have made others as happy and proud as you made us.

"We have a funny and warm feeling inside knowing that you have spent much earned money and valuable time preparing these things for us. Although the package was addressed to me, everyone received a little something from it. Again let me say, from all of us to all of you, thank you."

BABSON on BUSINESS

CHRISTMAS SALES

BABSON PARK, Mass., Oct. 3—Sales of retail stores just chalked up a new all-time high for September. That is good news for everybody . . . especially for merchants from coast to coast. For the late summer surge came hard on the heels of a sluggish performance that had most retailers scratching their heads and wondering why Mr. and Mrs. Consumer were saving so much and spending so little. Now we can confidently look forward to a "best-ever" ringing of the nation's cash registers, come Christmastime.

Consumers Have the Cash

Recent months have seen personal income persistently poking into new high ground . . . to the tune of average monthly chunks of better than $4 billion each. Disposable personal income (what's left after taxes and other payments) had been lagging total personal income. The gap seemed to be the result of a greater disposition on the part of consumers disposition on the part of consumers to save more. Perhaps all the spring talk of a "mini-recession" had made people cautious.

Latest figures, however, indicate that spending is coming back into fashion. The September surge at retail stores is a most promising omen for Christmas sales. We can foresee new records without half raising our eyelids; and if we look real hard, it is not difficult to predict gains over Christmas 1966 of 6 per cent, or even 8 per cent. Not everywhere, of course, because big strikes will still be pinching consumer pocketbooks in some areas.

Plentiful Supplies

Neither war in Vietnam nor strikes here at home will have too serious an impact on the flow of available goods. Unless, of course, the expected upsurge in store sales should be even greater than we anticipate. In that case, some shelves could be bare for last-minute shoppers.

Fact is, supplies of most goods are plentiful. Not only are we pretty well assured of having both guns and butter; we can also count on generous amounts of quality and luxury items. Next year may be a different story, but for Yuletide 1967 shelves will be well stocked and quality and variety will be more evident than ever.

But You Will Pay More

Most manufacturers, wholesalers, jobbers, and retailers are already optimistic with regard to sales performance during the upcoming holiday season. Some, however, are more cautious — fearing perhaps that this year's higher prices may prove to be an unfavorable factor. In our opinion, the balance of factors favors optimism. Consumers, generally, are better off financially than they were a year ago. They are able to take higher prices in stride and most probably they will do just that . . . in response to diligent and well-directed sales effort on the part of merchants.

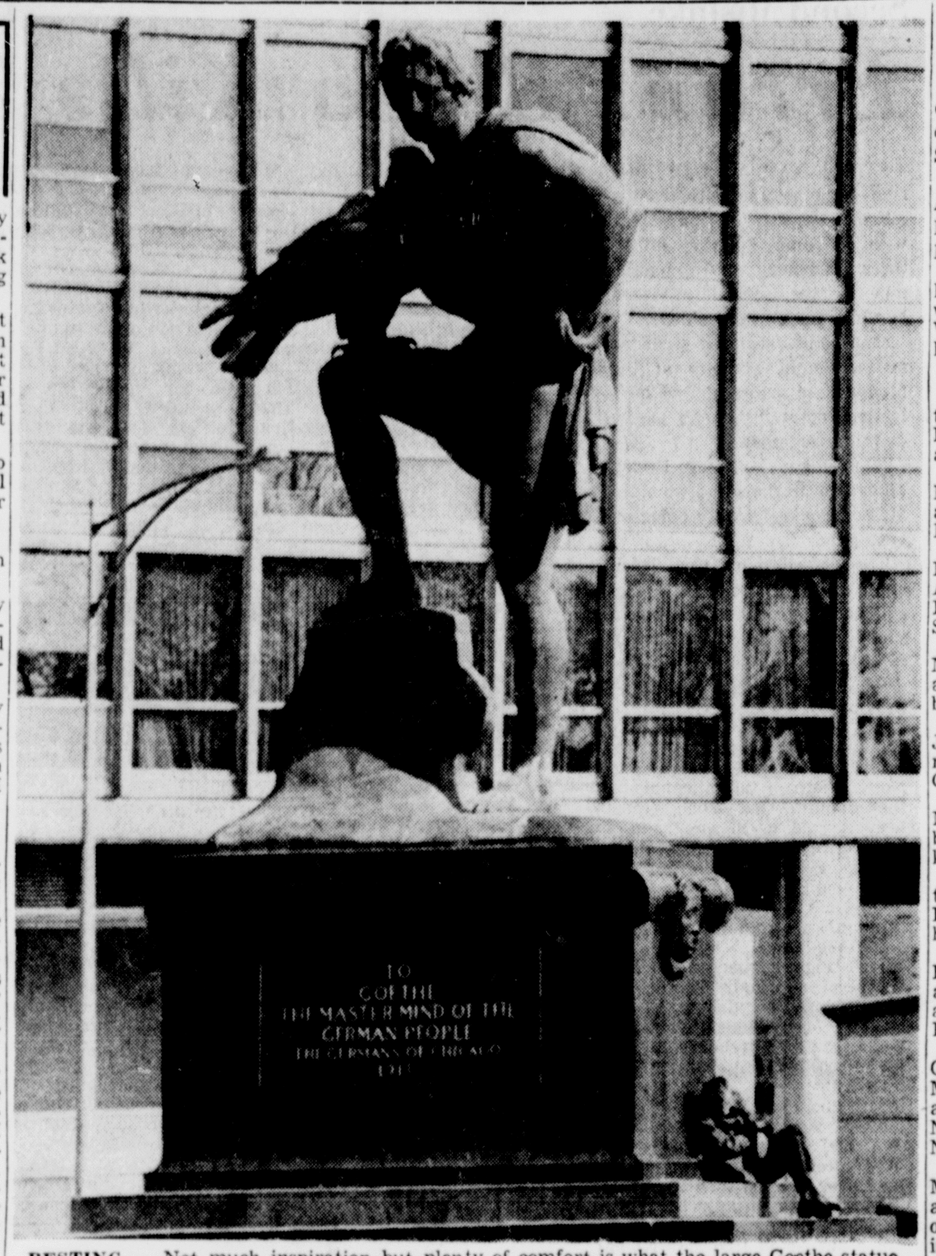

One word of caution for buyers, however. It will definitely pay you to shop early this year. Labor and other costs are still rising, and you'll pay more for many a gift in mid-December than you would have to pay in October or November.

Strong consumer buying power and a disposition to use it will be combined this year with greater availability and wider selection of merchandise than ever before. This combination promises to add up to at least a 6 per cent boost in dollar volume of Christmas sales over the record trade achieved in 1966. Because of higher prices, however, the increase in physical turnover may not be more than 3 per cent-4 per cent.

Retailers should find their increased volume leading to bigger profits compared with the first three quarters of this year. But they will be hard put to improve profitability over their experience at Christmastime last year. Stores that will chalk up the best profits records will be those whose managements make a wise—though not excessive—use of promotions while at the same time keeping a sharp eye on sales personnel performance. And above everything else, hold a tight rein on costs without scrimping on customer services.

Check Writers

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — At the annual meeting of Associated Credit Bureaus of Iowa, instructions on how to deal with rubber-check writers were given by inmates at the men's reformatory at Anamosa — members of a prison group which calls itself Check Writers Anonymous.

RESTING — Not much inspiration but plenty of comfort is what the large Goethe statue in Chicago's Lincoln Park here offers to the gent resting comfortably at base. The base is big enough to offer plenty of protection from wind sweeping in from nearby Lake Michigan. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Drug City Leases Space, Ulster Plaza

Harold Lewis president of Plaza Investors Corp., 999 Central Avenue, Woodmere, developers of the Ulster Shopping Plaza at Albany Avenue Extension, has announced that Drug City has leased 4,500 square feet of space in the Shopping Plaza, for one of its discount drug stores.

The space that has been rented was formerly occupied by the Sears Roebuck catalog sales office, Sears having vacated at the termination of its lease Oct. 15.

Drug City plans to open its new store in early November. The bright attractive drug store, which will also contain a modern prescription department, will offer to Kingston shoppers, one of the largest cosmetic selections in the area. Health aids and beauty aids will be sold at discount prices.

Work to complete the store is progressing now.

Transportation Key to Area Says Mid-Hudson Patterns

Jack Sternback, director of the Bureau of Planning of the New York State Transportation Department, will discuss the progress being made on Interstate Route 84 and the implications for the area of the state's proposed $2.5 billion transportation bond issue at the fall meeting of the Regional Chamber of Commerce Council, Oct. 18, in Newburgh.

The meeting, which gets under way at 7 p. m. at the Holiday Inn, is being sponsored by Mid-Hudson Pattern for Progress, Inc., a citizen's regional planning, research and development corporation, and the Interstate Route 84 Association, whose prime concern is an early completion of the highway, which is expected to play a key role in the development of the Mid-Hudson Region.

According to Charles R. Wolfe, Regional Chamber chairman, "transportation is the key that will open the full potential of our area and provide the job opporunities that are needed. The people of the state can assure an early completion of Interstate 84 by supporting Governor Rockefeller's bond issue, which will be on the ballot Nov. 7."

The staff of Pattern for Progress, Inc., which is based at the State University College, New Paltz, is in the process of preparing a report on the probable affects of the bond issue on the seven counties it serves — Dutchess, Ulster, Greene, Columbia, Putnam, Orange and Sullivan.

Lobbyists: $2 Million Yearly Tab

Scramble for 'Fiscal Pie' Intense

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — At an estimated annual cost of nearly $2 million, more and more cities and states are deploying their own lobbyists in the nation's capital to seek a bountiful harvest of federal favors from Uncle Sam's money tree.

Six years ago only one state had a full-time liaison office here. Now 14 states have dispatched special representatives—4 in recent months—and more are on the way. In addition, at least 22 cities and a dozen or so colleges have hired Washington agents.

Bristle at Name

These envoys bristle when called lobbyists, and they apparently aren't required to register as such although two of them do. Their goals and tactics nonetheless bear striking resemblence to those of lobbyists—registered as required by law—for big corporations, labor unions and pressure groups.

Fanning out daily from converted townhouses on Capitol Hill and glass-fronted office buildings within sight of the White House, the city and state lobbyists use salesmanship, cajolery, flattery and pressure to help their clients—the folks back home—obtain federal grants, loans, defense contracts, government installations or pork barrel projects.

Their scramble for a bigger slice of the federal fiscal pie is intense. Lobbyists sometimes even draft amendments for pending legislation, then peddle them to friendly congressmen or influential congressional aides.

"This is a very competitive business," says Peter F. Tufo, former Wall Street lawyer who heads New York Mayor John Lindsay's Washington outpost. "There just isn't enough money to go around."

"My main concern," Tufo adds, "is getting the maximum amount of federal money into the city."

Illinois' man in Washington, Edward D. Heffernan, views his mission similarly: "Getting a fair portion of federal expenditures into our state." In the view of some other states, Illinois got more than its fair share last year when it landed a $375 million atomic accelerator—described as the scientific prize of the century.

One of the newest liaison men, D. Michael B. Thompson of Florida, says it is the "absurd" bigness of the federal government that has forced cities and states to resort to lobbying for federal favors.

New Breed of Bureaucrats

Interviewed in his red-carpeted office suite two floors above the Republican National Committee headquarters, Thompson also said, "We're developing a whole new breed of bureaucrats—people who know how to fill out all these forms" required when cities and states apply for federal aid.

The growth in the new breed of lobbyists parallels the upward spiral in federal aid programs. In 1960 federal grants amounted to about $9 billion. This year they total $17 billion and officials estimate the figure will swell to $60 billion by 1975.

In addition, defense procurement now is proceeding at a $50 billion-a-year clip.

Even as they compete for individual grants and contracts, city and state forces are on opposing sides in a behind-the-scenes battle with significant long-range implications.

At stake is a fuzzy point of federal policy; Should all grants be funneled through the state governments, or should those affecting the cities be sent directly to city halls, bypassing the state level?

The administration's anti-crime bill provided the vehicle for a recent skirmish over this question.

The White House originally proposed that grants to improve local law enforcement be made directly to the cities. But House members, under prodding from state forces, amended the bill so states would receive the money and disperse it to cities with plans meeting state standards.

The bill now is in Senate committee and city lobbyists are mounting a counterattack to restore the original language. "We're not whipped yet," one of them said.

The National Governors' Conference set up a six-man Washington lobby in March to supplement the work of the individual state representatives. Counting its $265,000 budget, states are spending about $1 million a year for lobbying activities. Add on the amount that cities and universities spend and the total approaches $2 million.

New York established its Washington office in 1942 to help home state firms get defense contracts. It wasn't until 1961 that another state, California, set up a permanent office. Then came West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Guam, Texas, Missouri, Florida, Kentucky, Massachusetts and Maryland — the last four this year.

New Jersey plans to have its own representative in Washington by the end of October to help secure grants for the state. Connecticut, Iowa and Nebraska are considering such a step. Each had officials in Washington last week surveying present state offices.

Oklahoma bucked the trend. Its Democratic-controlled legislature last year abolished a Washington office created a year earlier by a Republican governor.

A Georgia legislative committee studied the idea recently but dropped it when the state's congressional delegation voiced loud opposition.

California is leading the pack with a dozen separate Washington offices. Besides the regular liaison office, complete with gold carpets and color pictures of Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan, the Democratic-controlled state legislature has set up its own office here.

The University of California has a Washington office, as does the state college system. And there are individual representatives here for Los Angeles County, the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, the City of Los Angeles—plus six other California cities: San Francisco, Long Beach, Oakland, San Diego, Napa and Vallejo.

California's cultivation of the federal decision-makers seems to have paid off handsomely. Last year the nation's most populous state received a whopping $20.4 billion from Washington and led nearly every category—defense spending $11 billion; health, education and welfare, $3.5 billion; space programs, $1.9 billion.

"IN MY FIRST YEAR AS A SWIFT HOMES DEALER, I NETTED OVER $26,000!"

Fred Kessler, owner of Kessler-Swift Homes in New England, had his own engineering and manufacturing firm for many years. "But the profit squeeze was getting tighter and tighter," he says. "I wasn't clearing enough money for all the headaches."

After he learned about Swift Homes, he sold the business and applied for a Swift franchise in a portion of New Hampshire and Vermont. Now he and his wife, Florence, work together, clear more than they did with his previous business and have time to enjoy the resort area in which they live.

"We're looking forward to a greater second year," Fred says. "The housing business in general is better than it was our first year. The special Swift features are so appealing to customers that we really see no ceiling on this new career."

Maybe you have a business that doesn't reward you enough. Or maybe you're working for someone else and would like the challenge and prestige of being a Swift Homes dealer. Send the coupon below to find out more about this exciting opportunity.

Auto Club: Get Jump On Winter

There's more to winterizing a car than simply adding anti-freeze, the Automobile Club of New York reports. According to the Auto Club, todays cars — with their many power-operated devices and complicated fuel systems — require careful conditioning if they are to operate trouble free during the winter.

In addition to affording cold weather protection, a thorough conditioning also will take care of many minor troubles now and avoid annoying delays and possibly big repair bills later on.

Here is the AAA's check list of major winterizing items:

—Check exhaust system; a leaky muffler or cracked exhaust pipe will permit deadly carbon monoxide fumes to seep into the car.

—Check transmission and rear end.

—If necessary, change oil to proper grade and replace oil filter cartridge.

—Lubricate chassis and tighten body if necessary.

—Adjust brakes, including emergency brake.

—Check wheel alignment and wheel balance.

—Check windshield wipers and defroster.

—Check battery and electrical system. Weak batteries should be recharged or replaced if they won't hold the charge.

Check cooling system for leaks, tighten hose connections adn fanbelt, then add anti-freeze If an "all-year" anti-freeze is being used, have it checked to make sure it still affords full protection for your engine.

—Check springs, shock absorbers and steering.

—Check tires, replace or recap if treads are thin or worn. If snow tires are to be used, now's the time to have them put on rear wheels.

In addition to tending to these major mechanical needs, wise motorists will also have the following taken care of before the temperature dips below freezing:

—Coat all exposed ignition wires with reliable waterproofing solution as a protection against wet wires.

—Turn on and test your heater.

—Lubricate door locks to avoid sticking or freezing in winter.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, Oct. 16, the 289th day of 1967. There are 76 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1793, Queen Marie Antoinette of France was executed.

On this date:

In 1815, Napoleon Bonaparte landed at the island of St. Helena as an exile.

In 1840, New Zealand became a British colony.

In 1859, the Kansas abolitionist John Brown staged a raid on Harper's Ferry, Va.

In 1925, the Pact of Locarno was signed by Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Belgium.

In 1940, 16 million Americans registered for the first draft under the Selective Service law.

In 1941, German troops captured the Russian city of Odessa during World War II.

Ten years ago — Britain's Queen Elizabeth arrived in Jamestown, Va., to help celebrate the 350th anniversary of the first permanent English settlement in the new world.

Five years ago—A U.S. high-altitude nuclear test over Johnson Island in the Pacific was unsuccessful due to a rocket failure.

One year ago — President Johnson helped consecrate a Roman Catholic shrine in Pennsylvania and urged racial tolerance on the part of Polish-Americans.

Twenty and Ten Years Ago

Oct. 16, 1947—The car of Dr. Joseph Jacobson, stolen from the rear of Kingston Hospital, was reportedly recovered in New Jersey.

A hunting ban was placed in the Adirondacks due to fire hazards. The Catskills were open.

Oct. 16, 1957—The Asian flu was blamed for 375 absentees at Kingston High School. Onteora schools were closed along with many schools in Dutchess County.

The Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce voted no on a proposed constitutional convention in 1959.

Immunization Clinic

A clinic for immunizations against polio, whooping cough, diptheria, tetanus and smallpox will be conducted by the Ulster County Health Department at the Tumor Clinic Building Friday, Oct. 20, from 10:30-11:15.

Immunizations for whooping cough, diptheria, and tetanus should be started at three months of age; smallpox vaccination should be given any time during the first year of life; and polio immunizations should be started from three to six months of age.

These clinics serve those who are otherwise unable to secure these immunizations.

The early 1930s were the highpoint of kidnapping for ransom in the United States, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica.

10-Year-Old Boy Kidnapped

Swim Instructor Charged

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — A former Boys' Club swimming instructor was held here today on a state kidnapping charge accusing him of taking a 10-year-old boy from school nearly six months ago.

The boy, William "Billy Layton, was returned to his tearful parents Sunday. Police said he was in good condition and apparently had not been abused.

John C. Wood, 25, was picked up by police Saturday night in a routine traffic check in Angola, near Buffalo. Billy was found in a nearby movie theater where Wood, who identified himself as Scott Lockwood, said he had left his son, police said.

Wood was charged with kidnapping after a check with Binghamton Police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Billy and Wood, a bachelor friend of the Layton family, had been sought since April 17, police said. Wood took the boy out of school on that date, police said, explaining the boy had a dental appointment.

At that time, the boy's father said Wood "always seemed like a heck of a nice guy."

Billy said he and Wood had traveled to Richmond, Va., from Binghamton, police said. After a three-month stay, they went to Harrisburg and Pittsburgh, Pa., for brief periods, then lived for two months in Little Rock, Ark.

The two came to Angola about a month ago, police said, and Wood had been seeling vacuum cleaners.

Billy was happy to be home, police said, and he "still regards Wood as his friend." The parents and child returned to Binghamton Sunday.

Wood was transported to Binghamton after arraignment on charges of driving without license, motor vehicle registration, and proper plates. He was fined $25 on each of the charges.

Wood was a friend of the Layton family and had taken Billy on a sightseeing tour of New York City last Easter, police said.

He was a graduate of Colby College in Maine and came to Binghamton last fall, police said. He was discharged from the Binghamton Boys' Club after working a few months there as a swimming instructor, police said, then began working at a real estate office in the Binghamton suburg of Vestal.

Sunset Wedding Set For Lynda Bird Nuptials

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lynda Johnson and Marine Capt. Charles Robb have picked romantic sunset time for their Dec. 9 White House wedding and have ruled out television coverage of the ceremony.

The Rev. Canon Gerald McAllister, a personable young Texas Episcopal clergyman, will perform the marriage, the White House also announced Sunday.

Guest list for the East Room nuptials of the President's elder daughter will be held to about 500 persons. That's 200 less than Lynda's sister, Luci, invited to her Aug. 6, 1966 cathedral wedding and White House reception.

This will be the first time in 53 years that a presidential daughter has been married in the White House. The Johnsons announced that "lack of space" will limit coverage by news media.

Only a pool of reporters will be permitted to cover certain portions of the event. There will be no television coverage of the wedding ceremony itself a White House spokesman said.

Lynda and her young Marine finance have set their Saturday wedding for 4 p.m., about a half hour before sunset.

Elizabeth Carpenter, press secretary to Mrs. Johnson, said the time of the wedding would be "an hour that suits the couple—and it also depends on the honeymoon destination," a locale that remains secret.

In choosing the minister, Lynda didn't look far from home.

She picked the tall Texas clergyman, who only two weeks ago offered prayers for Lynda and Charles at St. Barnabas Episcopal Church in Fredericksburg, Tex., 15 miles from the LBJ Ranch.

He was so surprised when Mrs. Johnson called Saturday to ask him to perform the ceremony, "we didn't even discuss the details."

Two weeks ago when newsmen asked him if he would preside, he replied, "No. That's a job for a bishop.

The Rev. Mr. McAllister, son of W. W. McAllister, mayor of San Antonio, has known the President's family about four years—ever since he presided at the laying of a cornerstone at the St. Barnabas Church.

Since about a year ago, when he became "supply priest" at the church, which has no regular minister, the Rev. Mr. McAllister has seen the first family frequently. The President often goes to St. Barnabas when he is spending weekends at his ranch.

The minister is anxious about the required ministerial counseling session required of all couples marrying in the Episcopal church. Such sessions are usually conducted by the minister who will preside over the ceremony, but the Rev. Mr. McAllister said Sunday, "If it's not possible for me to handle it then perhaps someone in Washington could."

Science Shrinks Painful Hemorrhoids Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

Finds Way That Both Relieves Pain and Shrinks Piles In Most Cases

New York, N.Y. (Special): Science has found a special formula with the ability, in most cases—to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching and relieve pain.

In case after case doctors proved, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place. The secret is Preparation H®. There is no other formula for hemorrhoids like it. Preparation H also soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In ointment or suppository form.

TRAFFIC PROBLEM SITE. After a span of seven months, action may finally be forthcoming on a proposed study of the City of Kingston-Town of Ulster traffic pattern. Back in March, 2nd Ward Supervisor Addison Jones and Ulster Supervisor Thaddeus Musialkiewicz presented a joint resolution to the Board of Supervisors to that effect, and had the Board go on record as favoring a modern four-lane highway to be built at the present Albany Avenue Extension at Foxhall Avenue. Recently, State Senator Jay P. Rolison Jr. and Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson visited the site and promised quick action in bringing the traffic problem to the State Engineers Department. At the source of the problem are (L) Jones, Rolison, Musialkiewicz and Assemblyman Wilson. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Major Reforms Seen In South Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — American officials believe that for the first time they have successfully pressured South Vietnam's present leaders into some major reforms.

But U.S. sources say the reforms have only scratched the surface. Much depends, they say, on how the new regime of President-elect Nguyen Van Thieu and Vice President-elect Nguyen Cao Ky behaves.

Recent evidence of effective U.S. pressure, one source said, was the removal of six province chiefs and from 40 to 50 district chiefs on charges of corruption and incompetence. Yet there were signs that at least some of the firings were triggered by personal rivalries rather than a desire for good government.

In a parallel development, reliable sources said U.S. and Vietnamese officials have worked out a major overhaul of the much-criticized pacification program to win over the countryside from the Communists.

The plan gives Maj. Gen. Nguyen Duc Thang, a Vietnamese general regarded by U.S. officials as hard-working, shrewd and incorruptible, greater powers to carry out the program. U.S. sources believe he may be able to claim honest success in 80 per cent of 1,100 hamlets where he has started pacification work.

Thang, father of the latest pacification program but apparently waning in influence several months ago, will become deputy chief of the joint general staff and de facto commander of the territorial security forces. He will have wide powers to weed out corrupt regional officials.

In a further effort to press South Vietnam's "other war," the U.S. Embassy announced plans to increase to 41 from 21 the number of American relief experts trying to help civilian refugees. Much of the job will be to make sure funds and supplies meant for the refugees get to them and not to corrupt Vietnamese officials.

The refugee program has come under sharp attack in the U.S. Senate, notably by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the Senate Judiciary subcommittee, on refugees. The United States is paying nearly $25.5 million in refugee aid money.

Official figures show 700,000 refugees in camps or shelters but authorities say twice as many may be homeless because of the war.

U.S. pressure for reform is believed to include placing Thieu's junta on notice that the United States would not tolerate any attempt to brush aside the country's newly elected Congress in favor of rule by decree.

A qualified source described both Thieu and Ky as reform-minded but would not extend this description to the rest of the officers making up the present military government.

Maybe that boy will kill your boy.

That boy in a stolen car. Stolen cars have 200 times more accidents. Many fatal. And who steals cars? 64% of people arrested for car theft are under 18. Teen-agers who impulsively take a car for a joyride. And who tempts them? You do. 76% of stolen cars were left unlocked. About half also had ignition keys in them. Maybe your boy doesn't mix with boys who'd steal a car, but he may walk across the street as they skid around the wrong corner.

Kingston Corporation Counsel: Busy Man in Vital Job

By HUGH REYNOLDS

To some people the city's corporation counsel shows up at Common Council meetings to give an occasional interpretation of the city charter. The Freeman, in an interview with present corporation counsel Aaron E. Klein, found this was far from the truth.

The former city judge (1957-1961), city Democratic chairman ('62-'63) and county Democratic chairman ('63-'67) has been corporation counsel since February of this year. He was interviewed in his office at 65 John Street where he is in partnership with John J. Schick, Democratic candidate for county judge.

The interview is as follows:

Questions, Answers

Freeman: Mr. Klein, what are the basic duties of the corporation counsel in Kingston?

Klein: The basic duty is one of an attorney representing the city and all its departments. This also includes the autonimous departments such as the water department and the city lab. However, it does not include the housing authority and the urban renewal agency.

I attend all council meetings and am available to answer any questions on law. I attend committee meetings when requested and also public hearings when asked.

Freeman: That sounds like a lot of work for one man.

Klein: I haven't finished. I also attend the mayor's cabinet meetings when asked and am a member of the city planning board.

In addition, the corporation counsel must prepare all city bond issues including revenue anticipation notes and capital notes. The counsel must draw up all city contracts with outside sources in addition to reviewing all legislation and resolutions.

The corporation counsel must also defend all actions instituted against the city and its departments, except insurance coverages, and also institute suit for recovery for damages sustained by the city.

There's more but just to touch of a few other things, the counsel must also institute proceedings against persons that violate city ordinances or laws such as violation of housing laws or building codes.

Freeman: Just keeping up with all the laws and ordinances passed by the city must be a headache.

Help Ahead

Klein: It's not easy, but there's help ahead. The counsel approved codification of all city ordinances and laws at the September meeting. What this means is that all laws passed since 1872 will be under one cover. It'll be a tremendous help to anyone involved in city business and also lawyers, architects and engineers. The copies will sell for $50 and they're well worth the money.

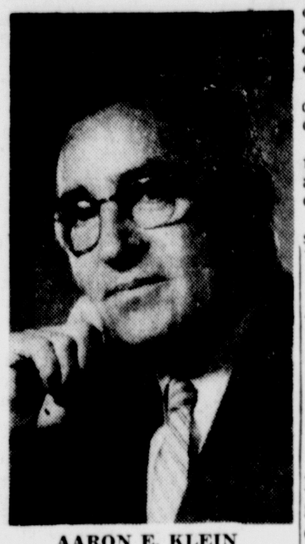

Freeman: Speaking of money, Judge, how much does the corporation counsel job pay?

Klein: Right now it pays $7,500 per year with $1,500 for secretarial work.

Bargain for City

Freeman: Nine thousand dollars doesn't sound too bad.

Klein: Believe me, the city is getting more than a bargain. I spend a lot more than $1,500 on secretarial fees. It's more like $2,500. And as far as my salary goes, if the city were to hire me, or any lawyer, on a contractural basis, it would be a heck of a lot more than $7,500. For instance, that trip I made to Albany with the Common Council Pollution Committee was part of my job as corporation counsel. If they were to hire a lawyer for that one day it would cost them $200, if we go by the fees suggested by the county bar association.

The suggested consultation fee is $20 per hour. Imagine if I were getting paid that for the Common Council meetings. You know how long they can last.

Freeman: Well, judge, it would appear you're not in the corporation counsel job for the money. What's the attraction?

The Attractions

Klein: There are a number of things. I like municipal law, haven't had much opportunity to practice it during my career. I also like working with people in the legislative branches of government. I like to be in on what's happening. And of course, there's the satisfaction of doing a job well.

Freeman: Would you say the corporation counsel's office is doing a good job for the city?

Klein: A good job, yes, with the facilities and personnel available. But the operation could be much more efficient.

Freeman: What would you suggest?

Klein: First of all, I'd like a part-time assistant. I also think my job should remain on a part-time basis. It's true, there's a lot of work but it tends to come in spurts. There are times when there's really nothing for a corporation counsel to do.

Freeman: Then you are against a full-time corporation counsel?

Klein: Certainly. It isn't necessary and, besides, the city couldn't afford a full-time man.

Since we're on the subject of personnel for the corporation counsel's office, I'd like to see a full-time law secretary. Someone who could serve from administration to administration. A civil service appointment perhaps.

Freeman: What do you see in the immediate future for the corporation counsel's office in Kingston?

The Future

Klein: It appears obvious that the workload will increase in the future. To meet this we must spend time and effort to make the office orderly and efficient. The codification book I mentioned previously should be out in seven or eight months and will be a real boon.

If I gave the impression I was complaining, I'm sorry. The job has many rewards, a few of which I've mentioned in this interview. My concern for an efficient corporation counsel office is in the interest of the city and my successors.

This is the only one-man office in the city. I have to give credit to my predecessors for having managed so well under such adverse conditions.

No Viet Endorsement

Governors May Rebuff LBJ

NEW YORK (AP) — Some Democratic and Republican governors said today that President Johnson will not get an endorsement for his Vietnam war policies during the cruise to the Virgin Islands that most of the nation's governors are undertaking.

Govs. John Connally of Texas and Otto Kerner of Illinois said in separate interviews they will not press for any endorsement of Johnson's Vietnam policies.

Both of the Democratic governors noted that 20 of their colleagues had endorsed the general policies of Johnson in Vietnam at a luncheon Sunday in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

The Democrats had reaffirmed their support of the President's course in Vietnam. Most of them had criticized it at a meeting in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., last December, but they retracted the criticism in a St. Louis, Mo., meeting subsequently.

Twenty-three of the 25 Republican governors and 22 of the 25 Democratic governors were expected aboard the liner Independence today for the annual Governors' Conference.

Gov. John Love of Colorado, head of the Republican Governors Association, said he doesn't think the cruise conference will produce any unanimity on Vietnam.

"After all," Love said, "we Republicans are just about as divided as the Democrats on this issue and they have a candidate and we don't."

The declaration of Michigan Gov. George Romney, a Republican, that Johnson was following "a ping-pong" policy in Vietnam seemed to leave the governors as cold as the unsupported statement of Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan of California that the United States may be "doing much better in the war than we're being told."

Reagan said Johnson was waiting until a politically opportune time in the 1968 campaign to announce that "we've turned a point in the war and perhaps we're winning."

He spoke on ABC's program "Issues and Answers."

Gov. James Rhodes of Ohio, a Republican who had taken the initiative two years ago in lining up the governors behind Johnson's Vietnam policies, said he is not interested in taking any similar action now.

Asked why, he said he thinks there is too much Republican dissent.

"I'm not running for anything and I'm not supporting anybody who is," Rhodes said.

Bus Drivers OK Contract In Albany

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Striking bus drivers and mechanics approved a new contract with the United Traction Co. Sunday night, paving the way for the restoration of bus service today.

Members of Local 132 of the Amalgamated Transportation Union had struck the company on Sept. 22. The company serves about 60,000 riders daily and provides communter service to Troy and several other neighboring communities.

The members voted 202 to 44 to accept the new contract. The two-year contract calls for an immediate 13-cent pay hike and increases of 7 and 12 cents an hour in July and the following January, respectively. Drivers and mechanics had been paid $2.53 an hour under the old contract.

The agreement had been reached Saturday after a negotiating session that lasted about 17 hours.

Miami Roll Call

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The list of candidates in the current campaign for Miami City Commission, Group Three, sounds like a U.N. roll call.

The candidates and their birth places are: Dominic Koo, China; Maurice Ferre (incumbent), Puerto Rico; Gilberto Hernandez, Cuba; and Hendrik Berns, Austria.

Lindsay Aide At UCCC Rites

August Heckscher, who has a home in Stone Ridge, will participate in the dedication of the new Stone Ridge campus on Saturday Oct. 21 of Ulster County Community College, President George B. Erbstein reported today.

Possessing a national reputation, Heckscher is currently Administrator of Recreation and Cultural Affairs and Commissioner of Parks in New York City. He formerly was cultural advisor to Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy.

President Erbstein announced Heckschner will introduce his long-time friend, U.S. Senator Jacob K. Javits, who will give the dedication address.

"Mr. Heckschner lives near our Stone Ridge campus and has watched it grow from rolling fields to a vital center of higher education in Ulster County." President Erbstein said. "We are indeed honored to have such an outstanding person participating in our dedication program."

Heckschner was named parks and cultural chief in New York City by Mayor Lindsay last February. He succeeds Thomas P. F. Hoving, who left the post to become director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

Heckscher was born in Huntington, L. I., the son of G. Maurice and Fannie Vanderhoef Heckscher and a grandson of August Heckscher, the German-born industrialist and philanthropist, for whom a park was named on Long Island.

He attended St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and was graduated from Yale University with a B.A. Degree. He received an M.A. Degree from Harvard University and has an LL D from Fairleigh Dickinson University, and L.H.D. from the University of the State of New York and Litt. D. Degrees from C. W. Post College and Adelphi College.

From 1939 to 1941, Hechscher was editor of the Auburn Citizen-Advertiser newspaper. He served in World War II with the Office of Strategic Services, and received the Decorated Chevalier French Legion of Honor. After the war he returned to the Auburn newspaper and remained there until 1948 when he became chief editorial writer for the New York Herald Tribune, a post he kept until 1956.

Heckscher served as Art Commissioner in New York City from 1957 to 1962 and was a director of the Twentieth Century Fund until appointed to his present post early this year. He also was a member of the State Council on the Arts and was chairman of the board of the International Council of the Museum of Modern Art.

A prolific author, Heckschler's books included A Pattern of Politics and The Public Happiness. He served as the chairman of the General Nonfiction Pulitizer Prize Committee.

New Autumn Apples Mean Good Eating

APPLE COFFEE CAKE

These days you can buy your favorite apples at the markets and use them in apple cakes, appetizers, desserts and just eating out of hand. Some of the recipes listed here may give you new ideas about serving Autumn apples. For instance, the new apple corn-meal coffee cake is just right for the breakfast table or for that mid-morning coffee hour in the kitchen when a enighbor drops in. It makes that just-right snack for late in the afternoon or at night with a glass of milk. The good flavor and texture of this new coffee cake depends on apples—chopped and added to the batter they add the taste of Autumn and a special goodness which only apples can give.

Coffee Cake

¾ cup enrich yellow corn meal
¾ cup sifted all-purpose flour
¾ cup sugar
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
¾ cup milk
1 egg
1½ cups peeled chopped apples

Topping

¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

For coffee cake, mix and sift corn meal, flour, sugar, baking powder, salt and cinnamon. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add milk, egg and apples. Stir until thoroughly blended. Bake in greased 8-inch square baking pan at 350° about 30 minutes. While coffee cake is baking, prepare topping: combine brown sugar, flour and cinnamon. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Sprinkle on top of coffee cake. Bake an additional 10 minutes. Serve warm, cut in squares.

Garage Sales in Suburbia Are High Class Bargain Basements

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Grandmother's rules of housekeeping said Thursday is for marketing and Friday for dusting and sweeping. But many contemporary wives in the Great Plains and Southwest think both days are for "doing" the garage sales.

A garage sale is a kind of high-class bargain basement, organized by an individual woman or group of friends, where offerings range from sink stoppers to guinea pigs to maternity clothes, all used.

In the suburbs of Kansas City, the station wagon and sports car sets park before $30,000 ranches to examine the offerings of 35-cent baby dresses, 25-cent mixinz bowl, $2-picture frames, and other odds and ends.

Mrs. James Hopewell of suburban Fairway, Kan., did the sales regularly for months before and after her first grandchild was born. She toted home a nursery full of barely used swings, toys and basic clothing.

Mrs. Bert Rosebrough of Prairie Village, Kan., another suburb, motioned to the well-furnished living room in her early American-style home.

"Everything in it," she said, "from the sofa to the maple scounces, came from garage sales." It was the same story in her 3-year-old son's room.

Anyone can hold a garage sale—providing she has the fortitude to let go of the things she and her family no longer use. The sales are announced by ads in neighborhood newspapers and signs planted on nearby streets.

On the big day, the garage is the spot for almost anything, except the family car. The sale is run like a store, not an auction. There is almost no bargaining. If it occurs, it is usually on a relatively expensive item.

Getting buyers is seldom a problem. Few can resist the enticement of pouring through another household's collection of trifles and trivia in hope that it will yield some surprise treasure.

Many women spend Thursday and Fridays, the traditional sale days, driving through the suburbs looking for sales. Sometimes they find several on one block.

Men make fun of their wives' garage sale habits. Once they attend one, though, they usually are bitten, too. The wife of a masculine garage sale fan said many of the articles sold in her sale came from her husband's foragings.

But the enthusiasm occasionally backfires.

One woman with garage sale fever made weekly expeditions and filled her basement with odds and ends of furniture, which she gradually refinished for use in the house. But many objects never made it up the stairs. She finally took stock of her crowded basement, sighed and called the neighborhood paper.

"I want to run an ad for a garage sale," she said.

Social Activities

TO BE SEEN ON AND OFF CAMPUS this year are the zany stick-ons. A bit on the wild side of youth, these brightly colored op-art oddities come in a kit that has 102 different arty and trivia-type designs. Some are bugs; others are hearts and flowers. These stick-ons are geared for Toenails, fingernails and can be fun for the bare knee miniskirter.

Plans Costume Party

Plans for a Halloween costume party were discussed at the Oct. 3 business meeting of Gamma Chi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held at the home of Mrs. Richard Larson, Port Ewen.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cote, Tillson, will host the party which is an annual event for members and their husbands.

During the business meeting tentative plans were made to conduct a bus trip to raise funds for the chapter's service projects.

Mrs. Robert Dunn was congratulated on her election as chairman of the City Council of Beta Sigma Phi Chapters in Kingston.

Programs were presented at the conclusion of the meeting by Mrs. Robert Dunn and Ray Lawrence.

Guests for the evening were: Mrs. Joan Micozzi, Mrs. Richard Rinschler and Mrs. Fred Spinneweber.

On Oct. 7 Gamma Chi participated in the Area Council meeting of Beta Sigma Phi Chapters held in Kingston. The day of activities included a walking tour, luncheon, round table discussions and a late afternoon punch party.

The next business meeting will be Nov. 7 at the Saugerties home of Mrs. Robert O'Brien.

Betty Moul Will Speak Here About Orphanage

In 1954 the late Dr. Thomas A. Dooley, serving as a young lieutenant in the U.S. Navy, was assisting refugees to flee from North Vietnam, one of those he helped was Madame Vu Thi Ngai. A formerly wealthy woman, whose husband had been liquidated by the Communists, Madame Ngai sold her jewels to support a growing number of orphans who came to her, and founded the An Lac Orphanage in Haiphong, where Dr. Dooley met her.

Miss Betty Moul, a trustee of the Thomas A. Dooley Foundation, Inc., who visited the orphanage now located in Saigon, last winter, will speak Saturday, Oct. 21, at the St. James Methodist Church, Fair and Pearl Streets, Kingston, at 7:30 p. m. She will show slides and play tapes of the voices of Madame Ngai and the children, which now number over 350. Since Dr. Dooley's death Madame Ngai has struggled to maintain the orphanage and is now in desperate need of funds. Miss Moul, who will return to An Lac in December, hopes to take along a sizeable fund to present to the courageous Madame Ngai.

Dr. Dooley in his first book about his work in Vietnam, Deliver Us From Evil, wrote: "This orphanage and its hundreds of smiling children became our orphanage and our children. We really sort of adopted them, as they adopted us. Madame Ngai was the head of the place and my corpsmen and I became the Orphanage Medical Department. The U.S. Navy became the Orphanage Trust Fund . . . Whenever there was an opportunity, the kids would be taken out to one of the ships, where they would be given an American type party."

Today the U.S. Army First Infantry Division has in turn adopted the orphanage, and Betty Moul will tell of the help they too have given to Madame Ngai, and the work of a young Army doctor who seems to be following in Dr. Dooley's footsteps.

Miss Moul is also secretary to Senator Jacob Javits, and when she leaves on her "vacation" to work in the orphanage in December, it will be her third trip to the war-torn country, and paid for by herself.

There will be no admission charge for Miss Moul's program, but contributions for the orphanage will be greatfully accepted. They are deductible.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise,

I'm perplexed as to what items should be most frequently washed. Have you any ideas on this?

Housewife

Hon, I would guess it to be whatever you use most frequently

Here are a couple of hints which I highly recommend:

I know most people don't wash pillowcases but once a week, which brings up a question. Shouldn't they be washed more often?

Pillowcases get twice as dirty as anything in our household for our hair is loaded with oil and hair spray. (Oil collects dust, you know.)

Many people don't realize how much time they spend sleeping, but it amounts to about one-third of their lifetime. So why not wash those pillowcases twice a week?

Furthermore, I reccommend using not only one pillowcase, but TWO on each pillow. The second one will protect your ticking from the excess oil and perspiration that goes through the first pillowcase.

This will save replacing those tickings so often. If you're never covered one you don't know how costly and time-consuming it can be.

The next item would be girdles. You know how much perspiration they absorb? They will last so much longer if thrown in the washer frequently with the bath towels.

Remember, nine times out of ten, any girdle you buy is a man-made fabric. It has no pores! Your towel will scrub against this "hold-in" project and it will last much, much longer.

Don't let perspirstion rot those fabulous girdles. I've learned from an authority that the rubbing action in washing makes them last far longer than if we allow the soil and perspiration to build up . . .

So, to my way of thinking, these are two items that should be washed more often than many of us do.

Dear Heloise:

This is probably the most unglamorous hint you'll get in the mail today but it really works

The baby had dropped a comb in the toilet. Husband gone, no snake to use, the plumber's friend wouldn't budge it. So I used the spring from the screen door as a snake!

Worked like a charm, and sure saved a plumber's bill.

Mother

Dear Heloise:

When my brother wanted to give a friend some seeds the other day, I stuck them in between two pieces of masking tap so he wouldn't lose them. This method could be used in the fall when you collect seeds. The name of the seeds can be written on the tape before they are stuck to it.

Working for New Indian Image

By BEVERLEY WILSON
Miami Herald Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Behind a modern desk surrounded by businesslike file cabinets and "in" and "out" baskets in the U.S. Department of the Interior's Bureau of Indian Affairs in Hollywood, Seminole Betty Mae Jumper is out to create a new image for Seminole women.

She is the first woman elected chairman of the Tribal Council of Florida's 930 or so Seminole Indians.

The nation she helps govern has citizens whose concerns range from Keeping the Great Spirit's secret deerskin medicine bundle with its burden of herbs, stones and dried animal parts, to preventing their teenagers from drag-racing on the streets.

Mrs. Jumper takes in her amiable stride the dramatic gap between the old and the new ways of life that invasion by the white man's 20th century has brought to her three reservations.

"It's a challenge," she said simply, echoing every ambitious woman new to her job. She met her first challenge years ago when she became the first Seminole to get a high school diploma, over violent opposition from her family.

"Woman have never held political office in Indian tribes. Men have been the chiefs, the medicine men, the thinkers who governed. Women have stuck to the planting, the clothes making and child raising," said the 44-year-old mother of three. She is Mrs. Moses Jumper to neighbors at her native Okalee Indian Village here.

Chairman Jumper's duties include presiding over the powerful four-man council that makes decisions about the welfare and betterment of the nation. She works easily with newly-elected president Joe Dan Osceola, 30-year-old social worker, who oversees the $13 million Seminole Corporation and just as smoothly with white civic leaders and U.S. Interior Department officials.

Other squaws, who are beginning to believe a woman's place isn't always in the chickee, warm to her unpretentious manner as well as her political daring. "Our women are beginning to win equal rights. Prejudice against them is on the decline," she observed.

The tribe's myriad interests have become big business, requiring active support of both sexes. They include a large cattle industry, agriculture, clothing and arts and crafts industries, land development, a Seminole village and camping grounds in Hollywood open to the public.

In her campaign, Mrs. Jumper ran into surprisingly little opposition from men. "They voted for me, didn't they? I had strong supporters 4 working hard."

Her shy, friendly smile and generously-proportioned figure became familiar sights as she stumped along the chickee huts and newer concrete block and frame houses of the Okalee, Big Cypress and Brighton reservations.

Her platform was much like that of any civic-minded mother concerned about juvenile delinquency, better education and welfare programs, better housing, irrigation and creation of more industry.

Concrete blocks and frame houses are replacing the old open-sided thatched roof chickees and the open campfire kitchens, but not as rapidly as she'd like. Sewing machines whir in even the primitive chickees, as ducks and roosters and an occasional flamboyant peacock waddle past.

"We need street lights and a lighted recreation area for our young people to keep them off the streets at night," Mrs. Jumper said. "Compared to the white population, our juvenile delinquency rate is low, but it's rising. The white boys come onto the reservations and teach our youngsters to drag race."

Young people are getting away from the stern disciplines the tribal elders used to enforce now that they are in public schools.

She worries sometimes about her own son, Moses Jr., who like every boy in high school wanted his own motorcycle and now drives his own car to school.

Fourteen-year-old daughter Scarlett Marie ("named for Scarlett O'Hara" her mother pointed out proudly) wants to be either a nurse or a secretary.

But unlike the children of other ethnic groups being absorbed into the American culture, young educated Seminoles are loyal about living among their people. They don't want to leave the reservations, the council chairman believes.

"What we need are more arts and crafts and clothing industries, and more modern agricultural techniques so they earn a better living."

Mrs. Jumper isn't hanging by her thumbs waiting for her people to become rich from the $40 million the federal claims court in Washington, D.C., has decided Seminoles are due for the $32 million taken from them in 1840.

More immediately, she visits with older people, sympathizing in their Miccosukee language (a blend of Indian tongues and Spanish idioms) with their dismay over the youngsters who don't take such sacred rituals as green corn dances seriously and who prefer the white man's doctors to the tribe's few remaining elder medicine men. To the younger adults, she speaks English in a soft southern drawl.

Her third child, fifth-grader Boettner, is named for an admired white medical doctor.

"Miccosukee is only a spoken language. I knew I had to learn to read and write English if I wanted to help my people," Mrs. Jumper said. "I had to go West to school because Indians didn't go to Florida schools at that time.

"My grandmother was sure I'd come to harm mingling with whites, as the women in her family had. She thought the only fit life for an Indian girl was helping her with her corn, bean and pumpkin garden until I married."

NCJW Committee On Legislation

The State Legislation Committee of the National Council of Jewish Women in New York, today came out strongly against the proposed new state constitution, stating that repeal of the "Blaine Amendment" is "a disservice to ourselves and to future generations."

Mrs. Jacob Benderson of Syracuse, chairman of the committee, declared that "this amendment to date has safeguarded the separation of church and state, and provided the basis for our public school system. A single public school system for all children, supported by all citizens, has been the backbone of our American way of life," Mrs. Benderson concluded.

Since the constitution is being presented as a single package, without choice on individual provisions, the NCJW committee is urging all New York State Council members to vote against the document.

"We will campaign activiely to defeat the constitution in November," said Mrs. Benderson.

Suddenly Your Silver Polish Is Obsolete!

Your silver's worst enemy "tarnish" has been defeated. Hagerty chemistry gives you a new Silver Care Team that works like magic — one easy application of new Silversmith's Polish removes tarnish, makes silver shine, and locks out tarnish for months and months. Simple dusting with Silversmiths' Gloves keeps it shining and replenishes the tarnish barrier. In test after test, this new Silver Care Team has been proven conclusively to prevent tarnish 10, 20, or 30 times longer than any competing product tested. It's so effective in preventing tarnish that it literally makes all other silver polishes obsolete! Hagerty Silversmiths' Polish — 8 oz. only $2.00; 12 oz. only $3.00 Silversmith's Gloves — $1.40 per pair.
It's as easy as 1, 2, 3!

1 First, clean your silver with HAGERTY Silversmiths' Polish. The Polish produces an effective invisible barrier to tarnish-causing elements.

2 Then, each time you dust your silver, use the darker, impregnated sides of the gloves to invisibly shut out tarnish-causing elements . . . dust regularly to restore the original tarnish barrier.

3 Twirl gloves around for final gentle polishing, remove excess tarnish - preventing chemical . . . buff to a gleaming lustre.

Port Jervis Hands Kingston High 33-14 DUSO Setback

Byrd Runs 90 Yards For Maroon

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Don't write off Port Jervis as a DUSO pennant contender.

While more than 2,000 watched Saturday under the foggy skies at Glennette Field, the Raiders threw their lightning fast "pony" backfield at Kingston High and stopped the locals, 33-14, in the league opener for both schools.

Quarterback Bill Gastmeyer, halfbacks Garrett Hill and Bill Lain and fullback Mike Gould went around, over and through the KHS defense in an awesome show of sheer speed. It was something to behold.

The victory overshadowed an electrifying run by little Marshall Byrd of the visitors. With 11 seconds of the first half remaining, Byrd took the kickoff after the second PJ score on the 10 yard line.

Byrd Shakes Free

He tucked the ball under his arm and headed towards the sideline at his left. Apparently trapped at midfield, Byrd managed to shake free and outspeed the secondary for a KHS touchdown. It sent the visitors into the locker room only trailing by a 13-7 count as Tim Bowens made the extra point.

Port moved 61 yards in seven plays in the first period with Gastmeyer cracking the middle from the one. Carl DeGroat made the first of his three extra points.

With time running out in the second stanza, the Raiders of coach Joe Viglione moved 51 yards in nine plays. The payoff came with 11 seconds of the first half left. Gastmeyer passed to DeGroat, a quick moving end. He made a fake to the outside and then cut towards the middle. He made the catch and fell into the end zone.

Then came the nifty return by Byrd and it was still anybody's game, despite the fact the locals didn't have a first down.

Kingston hopes were dashed within two minutes after the interim. Defensive end Bill Clary intercepted a pass by Mike Hoffman on the K 43. He brought it to the five before being shoved out of bounds.

Two plays later, Lain cracked over and DeGroat booted the PAT. It was now a 20-7 game.

Port put a punt in play on the KHS 32 moments later. Gastmeyer hit DeGroat for a first down on the 19 and for another first down on the six.

Lain lugged the pigskin to the one and Gastmeyer sneaked over for another TD. DeGroat's kick made it a 27-7 contest. It marked the fourth touchdown scored in less than eight minutes of action.

The Classy Raiders were striking again as the third period ended, having moved the pigskin to the KHS 36.

Six plays into the fourth session, Gould bulled in from the two. Again it was a Gastmeyer to DeGroat toss which aided the surge. This one carried 19 yards. DeGroat was wide with his boot.

The KHS offense was dormant until the middle of the fourth period. A 15 yard penalty against the Raiders gave the locals their initial first down.

Hoffman completed a pair of tosses against the second unit. The first covered 22 yards and was caught by Bowens. It gave the visitors their other first down and moved the ball to the PJ 27.

On the next play, the KHS quarterback hit halfback Jeff Perry near the sidelines. He made it to the end zone and Bowens split the uprights with his placement.

Port ran two plays before time ran out.

The Raiders, who figure to give both Newburgh and Middletown battles before the season is over, go for their fourth straight win Saturday at Roosevelt.

Kingston, showing signs of improvement each time out, entertainns winless Cardinal Farley Military Academy Saturday at Dietz Stadium.

One thing is certain. The Maroon players won't meet a faster backfield than the one they faced Saturday. The Raiders were simply too quick and talented.

With Early Burst

OCS Routs Wallkill In UCAL Game, 28-6

Onteora Central's varsity recovered two fumbles and blocked a kick in the first period to roll up a 21-0 lead then retired to the bench to let the second and third stringers complete a routine 28-6 UCAL football win over Wallkill Central Saturday at Boiceville.

Co-Captain Mickey Bush completed two touchdown passes to halfback George Colon — one for 10 yards and the other a spectacular 60-yard pass-run play and plunged 2 yards to account for three of the Onteora touchdowns.

The fourth Onteora TD resulted from a blocked punt which fullback John Adsit downed in the Wallkill end zone. OCS is now 3-1 in the UCAL.

Co-Captain Dale Chauncey, who is one of the all-time great Onteora linemen, recovering beautifully from his injury in the Rondout Valley loss, was again his usual awesome presence. He blocked a Wallkill punt on the 22 yard line in the hectic first period and Adsit fell on the ball in the end zone for Onteora's first touchdown. Later he recovered a fumble on an unsuccessful Wallkill onside kick on the visitors' 47-yard line and the Indians marched the 47 yards in 7 plays as Bush plunged over from the 2 yard line for the second TD of the game.

Cocks Grabs Fumble

Alan Cocks recovered a fumble on the Wallkill 17 in the big first period and three plays later Bush completed the 10-yard TD aerial to Colon.

Coach Paul Jordan, pleased to see his club rebound beautifully from the Rondout Valley defeat, cleared his bench after the varsity piled up the 21-0 first quarter lead.

But just to make sure that Onteora did not have to rely solely on fast breaking plays, he sent the varsity back intact for the second half kickoff. And what followed was sheer devastation for Wallkill.

Mike Patrick, one of three quarterbacks used by Jordan (Jim Marcato was the other), returned the kickoff to the Onteora 8. Three plays later Bush hit Colon on the Wallkill 31 and the fleet halfback went the rest of the distance into the Wallkill end zone untouched for a 60-yard touchdown play.

60-Yard Bomb

On the first play, Pete Morey, circled right end for 16 yards to the OCS 24. Bush then hit Clark Van Etten with a 16-yard pass to the OCS 40. Bush faded back and hit Colon on the 31. The latter came up from the right side, veered toward center, caught the ball in mid-field at the 31 and raced into the end zone for Onteora's fourth touchdown. George Stothoof then kicked his fourth successive extra point to put Onteora ahead, 28-0.

Operating against Onteora's second and third stringers, Wallkill marched 85 yards in 12 plays to crash the scoreboard for the only time late in the third period. Quarterback Mike Mulqueen, a workhorse throughout the day for Wallkill plunged over from the 2-yard line but Andy Balsz's soccer style try for extra point failed.

Wallkill marched from its own 43 to the OCS 8 in the closing minutes of the game but Coach Jordan rushed his regular back into the fray. Wayne Simpson dropped an interception on the OCS 15. Two plays later Paul Morey recovered a Mike Mulqueen fumble on the OCS 8 after Dave Berryann jolted the ball loose from the Wallkill quarterback.

Late in the second period, Wallkill marched 66 yards but the Indians stiffened and took over on their own 6. Another 47-yard Wallkill drive came to grief on the OCS 23 against the OCS reserves.

If there is any question about the misleading quality of football statistics, the OCS-Wallkill chart proves it. Wallkill had 12 first downs to Onteora's 7. Total yardage was 201 for Onteora to 190 for Wallkill. It was 87-85 in favor of Wallkill on the ground; 116-193 for OCS in the air. But don't believe those statistics. The game was never that close.

Kingston Jaycees Little League will stage its third annual awards banquet Sunday, Oct. 22, at 5:30 p. m. at the Gov. Clinton Hotel.

Kingston High's varsity football coach, Bill Hurley, will be the guest speaker. Tickets may be obtained from all league managers or from league president George R. Krom.

Lourdes Nips CFMA, 13-6

After being held to a scoreless tie in the first half, the undefeated Warriors of Our Lady of Lourdes scored touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters to nip Cardinal Farley Military Academy, 13-6, in a non-league football game Saturday in Rhinecliff.

In scoring their fourth straight verdict and keeping the Cadets winless, the Warriors were thwarted deep in Farley territory in the opening half.

Mike Erts set up the initial score when he picked off a pass in the third quarter. Taking over on the 40, the visitors cracked the stubborn Farley line and on the ninth play after the interception, quarterback Tim Gartland threw a three yard scoring aerial to end Bill O'Neill. Erts then cracked over guard for the extra point.

The winning TD had some razzle-dazzle touch. Gartland flipped a short pass to O'Neill, who in turn lateralled to Erts, who went 34 yards.

Cardinal Farley visits Dietz Stadium Saturday to oppose Kingston High School.

RVC, Marlboro Play Scoreless Tie

Defense dominated Saturday at Marlboro as the homestanding Dukes held Rondout Valley's high scoring Ganders to a scoreless deadlock.

Coach Jack Kroh's eleven limited Gordie Taylor, the Gander ace halfback, to 87 yards for the afternoon, only the second time this season he has been limited to less than 200 yards in a game.

A sloppy field hampered the ball carriers and a mist, which fell from start to finish, hurt the passing game of both squads.

Rondout reached the Marlboro 30 late in the second period but lost the ball on downs. The home side fumbled away its only scoring opportunity in the same period.

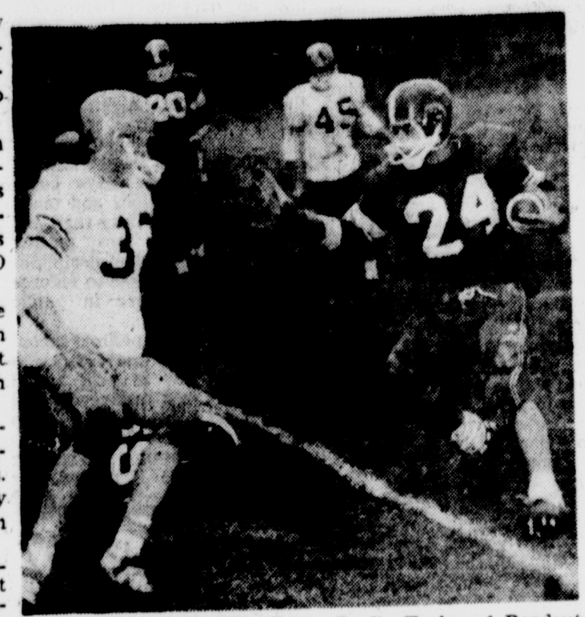

Despite the deadlock Rondout Valley still clings to first place in the UCAL. The Ganders won three and tied one. Marlboro is second, showing two victories and two ties in four starts.

Roosevelt Rips Arlington, 19-0

Winless Roosevelt High shocked the high flying Arlington Admirals with a rock-ribbed defense and surprised the defending DCSL champions, 19-0, Saturday at the Freedom Plains gridiron.

Reserve quarterback Gary Luhmann played a key role as the Presidents scored their initial win of the campaign.

Taking over for the injured Bob O'Connor, Luhmann completed 13 passes in 22 tries, good for 173 yards.

His five yard toss to fullback And Johnson gave the visitors a 6-0 lead at the interim.

In the third quarter, the Presidents drove 60 yards and Luhmann took it in from the one. Jodie Kagan was successful with his extra point try.

Trying to get back into the game, Arlington had a pass intercepted late in the fourth period. Luhmann passed to end Bob Clark from the four for the final score.

Arlington was so stymied by the FDR defense it was able to pick up only two first downs.

Red Hook Decisions Dover Plains, 26-6

Nearing its Bi-Valley showdown date with Pawling, Red Hook cruised to its fourth straight victory, 26-6, over Dover Plains Saturday at the losers' gridiron.

The Hookers spotted their hosts a first stanza TD as quarterback Pete Dolan heaved 45 yards to Gary Doria, his halfback.

Red Hook knotted the count as Jay Gardner ran 51 yards. The visitors went in front for keeps when Ralph Cort plunged for the extra point.

Cort went off tackle for a seven yard slant in the second period. He also ran for the PAT.

Quarterback Ed Thompson threw a couple of "bombs" in the third session. The first went 30 yards and the second was a 60 yard toss, both of them going to end Terry White.

Hawk Player Gets Four Goals

BOSTON (AP) — Those who wondered how lanky Phil Esposito would get along without Bobby Hull skating on his left wing didn't have to wait long for an answer.

Now there might be some doubt if Hull and the Chicago Black Hawks will be able to get by without Esposito.

Esposito, a gifted 6-foot-1 center obtained by Boston in an off-season trade with the Black Hawks, exploded for four goals Sunday night as the Bruins ranked Montreal 6-2 to remain unbeaten in two National Hockey League starts.

It was the biggest scoring splurge — and first hat trick — for Esposito in his NHL career.

The Toronto Maple Leafs, meanwhile, handed Chicago's defending NHL champions their third setback in three games—pounding the Black Hawks 5-3 despite Hull's third goal of the young season.

Elsewhere, Detroit edged New York 3-2 and Los Angeles trimmed Minnesota 5-3.

Esposito hardly missed exlinemate Hull as he banged in three goals in the opening period and added another in the middle session, staking the Bruins to a commanding lead.

Poughkeepsie Turns Back Sawyers, 21-13

PHS SCORE — Defensive back Gary Stauderman of Poughkeepsie is on his way to a 20 yard touchdown run after intercepting Saugerties High pass Saturday. The Pioneers gave up their first points of the season but still managed to defeat the Sawyers, 21-13, in their DCSL tussle. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Unbeaten Poughkeepsie High School scored a pair of first half touchdowns on Saugerties mistakes and then had to fight for its life before finally beating the spirited Sawyers, 21-13, in a DCSL game Saturday at the SHS field.

Trailing by a 21-0 count early in the fourth session, the winless home side struck for a pair of scores and threw a giant-sized scare into the powerful Pioneers, who had their goal line crossed for the first time this season.

Poughkeepsie scored twice in the first period as halfback Charles Ellis ran 36 yards with a recovered blocked punt and reserve quarterback Gary Stauderman swiped a pass and took it 20 yards for a score. Ray Watkins made both conversions.

SHS Defense Stiffens

Poughkeepsie drove 93 yards in the second quarter but was stopped at the seven. The defensive work on the part of the Sawyer line kept it a 14-0 game at halftime. The expected rout was not taking place.

Coach Don Smith's talented club took the second half kickoff and moved for a third score. Fullback Bill Kreen, a human dynamo, went in from 13 yards out and Watkins again converted.

The fourth quarter belonged to the Sawyers. The first time they had the ball in those final 12 minutes, the Sawyers hit paydirt. A 36 yard run by Tony Konopka was the big gainer. The touchdown came on a six yard pass from quarterback John Warns to end Drew Craig. Fullback Roger Praetorious made the extra point.

After the Pioneers were forced to punt, the home forces moved again. Konopka did most of the lugging. Finally, with a first and goal from the one, he stormed over for a score. Warns attempted a pass for the extra point but it was knocked down.

Again the Sawyers took over. With less than a minute remaining, Warns tried a long one. It was picked off by Rudy Jones at the 20. He ran 40 yards to the SHS 40 as time ran out.

Despite the setback, Seither was happy over the improved performance of the Sawyers. "The boys hit a lot harder and didn't give up. Those mistakes in the first half were the difference," he said.

With Best Ball 60

Minasian-Murray Share Tourney Lead

Ed Minasian of Twaalfskill and his pro partner, Jim Murray of Pine Brook Country Club in Gloversville, posted a best-ball 60 to capture Sunday's Northeastern Pro-Member-Guest at The Twaalfskill Club.

Murray, one of the 1967 tour's leading players, and Minasian, one time Kingston High football star, edged Ray Osborne and Ed Ziombrowski of Pinehaven by one shot. Ziombroski, an amateur, led the entire field with a one-under-par 69.

Bill Gressick, Catskill Country Club pro and John S. Provenzano of Twaalfskill placed third with best-ball 63.

Murray also shared fourth spot at 64 with J. Zambella as his partner. Hap Duval, unattached pro, and William Merrill Sr. also had 64. Duval also teamed with John Madison for a 65 to tie with Ian (Scotty) Robertson and Leon Randall.

Gressick and Frank Montoya of Little Falls tied for low pro honors with 3-over-par 73's. Alex Gerlak, host pro, was in a 3-way tie at 74 with Jim Hutchins of Woodstock and Marty Czwaikel of Normanside. Robertson posted a 75.

Troy Titans Rip Crusaders

The Hudson Valley Crusaders returned to River view Field in Poughkeepsie Sunday night and lost a 19-2 verdict to the Troy Titans before about 800 fans.

Aside from a snap from center which sailed out of the end zone in the first quarter, the Crusaders didn't come close to scoring.

Highland Turns Back New Paltz Squad, 7-0

After failing to score in four downs from the two yard line, Highland came back to reach paydirt next time it had the pigskin and nipped New Paltz, 7-0, in a defensive UCAL struggle Saturday at the Huguenot field.

Coach Lem Atkins' defending champions remained in title contention with the victory. The Highlanders have a 2-1 record while New Paltz is winless in four league starts.

After a scoreless first half, the winners had several scoring opportunities in the third and fourth periods. They capitalized on the final one as Charlie Hicks scampered in from the 15 and Cus Trapani booted the extra point.

The home side moved well near midfield but couldn't penetrate much beyond that point.

Fallsmen Zip Beacon, 27-0

After four games, the Wappingers Falls Indans have still to yield their first point.

Saturday at Beacon, the Falls Flyers tallied once in each quarter and buried Beacon, 27-0, in a DCSL contest.

While the visitors ground out 214 yards on the ground, their defense didn't permit the Bulldogs to pose a serious threat. In capturing three games and tying one, Wappingers is the only area club to produce all shutouts.

Quarterback Ed Bonnett scored twice for the winners. Charlie McKinney ran 11 yards for the first score and Bill Gates bulled in from the one for the other. Despite his first miss of the season, Mike Guiliano made three of four extra point attempts.

Denver Cagers Debut With Win

The Denver Rockets opened their American Basketball Association season Sunday night with a 110-105 victory over Anaheim while in the National Basketball Association the St. Louis Hawks posted their second victory of the young season, defeating the San Francisco Warriors 107-102.

Denver's debut was sparked by the 39-point output of Lefty Thomas, who hit 19 field goals and a free throw. Les Selvage and seven-footer Larry Bunce led the Amigos with 26 and 22 points, respectively.

It was Anaheim's second loss.

A slimmed-down Paul Silas led the Hawks' attack with 15 points with four of his teammates also hitting in the double figures.

The Warriors are generally the Hawks' chief rivals for the Western Division championship but they are now without the services of Rick Barry, who chose to sit out this season so he can jump to the Oakland Oaks of the ABA next season.

San Francisco held a 51-49 lead at the half but the Hawks took a three-point lead with 2:43 remaining and never relinquished it.

Port Ewen Juniors Top Saugerties, 4-0

Twelve-year-old Johnny Robinson scored two goals and David Farrell (10) and Bobby Graves (10) had one each as the Port Ewen Juniors blanked Saugerties, 4-0, in a soccer preliminary Sunday at Oehler's Mountain Lodge.

The Port Ewen aggregation, coached by Bob Graves of the Kingston Sports Club, is undefeated in two years of play.

Red Sox Seek More Pitching

BOSON (AP) — Dick Williams, armed with a fat three-year contract as manager of the Boston Red Sox, shopped around for pitching and catching strength today to help his young charges defend the American League pennant in 1968.

Williams, a 38-yer-old former journeyman player, frankly discussed his needs after being rewarded during the weekend with the long-term contract calling for a reported $50,000 a year.

"We'll be looking to strengthen our pitching and catching next year," Williams said. "This is what we'll trade for if the opportunity presents itself. I'm not up to date on the trade situation, but we've been laying the groundwork.

"The winter meetings in Mexico are coming up and we might be able to do some business then."

Williams, who directed the Red Sox from a ninth-place finish in 1966 to the championship in his rookie season as manager, was re-hired immediately after carrying the St. Louis Cardinals to seven games in the World Series.

All for the price of a fancier priced car.

$3260 is the latest average price paid for a new car these days. (So says the Automobile Manufacturers Association.)

$3260 will also buy you a new range, a new refrigerator, a new dryer, a new washer, two new television sets, a record player and a $1,695* Volkswagen.

Of course our little package doesn't include all those tricky little items you find on those fancier-priced cars. (like electric ashtray cleaners. Or headlights that disappear when the sun comes out.)

But it does include good food, clean clothes, nice music and a chance to watch all the summer reruns in color.

A lot of people frown on a Volkswagen because they feel it doesn't offer enough in the way of fancy gadgetry.

Giants Nip Steelers, 27-24

Vikings' 10-7 Win Over Packers NFL's Biggest Upset

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

No wonder the winning habit hasn't come easy for the Minnesota Vikings. They only play Green Bay a couple of times each year.

The Vikings pulled the biggest upset of the young National Football League season Sunday, spilling Green Bay's world champs 10-7 on a 12-yard field goal by Fred Cox with eight seconds to play.

It was Minnesota's first victory of the season...and the first setback for the Packers since they bowed to the Vikings 20-17 last November.

"Beating Green Bay is getting to be a habit," quipped Cox, whose second field goal in the 1966 game at Green Bay provided Minnesota's margin of victory.

After losing that one, however, the Packers reeled off five straight victories, beat Dallas for the NFL title, whipped Kansas City in the Super Bowl and got off to a 3-0-1 start this year. The Vikings, meanwhile, dropped five of their last six games in 1966 for a 4-9-1 finish and were 0-4 this season going into Sunday's game at rain-drenched Milwaukee, Wis.

While the Vikings were overtaking Green Bay with a 10-point spurt in the final period, the Los Angeles Rams came from 10 points down in the last six minutes to earn a 24-24 standoff at Baltimore and spoil the Colts' perfect NFL record.

Falcons in Tie

At Atlanta, Wade Traynham's 31-yard field goal with two seconds remaining gave the winless Falcons a 20-20 deadlock with Washington.

At Pittsburgh, Fran Tarkenton's 69-yard TD bomb to Joe Morrison off a triple reverse shot the New York Giants past the Steelers 27-24 with 1:50 to go.

At Philadelphia, Ken Willard's fourth-quarter scoring burst carried the San Francisco 49ers to a 28-27 nod over the Eagles.

The Dallas Cowboys edged New Orleans 14-10, the Cleveland Browns shaded St. Louis 20-16 and the Chicago Bears subdued Detroit 14-3 in other NFL games.

Green Bay's Zeke Bratkowski, unbeaten in eight previous games as a relief pitcher for Bart Starr, had two fourth-quarter passes picked off by the Vikings, who turned each theft into a score.

Rams in Rally

Bruce Gossett's 47-yard field goal and Roman Gabriel's third scoring pass—a 16-yarder to Bernie Casey with 2:57 to play—pulled Los Angeles even at Baltimore. The Colts had won their first four games and appeared to have No. 5 wrapped up on Johnny Unitas' 31-yard TD pitch to Willie Richardson early in the fourth quarter.

Unitas, who signed a three-year contract for a reported $375,000 before the game, also hit Alex Hawkins with a 14-yard TD pass. Lous Michaels kicked a 45-year field goal for the Colts, but missed a 44-yard bid with 1½ minutes reminaing.

The Redskins, beaten by Dallas in the final minute a week ago, erased a 17-14 Atlanta lead on a 24-yard Sonny Jurgenson-Bobby Mitchell TD pass with 42 seconds to go. But Tommy Nobis, Atlanta's brilliant linebacker, blocked the extra point kick by Brig Owens and Traynham's tying three-pointer capped a last-ditch drive by the Falcons.

Trailing 24-20 at the two-minute warning, the Giants caught the Steelers napping when Tarkenton handed off to Ernie Koy, who slipped the ball to Homer Jones on an apparent end-around play. Jones, however, flipped it back to the quarterback, who found Morrison all alone on the Pittsburgh 30.

Willard's winning four-yard plunge avenged San Francisco's one-point loss to the Eagles last year, two touchdowns by fullback Gary Lewis helped stake the 49ers to a 21-10 halftime lead, but the Eagles rallied to take the lead behind Norm Snead, who fired three TD passes.

The Cowboys held off winless New Orleans in the rain at Dallas, stopping a fourth-quarter Saints' march on the five-yard line and thwarting another drive when Dave Edwards recovered a fumble on the seven with one minute to play.

Lou Groza's first two field goals of the season lifted the Browns past the fumbling Cardinals. Jim Bakken's third field goal cut the Browns' lead to 17-16 early in the final period before Groza kicked a 34-yarder with 58 seconds remaining.

Gale Sayers romped over a muddy field for 142 yards and one touchdown and Bennie McRae scored on a 29-yard interception runback as the Bears cuffed the Lions at Chicago. The winners threw only four passes in the game, but completed three—including a 31-yard Jack Concannon-Johnny Morris flip that set up Sayers' three-yard TD run.

See $375,000 Pact For Johnny Unitas

BALTIMORE (AP) — A few years ago, quarterback John Unitas of the Baltimore Colts predicted that within five years someone in the National Football League would be drawing an annual salary of $100,000.

"But," he added, in the same matter-of-fact tone he uses when discussing one of his many NFL records, "it won't be me."

Typically—for Unitas—there was no flag waving when he did reach the magic figure. The Colts, in fact, practically kissed off the signing with the same notice given to the release of a rookie.

Just before the opening kickoff for Sunday's Baltimore-Los Angeles game, a terse announcement was made in the Memorial Stadium press box:

"Attention press. John Unitas has signed a three-year contract."

As usual, terms were not disclosed. But the best guess was Unitas signed for about $375,000, which more than likely would be spread over more than the three playing years. Still, he would be one of the highest-paid athletes and probably tops in football on straight salary, disregarding bonuses.

Now 34 and in his 12th NFL season, Unitas reached agreement with club owner Carroll Rosenbloom on the monetary value of the new contract during the training season, the additional time was used to work out ways of easing the tax bite.

Unitas has acknowledged that he makes more money during the off-season than for playing football—income that will be sharply curtailed when he retires from the gridiron. That's why he sought the long-term payments as he concluded his previous three-year pact.

Had Unitas been injured and knocked out of action before he actually signed, he would have been paid on the basis of the new agreement rather than the stimated $70,000 he earnd annually under the old contract.

Perhaps because of the verbal agreement prior to the season, the Colts did not accompany the signing with fanfare. They failed to capitalize on the publicity value, as did the Philadelphia 76ers last week when they announced basketball star Wilt Chamberlain signed for about $250,000.

Duncan's Act Two TDs Better Than His Dream

Charger Back Intercepts Six Kaycee Passes

By RON RAPOPOR
Associated Press Sports Writer

The voices Speedy Duncan hears give him good information, but his dreams tend to get a little out of hand.

"I had a dream Saturday night that I would intercept four passes and help San Diego win," the Charger defensive back said after an important 45-31 victory over Kansas City Sunday.

In real life, Duncan intercepted just one of Len Dawson's throws, but it was a good one. Duncan took it 100 yards for a touchdown, the longest return of a pass interception in league history.

"Chris Burford had beaten me on that play for the last two years," the 5-10, 175-pound defensive back said. "It's a short up-and-out pattern where he pushes me off, goes for the flag and beats me. This time, I played a yard or two deeper.

"I got the ball with my hand, batted it up and was ready to down it when I heard (defensive back) Bud Whitehead yell, 'Run, Speedy, run, you've got the sideline.' So I looked, Whitehead yelled again, and I ran."

Earlier in the afternoon's festivities, Duncan had picked up a fumble by Mike Garrett and taken it 35 yards for a touchdown.

Other Long Strikes

Two other Charger touchdowns also came on long strikes. Quarterback John Hadl hit flanker Lance Alworth with a 60-yard scoring pass, and rookie halfback Dick Post burst through for a 67-yard touchdown run.

In other AFL games Sunday, New York and Houston fought to a 28-28 tie, Oakland beat Buffalo 24-20 and Boston crushed Miami 41-10. Denver was idle.

The defeat dropped the Chiefs into third place in the AFL's Western Division with a 3-2 mark while San Diego stayed in first with a 4-0 record. The Chargers face Denver, last in the division, next week, and Kansas City tries to take out its frustrations on Houston.

Houston's defense did what its offense couldn't, scoring three touchdowns and setting up the fourth against the Jets. Safety Ken Houston scored on a 71-yard return of a blocked field-goal try and a 43-yard run with a pass interception. Miller Farr intercepted three passes, returning one for a score.

Only Intercept Six

In all, the Oilers interceptd six of Joe Namath's passes and threatened to win the game with a steal on the last play of the game by W.K. Hicks. Seventy-one yards and two laterals later, Namath himself prevented the score, tackling Larry Carwell on the four.

Daryle Lamonica threw two touchdown passes against his former Buffalo teammates despite a lot of pressure from the Bills' line, which threw him five times for losses of 50 yards. The Oakland defense was equally hard-hitting, punishing Jackie Kemp 11 times for 96 yards lost.

Babe Parilli threw five touchdown passes for Boston, three to Jim Whalen and two to Larry Grantham. The Patriots rolled to a 27-3 halftime bulge on four Parilli scoring aerials. Babe finished with 16 completions in 20 attempts and 281 yards gained.

PANAMA CITY (AP) — Edward Fitzgerald of Phoenix, Ariz. and Mrs. Norma Heitzman of Nan Nuys, Calif., were announced today as winners of Panama's 15th international fishing tournament. Fitzgerald won with a 506 pound black marlin. Mrs. Heitzman led the women's division with a 466-pound black marlin. Both catches were made in Pinas Bay off the Pacific Coast of southeastern Panama. The tournament lasted from July 1 to Sept. 4.

Tie for G-A Lead

Kickers Rally Tops Yonkers Team, 5-3

Richie Lotze Bags Two Goals

Outside right Richie Lotze donned the hero's mantle, as Kingston Sport Club Kickers rallied with three goals in the last 15 minutes of play to turn back a stubborn Yonkers squad, 5-3, in German-American Soccer league play Sunday at Oehler's.

The win vaulted the Kickers into a League Division tie for first place with White Plains and Yonkers.

The Sport Club has accumulated nine points with 4 wins and a tie in the five games of the 1967-68 schedule. Their point total of 27 is the highest in the league. They have yielded nine goals to the opposition.

Lotze tied the score on a pass from Bill Newmershinsky at the 75-minute mark after the Yonkers team had forged ahead, 3-2, at the 60-minute mark.

The outside right bounced back with the go-ahead goal at the 86-minute mark, scoring on a rebound from a free kick by Eugene Ventriglia.

One minute before the end of the game, the Ghanian ace Obbie Elliot-Asare took a Lotze pass and boomed in a long goal which was frosting on the cake.

It looked like an easy win for the Kickers when Tony Reinhardt booted a 40-yarder through the nets at the 22-minute mark and Ventriglia added another at 32:00 to put the locals ahead, 2-0. Reinhardt and Asare teamed up on the combination pass setting up the Ventriglia score.

Yonkers broke the ice with a free kick at 44 minutes, tied it 2-2 at 48 minutes and forged ahead, 3-2, at 60 minutes.

Fros Good Sub

Coach Bob Graves used only one substitution — Gene Fros, who replaced Jimmy Reinhardt at right halfback and gave a tremendous 30-minute performance. "It was a big factor in our victory," said Graves.

In other League Division action Sunday, White Plains edged Poughkeepsie, 2-1; Dalmatinac routed West New York, 5-1; Schwaben blanked Lithuanians, 3-0, and American Czechs stopped College Point, 3-0.

The Kingston lineup:

Goalie—Liekoskie; RFB—Lee Roberts; LFB — Bill Newmershinsky; RHB — Tony Reinhardt; CHB — Winnie Soddermann; LHB—Reiner Schwebel; OR—Richie Lotze; IR—Obbie Elliott-Asare; CF—Eugene Ventriglia; IL—Jon Weber; OL—Walt Grasmeier; sub — Gene Fros.

Kingston plays Dalmatinac next Sunday at 2:30 at Oehler's field.

Middies Top Newburgh, 13-6

Tab Middletown High as the team to beat again in the DUSO football race.

Before a disappointed crowd of better than 4,000 Saturday in Newburgh, the Middies overcame a 6-0 first half deficit and rallied to topple the home-standing Goldbacks, 13-6, in a battle of the unbeatens.

Quarterback Paul Hughes and halfback Bill Clemmer were the Middletown heroes.

Hughes, taking the play away from Wayne Youngs of the home side, passed for 155 yards, including a 49 yard toss which set up the initial score.

Clemmer banged over from the six in the third period and galloped 64 yards after recovering a fumbled lateral in the fourth session. Dick Field made good one of two extra point attempts.

Newburgh, which had hopes of dethroning the Middies as league champions, scored early in the second period as Youngs passed 19 yards to George Butwell.

Aside from that thrust, the NFA signal caller was constantly hampered by the rugged Middletown line.

Both sides had touchdowns called back in the hard hitting struggle.

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Patriots asked American Football League waivers on tight end Tony Romeo today to make room for quarterback Don Trull, obtained from the Houston Oilers Sunday in exchange for an undisclosed draft choice.

Romeo, a 29-year-old Baptist minister, starred at Florida State. He was obtained by the Patriots in a trade with the Dallas Texans in 1962.

Diabetes Show at Benedictine Last Week

A number of interesting hobbies and crafts were exhibited last week at Benedictine School of Nursing Auditorium when Ulster Chapter, New York Diabetes Association, sponsored a hobby, craft show and bake sale. The officers in charge were grateful for the response and contributions of food.

Following a short business meeting conducted by Mrs. Anita Ostrander, chairman, the following hobbies and crafts were judged: Art exhibits—Joan Bibbo, Harold Bibbo, Hurley and Jennie Fredenberg, Woodstock. Car Models—William Mellert, Woodstock. Charcoal Drawings—Kathleen Begley, Hurley. Egg Shell Craft—Evelyn Burger, Accord. Hand Built Wagon and Hand Carved Wood Horse Teams — Robert Mellert, Woodstock. Hand Crafted Christmas Cards—Evelyn Burger. Huck Weaving—Gertrude Crisman, Hurley. Travelogue with Post Cards—Margaret Bierwisch, Kingston. Prizes were awarded, first, Evelyn Burger, Second, Dean Ostrander. Third, Jennie Fredenberg.

Saturday, Oct. 28, Ulster Chapter, New York Diabetes Association will participate in the Health Fair sponsored by First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Kingston. Free tests will be made and literature will be distributed such as, Guidebook for the Diabetic Patient, Diabetes in the News, What You Don't Know Can Hurt You, Let's Make Sure You're Not a Hidden Diabetic, Care of the Diabetic Child. Diabetes in the Middle Years, You and Diabetes, Check Diabetes Camp NYDA for Diabetic Boys and Girls, Medic Alert.

Wednesday, Nov. 8 at 7:30 p. m. in the auditorium of the Benedictine School of Nursing, Ulster Chapter, New York Diabetes Association will hold a general meeting. Mrs. Morton Brett will speak on Holiday Food and Drink and local physician, Lewis M. Neporent, will speak on Alcoholic and the Diabetic.

Members are reminded Diametic Detection Week begins Nov. 13-18. Anyone interested in assisting with the program should contact Mrs. Brett, detection chairman, 18 Ridge Drive, West Hurley.

The Wednesday evening meeting concluded with a social hour. Refreshments were served by hospitality chairman, Mrs. Ruth Kuhns, assisted by Mrs. Margaret Bierwisch.

Local Man Hurt In City Mishap

A St. James Street man suffered multiple injuries after being ejected from his car in an accident Monday night at 10:54 at the intersection of Delaware Avenue and Moore Street.

Injured was John Carpino, 34, of 152 St. James Street when he lost control of his car. According to police, Carpino was going west on Delaware Avenue when his car skidded into a telephone pole, damaging the right side of the car. The car then swerved into another pole, damaging the rear of the auto. Carpino was ejected, suffering injuries to his right arm and side and his left wrist.

He was taken to Benedictine Hospital by Doctor's Ambulance, treated and released.

$102,000 Loot Taken in Holdup At JFK Airport

NEW YORK (AP) — Three gunmen wearing Hallowe'en masks held up a cargo hangar of American Airlines at Kennedy Airport Sunday night and made off with $102,000 in cash and sapphires and rubies from the Far East.

The bandits appeared at the hangar, in a remote section of the sprawling airport.

The trio, armed with pistols, rounded up an unarmed guard and six freight clerks, then locked them in the hangar.

The cash and gems were being transshipped from the Far East.

Face Snake-Infested Swamps

Plan Bridge Through Bayou

BY BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The state Highway Department is putting together final plans for one of its most difficult construction jobs—bridging the snake-infested wilds of the Atchafalaya Swamp.

"It's a tremendous job," Acting State Highway Director A. B. Ratcliff said. "It's quite a challenge to me."

Highway engineers said the project will probably take more than five years. Contractors may find it tougher to build than the Lake Pontchartrain Causeway of New Orleans.

When completed, the bridge will stretch 18.3 miles across the muck and myriads of bayous making it perhaps the most important link in Louisiana's interstate highway system.

It will be part of a 52-mile stretch, tying in with a new interstate highway bridge across the Mississippi River at Baton Rouge.

Contractors will face a monumental task in moving construction equipment into the swamp.

Ratcliff said contractors would have to bring in most of their heavy equipment by barge. Then they will have the problem of getting it into position for work on the bridge.

The decision to bridge the swamp was made after years of controversy with the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads, which had insisted that an embankment be built.

"If we had tried to put up an embankment, the cost would have been terrific," Ratcliff said. Although embankments have been used in building highways through other swamps, engineers determined the job of dredging the muck and filling it with sand in the Atchafalaya would be impractical.

"Besides, it would interfere with the floodway," an official said.

Even with the modern six-lane, twin-span structure, the cost will be high. For the 18.3-mile section, engineers figure it will cost about $75 million.

For the entire 52-mile route, the cost will exceed $100 million.

The U.S. Bureau of Public Roads recently approved an additional safety lane for each span—meaning that drivers who have car trouble on the bridge will have a place to pull off.

"We were extremely pleased with this decision," said engineer George Landry.

"We will have to let the contracts in stages, because the area is so inaccessible," he said. "We don't want one contractor to block the route of another.

"I have instructed our engineers to prepare a layout of the whole project. I will meet with them and plan the sections we can let, so that we can get the advantage of the best bids and best working conditions."

Building the interstate through the swamp between Baton Rouge and New Orleans is also a tough job—but not nearly so much as licking the Atchafalaya. Because an embankment will be used in the swamp between Baton Rouge and New Orleans, a barge with dredging equipment will be able to dig out all the muck and form a canal.

Then sand will be slung into the canal for fill. Once the sand has impacted and settled, the construction of the road will begin.

Dear Abby

They Need Understanding

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for saying that a divorcee can be alone thru no fault of her own, just as a widow is. Most people aren't willing to give a divorcee a kind word. I am a divorcee because a wealthy widow decided she wanted my husband.

"FOOD FOR THOUGHT"

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the widow who wonders why widows keep losing all the eligible men to divorcees is one that I would like to answer. My qualifications: A bachelor who has had a great deal of experience dating both.

On a man's first date with a widow, she will pull a picture of her "dearly beloved, deceased husband" out of her purse and then tell you how "wonderful" he was, and what a beautiful life they had together. (If you ask around, their life wasn't nearly as "beautiful" as she said it was.)

Then, to show you how domestic she is, she invites you to her home where, on the living room wall, hangs a big picture of "HIM" staring you in the face all evening. (If you had any romantic ideas about her, this will kill them fast.)

Her conversation is about how "good" he was to her and the trips they had together. It is sickening.

A divorcee, on the other hand, will seldom mention her ex-husband's name. And if she does, she doesn't make you feel as tho you are competing with a saint.

I've known exceptions, of course, but as a rule, divorcees are much better company. Sincerely, EXPERIENCED

DEAR ABBY: I was quite interested in your article a while back where the widow complained that she has lost out several times to divorcees, and asked you why.

As you know, the longer a woman is a widow, the greater was her husband, and it often gets to the point that he was the most magnificent human being who ever lived. The following story may illustrate the point:

"The greatest man who ever lived was Huggins. Broad-minded, tolerant, generous, temperate, patient, brilliant, yet he died with all his good qualities unsuspected."

"Well, how did you manage to find out so much about him?"

"I married his widow."

Sincerely yours, ALBERT M., SAN FRANCISCO

Confidential to C. V. K.: Young couples would do well to heed this advice. If you need money, don't borrow from a friend or relative on an "interest-free" basis. Get it from a bank or a legitimate loan agency, and pay the interest. The needling, abuse, and aggravation the indebted one sometimes gets from his "benefactors" isn't worth it.

Horoscope — By SYDNEY OMARR

It's In The Stars—

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

Forecast for Tuesday, October 17, 1967

ARIES (Mar. 21 - Apr. 19): Weight of added responsibility, pressure is indicated. Much appears to center around domestic circle. Get co-operation of family. Stress harmony, good will. Avoid arguments.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Time now to deal with matters that were hidden or undercover. Be responsible for past promises, responsibilities. Realize that direct action will chase away foolish fears.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Some friends may appear troubled. Key is to be realistic. Sharpen vision but avoid daydreaming. You can make plans which result in profit. Be persistent, determined.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Prestige, standing in community is emphasized. You can put finishing touches on significant project. Some who give orders may appear dictatorial. Maintain calm, balance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Remember duties close to home. May not be so good for journeys. Break through red tape. Study operational methods. You could be overlooking basic step.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Your sense of perception is put to test. Utilize intuitive intellect. Look beyond surface indications. Pounce on any hint. Take advantage of any opportunity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Some associates may appear ponderous, ultraconservative. Maintain sense of humor. Be reasonable. Respect age. Make wise concession but hold tight to principles.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Serious consideration required with regard to work methods. You may be adhering to old-fashioned devices. Take a fresh look. There may be way to cut red tape.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Hold tight to budget strings. If you try to buy your way there is loss of face. Simple approach today is best one. Don't speculate. Act on facts. Avoid wishful thinking.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): If you have delayed basic tasks, today you may be called to explain. Know this and get busy. Applies especially to fixing things around the house. Install safety devices.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Avoid heavy-handed methods. Applies especially in dealing with relatives. May be difficult for you to see situation as a whole. Wait for all facts before making decision.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - Mar. 20): Financial advice received today deserves serious consideration. Heed voice of experience. Realize importance of intelligent savings program. Look to future rather than immediate needs.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a natural executive and would excel at law. You need outlet for self-expression and might help enlighten others in areas of justice.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for ARIES, TAURUS, GEMINI. Special word to Sagittarius: frank talk with member of opposite sex is required.

Timid Players Lose Oftener

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

You don't get to be a great bridge player by sitting back in a rocking chair and waiting for sure thing bids. You have to take calculated risks from time to time.

If Eric Murray's eight-point vulnerable double of South's one no-trump response had backfired at him, we can see the chorus of criticism from the defeatist players — who criticize beautifully and never win when and if they get to the table against tough competition.

Opening lead—♠ Q

Anyway, this double in the World's Championship Match worked to perfection. North saw no reason to run. Sammy Kehela with his nice East hand was delighted to pass. South had reason to think that a run-out to diamonds would be a case of out of the frying pan into the fire. Actually two diamonds would only go down one trick but South could not tell that North held a good five card diamond suit.

West opened the queen of spades and continued the suit after South ducked in both hands. South's nine of diamonds drew the queen and ace. Kehela won the next diamond with the ten and led a low club to Murray's ten. Murray cleared the spade suit and eventually the defense collected three clubs, three spades, two diamonds and 500 points.

The bidding started the same way at the other table but the Italian West did not double. He would have been incurring far greater risk than Murray because in our systems North could have a very good hand. In the particular Italian system used here the diamond bid and no-trump response were both rather limited bids.

Our net gain on this board was 300 points, or seven International Match Points. Although Murray did not know it since they were in the middle of a season, it left the match an exact tie.

Slates Top Dramatic Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The first of the season's important dramatic shows will arrive Tuesday night, a drama of the kind television talks about a lot but rarely presents.

The play, an original by Loring Mandel called "Do Not Go Gentle into that Good Night," stars Melvyn Douglas and Shirley Booth. When CBS broadcasts the 79 minutes of drama, there will be no commercial interruptions—and that's really special.

Currently just about everything short of the Saturday morning kiddie cartoons are being labeled "specials," and the language used to describe some more special than others is beginning to sound like grades of olives.

George Schaefer, who for the past decade has concentrated on directing and—lately producing—NBC's "Hall of Fame" dramas, directed the program, his first outside assignment for a long time.

The current emphasis on special programs, particularly drama, he believes is forcing welcome changes in programming concepts.

"Hall of Fame," for instance, will break its familiar mold by kicking off its season with an adaptation of "A Bell for Adano," and later in the season will present Shaw's "St. Joan."

For years the NBC series has specialized in presenting performers of major stature like the Lunts and Julie Harris, in historical biographies—colorful, beautiful and perfectly safe.

"For at least three years I've been screaming to get away from that," Schaefer said. "But what really changed it was the success of the movies—and movie nights on television are really a succession of special programs—plus the success of 'Death of a Salesman.' Now there is once again real interest in original drama—so the wheel has made a complete circle again."

The return to favor of meaty drama in specials may, he hopes, bring back some of the talents who have moved into motion pictures. "There just was not enough to television to keep them busy—men like Franklin Schaffer, Fielder Cook and Delbert Mann," Schaefer said. "Unless they wanted to turn out religious programs for Sunday mornings, there was not drama beyond the series. So they left and they've all done very well."

Turning out Mandel's drama for CBS's "Playhouse" series was not without its crises. Rehearsals were almost over and taping ready to start when Fredric March, who was to star, was stricken with a circulatory ailment and hospitalized and his wife left the cast with him.

"I was lucky beyond my best dreams—Douglas found he could make the time and Miss Booth was willing to break into a vacation to handle the emergency," Schaefer said. "And they are great."

Joey Bishop, whose late evening ABC show had been catching on nicely until forced into reruns by the recent strike on the network, has had a contract renewal that will carry the show to January 1969. The program, incidentally, resumes with new shows tonight.

Recommended tonight: "The Bob Hope Show," NBC, 9-10 EDT, with Debbie Reynolds, Eydie Gorme and Steve Lawrence.

Cites Disagreement on City Budget

Smith Sees Garraghan-Gallo Team as 'Ridiculous'

LOUIS J. SMITH

"We've heard the expression that politics make for strange bedfellows, but this one is more than strange, it is almost ridiculous, Louis J. Smith, Republican - Conservative candidate for alderman-at-large, said today in reference to the Garraghan-Gallo team running for mayor and alderman-at-large, respectively.

Speaking before the Republican City Committee, Smith recalled the problems Mayor Garraghan had in getting approval of his 1967 budget from the Common Council. "The situation became so ridiculous that finally, in desperation and because the affairs of city government demanded that a budget be passed, it became necessary for the five Republican aldermen to demand a special meeting of the Council for the specific purpose of passing upon the Mayor's Budget. The budget was passed at this meeting by a coalition of the five Republican aldermen and three Democrats," Smith said.

"You will recall," Smith continued, "that a group of Democratic alderman, led by none other than T. Robert Gallo of the Ninth Ward, had gone so far as to present their own version of a budget, which soon came to be referred to as The Gallo Budget. This same Gallo is now the running mate of Garraghan," Smith said.

"We wonder how Garraghan accepts his running mate. We further speculate what will happen in the unlikely event that Garraghan and Gallo are successful in this election; how would Garraghan feel having as head of the Common Council a man who has repeatedly displayed an intense personal dislike for him coupled with an absolute refusal to cooperate to any degree? It is a matter of record that the mayor had more than his share of difficulty with Francis Koenig as alderman-at-large, but with Gallo it promises to be even worse, if such is possible," Smith charged.

Smith went on to say "I do not mean to create the impression that I harbor any sympathy for Garraghan. I readily admit that many of his problems were brought about by his own lack of leadership and refusal to recognize the legitimate function of the Common Council. My concern is for the group that really suffers in a situation like this, and that is the City of Kingston. When you have this type of situation where deceit and doublecross are the rules governing legislative action, the city has to be the ultimate loser. This, sad to relate, is what we have today," Smith said.

"The team of Garraghan and Gallo promises little change. It is a known fact that the mayor for many months has refused to have any personal contact with Gallo—it is interesting to observe them along the campaign trail trying to appear to be compatible. How can they present themselves to the voters as a legislative team?" Smith asked.

Smith concluded by saying, "If elected as your alderman-at-large I pledge my complete cooperation with Mayor C. John Bechtold. Together we will make an executive-legislative team that will work always for the progress of our city. Together we will plan legislative program that will best serve our people. Always mindful of the constitutional division of executive and legislative functions, cooperation between the two branches can be accomplished."

Final State Consent Given For TB Hospital Conversion

Final consent for conversion of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital to use as a county infirmary was secured last week from Dr. William R. Donovan, New York State regional director, clearing the way to convert the 50 beds to use by the Ulster County Social Services for county infirmary patients.

The TB clinic will be continued as in the past, using a separate portion of the building for clinic purposes.

Plans are now under way to transfer the remaining TB patients to Homer Folks Hospital at Oneonta, probably next week. Seven patients will be transferred, one by ambulance and the other six by station wagon. Approximately a half dozen other, patients who have been hospitalized are consibered sufficiently recovered to become "out-patients" and will not be transferred to Oneonta.

When the 50 beds are transferred to the Ulster County Social Services Department, the clinic will be transferred to the Ulster County Health Department for operation. An application will be made to the Board of Supervisors Thursday for the transfer of a portion of the funds to Ulster County Health Department for continuation of the clinic.

Alterations at the TB Hospital on Golden Hill necessary to use the facility for infirmary purposes, have been practically completed and following transfer of the TB patients to Oneonta, will be followed shortly by use of the 50-bed facility for county infirmary purposes.

A conference was held in Albany last Wednesday with local and State Health Department officials for discussion of plans necessary to put the 50-bed facility in use as a county infirmary. The new facility will augment the present infirmaries operated at New Paltz and in Kingston by the Social Services Department.

Call More Witnesses In CR Murder Trial

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP) — The 12 defense lawyers have summoned more witnesses at the federal court trial of 18 men charged with conspiracy in the deaths of three civil rights workers.

As the trial starts its second week today, 40 witnesses had taken the stand. Defense lawyers said the case may go to the jury by midweek.

Testimony before the weekend recess was given in behalf of six of the defendants: Olen Burrage, on whose farm the three bodies were found; James T. Harris, Meridian; Jimmy Arledge, Meridian; Edgar Ray Killen, of near Philadelphia, Miss.; Alton W. Roberts, Meridian; and Herman Tucker, Philadelphia.

In each instance, the jury was told that the defendant was elsewhere at the time of the June 21, 1964, killings near Philadelphia.

Before sending the all-white jury of seven women and five men home for the weekend, Judge Harold Cox announced he would deal severely with anyone who tried to talk to a juror about the case.

The 18 white men are charged with conspiring to violate the civil rights of the three slain men. Maximum punishment under the 1870 law is 10 years prison and a $5,000 fine. No state charges were ever filed.

The government contends that the White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan set out to execute Michael Schwerner, a white Congress of Racial-Equality staffer in Meridian, and also killed two men who were with him.

Schwerner, 24, of Brooklyn, was accompanied by Andrew Goodman, 20, also white of New York, and James Chaney, 21, a Negro of Meridian, on a drive to the Philadelphia area to investigate a Negro church burning.

The government said Neshoba County Deputy Sheriff Cecil Price arrested the three on a speeding charge, held them until night fell, and delivered them to the KKK crew.

Auto Talks Continue In Secrecy

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers union continue their contract talks in secrecy again today.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther and Malcolm L. Denise, Ford vice president for labor relations, were expected to head the bargaining teams in the third straight day of face-to-face talks.

They met for 10 hours Sunday, but neither side reported the results of that session.

A news blackout the two sides imposed at 9 p.m. Tuesday remained in effect.

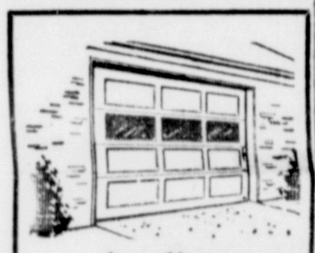

The strike by 160,000 Ford workers is almost six weeks old with a total wage loss the company estimates at more than $140 million. The damage to Ford's business won't be fully known for months to come, but its new car sales in the first 10 days of this month were 60,000 below those of the same period a year ago.

Workers struck at 11:59 p.m. Sept. 6 when the old three-year contract expired.

Prior to the 9 p.m. Sunday recess, there had been speculation that settlement was so close that the bargainers would continue talks on an around-the-clock basis to wrap up the contract.
